Pay Taxes in Installments, Cermak Plan

NOMINEE ACTS TO SPREAD BILLS OVER TEN YEARS

Proposes to Reduce Double Burden.

BY PARKE BROWN.

A. J. Cermak, Democratic nominee for mayor, has a plan to relieve Chicagoans from the necessity of paying two annual tax bills in this calendar year. He said yesterday he would sponsor and support a bill before the Illinois general assembly to accomplish this purpose.

Both the 1929 and 1930 real estate taxes become due this year. The Cermak plan, he said, would authorize the taxpayer to meet his 1930 bill in ten annual installments, only the first of which need be paid this year.

Prepares Plan for Assembly.

To make this possible it will be necessary for the legislature to authorize an issue of ten year bonds covering the amount of the levy, the bonds to be taken up during the ten year period as the deferred payments are received. Mr. Cermak said he had asked experts to work on the technical details of the plan which must be completed before a bill can be drafted.

Mr. Cermak's plan was made public yesterday afternoon. Last night the corporation counsel's office sent out statements announcing a similar plan as bearing the indorsement of the city hall group. The latter plan proposes twenty yearly installments.

Acts to Save Homes.

"Many homes in Chicago," read a statement issued by Mr. Cermak, "are in danger of being lost to their owners because of the delay caused by the revaluation of real estate in Cook county ordered by the state tax commission.

"I am trying to save these homes for their owners by asking permission from the legislature to float a bond issue for the purpose of funding one year's taxes over a period of ten years.

"I fear that when the people of Chicago receive their next tax bills with approximately 90 cents added on each $100 because of the increased taxes of the city of Chicago, the city operated school board and the state, many of them will not be able to pay. There has been no increase so far as Cook county outside the city is concerned.

Points to Rising Rates.

"The city increase will be from $1.31½ to $1.32. The school tax will be increased from $1.53 to $2.14. The state tax will be raised from 30 to 39 cents.

"My plan to meet this situation is to float a bond issue for the funding of these taxes by permitting those who wish to avail themselves of the opportunity to arrange to pay one of the two bills over a period of ten years, paying 10 per cent of that bill each year for ten years.

"This would bring the required revenue to the different governmental departments, but it also would relieve the people in this crisis.

Two Courses for Taxpayers.

"We are trying to work this out in such a way that those who do not wish to avail themselves of the plan will simply pay their taxes in the regular way, while those who need to take advantage of the opportunity for more time will be able to do so by merely paying regular interest charges for the extension of their taxes over the ten year period."

The regular session of the general assembly is expected to continue until late in June. Mr. Cermak and his staff believe it possible to have their plan completed and the bill ready for presentation at Springfield some time next month, so that there will be plenty of time for action upon it. If enacted it would take effect on July 1 or shortly thereafter. The 1930 tax bills will not be due until Dec. 1.

More Lyle Men Go to Cermak.

Further additions of Lyle strength to the Cermak camp were announced during the day. George H. Simpson, head of the Lyle Business Men's organization of the 17th ward, Judge Lyle's home ward, announced that he and his workers will support Cermak. "I am a lifelong Republican and expect to remain one," he said, "which is more than Thompson can say."

Col. A. F. Lorensen, executive chairman of the Bundesen organization, denounced reports that he and other leaders in the Independent movement had gone over to Thompson. He said he believed that almost every Bundesen man and Bundesen woman is behind Cermak.

MASSACHUSETTS DECLARES WAR UPON DRY LAW

Asks Congress to Call Conventions.

Boston, Mass., March 13.—[Special.]—Massachusetts today became the first state in the nation to call upon congress for a convention of the states to consider repeal or amendment of the eighteenth amendment. The house, without debate, concurred in the senate's amended resolution and the document will be forwarded to Washington immediately by Frederick W. Cook, secretary of state. The signature of the governor is not required.

The action of the Massachusetts legislature is likely to attract much attention, not only because of prohibition's status as an issue in politics, but because the resolution directly advocates a change along lines closely related to those at issue in the celebrated decision by Federal Judge William Clark in New Jersey. In order to compel congress to call a constitutional convention, however, it will be necessary for 31 other states to take the same action.

Text of Resolution.

The Massachusetts legislature's resolution follows:

"Whereas, A condition of widespread dissatisfaction prevails with the workings and results of article 18 of the amendments to the constitution o fthe United States; and,

"Whereas, It is desirable to attempt to improve, clarify or quiet such conditions; and

"Whereas, The only methods for repealing or modifying said article 18 are set forth in article 5 of the said constitution; and

"Whereas, Such methods are available for ascertaining the will of a majority of the people and for setting any definite program in motion; therefore, be it Calls Upon Congress.

"Resolved, That the General court of Massachusetts, acting in pursuance of said article 5, hereby requests that congress call a convention under said article for the purpose of proposing an amendment or amendments to the constitution amending, modifying, revising or repealing said article 18; or that congress, acting in pursuance of said article 5, itself propose such an amendment or amendments and submit the same for ratification by conventions in the several states; and be it further

"Resolved, That the secretary of the commonwealth be directed to forward to the Vice President of the United States in his capacity as presiding officer of the senate of the United States, and to the speaker of the house of representatives of the United States certified copies, attested by the clerks of the two branches of the general court, of these resolutions."

Governor Approves.

Informed of the action of the house in concurring with the senate, thus completing the action of the state in initiating a change in the prohibition amendment, Gov. Joseph B. Ely said: "That's good."

The resolution was reported favorably from the legislative committee on legal agairs, previously regarded as a dry committee, several weeks ago. It was adopted in the house quietly. When it reached the senate Senator Henry Parkman Jr. offered corrective amendments including one to make it clear that in case a national convention should recommend an amendment to the 18th amendment, the ratification of this would come from three-fourths of the states by special conventions rather than by action of their legislatures.

SEIZE BURGLARS WORKING ON SAFE WITH BLOWTORCH

Two men working with an acetylene torch on a stolen safe containing $500 were seized last night in the plant of the Ready Mixed Mortar company at 2533 Wellington avenue by Lieut. Phil Carroll and fifteen policemen. They are Allen Martin and Francis Singer. The latter is said to be an ex-convict. The safe was stolen from the office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company at 3501 Lawrence avenue several nights ago.

As the detectives entered the mortar plant Singer leaped into a trough of mixed mortar, eleven feet deep, and was saved from possible death. The men gained access to the plant through having worked there some time ago, they said.

More than 15,000 persons had been assisted with their returns at THE TRIBUNE'S main public service office, the west side office at 4152 West Madison street and south side office at 1101 East 63d street when the bureaus closed yesterday. Four deputy collectors of internal revenue are stationed at the Madison and Dearborn office.

Returns may be filed at the federal building up to midnight Monday, the deadline. A total of $10,138,978.50 had been collected yesterday since Jan. 1, representing 75,700 individual and corporation returns, according to Acting Collector Robert E. Neely. Up to March 13 last year, 83,900 persons and corporations had paid a total of $10,258,476.59.

VELIE, WOMAN ROBBED AFTER COURT SESSION

The adventures of John G. Velie, 72 years old, wealthy mining man, and his friend, Mrs. Dorothy Chappell, took an unromantic slant last night when two bandits invaded Velie's apartment in the Roscoe Plaza hotel, 1650 Roscoe street, tied both of them with twisted curtains, and escaped with money and jewelry amounting to $5,600.

Only yesterday morning Velie and Mrs. Chappell were arraigned before Judge Joseph A. Graber in the Des Plaines street court on charges growing out of a fist fight between Velie and Mrs. Chappell's husband, Chalmers, in a Pullman coach on Feb. 16. The charges were dismissed, but Judge Graber branded Velie as an "old Romeo" and Mrs. Chappell as "a gold digger." Incidentally, the court appearance inspired the robbery.

Mrs. Chappell, who has an apartment near Velie's, was visiting with him last night when the robbers confronted them. During the holdup one of the gunmen remarked: "We saw you in court and knew you have dough." Of the loot, $2,300 was in cash, $500 of it belonging to Mrs. Chappell.

Mother Sends Son to Prison for Life Term

Bardstown, Ky., March 13.—(AP)—The quivering, halting words of a mother 500 miles away today sent her son to the penitentiary for life.

Confronted with the state's offer to swap a life sentence for a plea of guilty in the murder Feb. 22 of Carl B. James, railroad official, Anthony Piotrowsky, alias Tony Prowsy, alias Anthony Peterson, was overcome with fear and confused with happenings of the past few days. He turned to his mother in Detroit for advice.

If he refused the state's offer he faced trial by jury with death in the electric chair as maximum punishment on a verdict of guilty.

Unable to Attend Trial.

Mrs. Agnes Piotrowsky, whose lack of funds prevented her attending her son's trial, speaking over the telephone from Detroit, sealed her son's fate when she advised his attorney to enter a plea of guilty.

The mother had before her newspaper accounts of the fate of her son's companion, Frank Carson, alleged trigger-man, who yesterday was convicted and sentenced to death by a jury in the same court for the same murder. Both are under 20 years of age.

David Seasmer, the youth's attorney, said Mrs. Piotrowsky could hardly speak for her sobbing. She hesitated, almost overcome, but finally mustered strength to tell him her decision. Circuit Judge James Tudor, who had allowed two hours for the mother to decide, then sentenced the youth to life imprisonment in the reformatory at Frankfort.

Murder Stirs State.

Thus ended the final chapter of a murder which has stirred Kentucky for days and which was termed by Commonwealth's attorneys as the "most inhuman murder in the history of Nelson county."

James was out for a ride with his wife on Washington's birthday. On the highway they met two youths who hailed them and asked for a ride. Carson and Piotrowsky had left Louisville that day hitch-hiking from Detroit to Nashville. They were seeking work in the south, they said, but Detroit police said they were fleeing from justice in Detroit and that they were accused of eleven robberies and an attack upon a girl there.

After traveling a few miles James' passengers drew pistols and demanded the car. James stopped and all four stepped to the roadside. While Carson and James argued, Mrs. James signaled a passing car for help. Confusion followed, a shot was fired, and James fell dead.

The youths, after forcing another motorist to move on, fled in the James car, leaving Mrs. James bending over the body of her husband.

An alarm was sounded and the James car crashed into the courthouse at Hodgenville, a few miles farther on, when an officer pointed a blackjack at the occupants. Carson and Piotrowsky were arrested, but denied they had killed James.

Carson testified he heard the fatal shot come from a car passing the scene of the holdup. His first trial resulted in mistrial when jurors disagreed on the degree of punishment. A new jury was impaneled almost immediately, and after two hours' deliberation found Carson guilty and recommended the death penalty. His execution has been set for June 12.

ANNULMENT IS GIVEN TO NORTH SHORE ELOPERS

A decree annulling the elopement marriage of Peggy Boynton, 16 years old, daughter of a manufacturing company official, and Thomas Russell, also 16, son of a railway conductor, both of Highland Park, was granted yesterday at a secret chamber hearing by Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady, Waukegan. The proceedings were instituted by the young groom. He testified that the elopement resulted from a dare. Donald S. Boynton, vice president of the Pickands-Brown company of Chicago, father of the bride, testified that both newlyweds were under age.

Twins Doomed to Slow Death Take Poison

Sitting in wheel chairs in their home last night two brothers, 20 year old twins, doomed to slow death as paralytic cripples, took poison in a suicide pact which they had planned for six months.

The brothers are Stephen and Thomas Hall of 2731 Congress street, victims for more than twelve years of a strange, incurable disease known to medical science as Friedreich's ataxia. After taking the poison, metallic mercury, they were taken to the county hospital. Dr. V. G. Urse, who treated them, said their condition was critical, but they have a chance for recovery.

Hope Is Banished.

Stephen and Thomas obtained the mercury six months ago, and night and day, in their beds and on their wheel chairs, they discussed their plan to end their lives. Only one thing—hope—held off their act. For twelve years the twins had hoped. Then suddenly faith was shattered by medical edict. They were incurables, and slowly dying.

It was about 6:30 o'clock last night that Thomas and Stephen wheeled themselves to the dining room table. They had not walked in more than six years. While Mrs. Eleanor Hall, their mother, busied herself in the kitchen, Thomas, stronger than his brother, reached into a cabinet and took down a glass containing a quantity of the mercury. The mercury was salvaged and brought home months ago by their brother, William, after an accident at the Proviso railroad yards where he is employed.

The boys sent their sister, Eleanor, 10 years old and their brother, Robert, 12, out of the room on invented errands, divided the mercury in two glasses, and drank it.

Finds Sons in Collapse.

Later Mrs. Hall entered the room, and discovered her twin sons collapsed in their chairs. A druggist was notified, and he called police who took the boys to the hospital.

Questioned by Robert, the little brother, before being taken away, as to why they swallowed the poison, Stephen replied: "O, we're just cashing in our checks." At the hospital, after receiving emergency treatment, the twins joked about the apparent failure of their efforts. Both regretted the failure, they said.

"I figured we were best out of the way," Stephen said. "Then they wouldn't have to look at us any more. We had considered suicide a long time."

"Burden on Mother."

"Why did you delay your attempt until now?" was asked.

"Because we hoped," returned Stephen moodily. "We hoped. We thought we might be cured. But during the last month we've been at the Illinois Research hospital, and several clinics, and we learned we were doomed. Besides, our mother was working herself to death for us."

"We wanted to find a real cure for our sickness," interpolated Thomas, grinning when questioned by Dr. Gerald Downey as to their motive. "You know, none of you doctors can seem to find a cure."

Physicians said after examination that ten days' time would be required before it is determined whether the metallic mercury will prove fatal.

Taken Ill When 8 Years Old.

The Hall twins were afflicted with the rare ataxia when they were 8 years old. Its ravages became progressive, but they continued in elementary school to middle grades when it became necessary to halt their schooling.

According to medical authorities, Friedreich's ataxia begins in childhood and its cause, as well as a cure, is unknown.

There are seven children in the Hall family. Besides the twins and Robert, Eleanor, and William, there is Joseph, 14, and Frank, 18, a soldier in the regular army who sends his mother part of his pay from Honolulu, where he is stationed. Mrs. Hall divorced her husband, Joseph, last year.

TWO KIDNAPINGS LINKED TO SOUTH SIDE BOMBINGS

Police last night were investigating two supposed south side kidnapings for ransom in which an alleged gambler, Tom Shannon of 7948 South Green street, and a saloonkeeper, Pat Morris of 4177 South Halsted street, were the victims.

According to reports given Chief of Detectives Norton, Shannon, known around Halsted and Root streets, was abducted to a bang three weeks ago, and held until he paid $2,300 ransom.

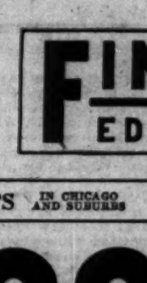

Morris was kidnaped at the same time, and released to arrange a $5,000 ransom payment through his brother-in-law, Jack McDonald. Morris ignored the demands, it is reported. Shortly afterward his saloon was bombed. A few hours later the home of McDonald was also bombed.

UPROAR HEARD IN DEBATE OVER WHITE VERDICT

Reported 6 to 6 in Gangster Case.

(Picture on back page.)

The jury in the murder trial of William J. [Three Fingered Jack] White, public enemy and labor racketeer, was deadlocked after six hours' of deliberation at midnight last night.

HARRY DITCHBURNE.

Judge Joseph Sabath left the jurors in their deliberation room when he left for home at 12:30 o'clock. He said that they could deliberate as long as they desired, but if a verdict is reached that he will not return to court to accept it until 9 o'clock this morning. At 2:30 o'clock this morning the jurors were still engaged in a heated debate which seemed destined to last for some hours before they would become exhausted.

White has been on trial for the murder on Dec. 13, 1925, of Policeman Edward Pflaume of Forest Park. The shooting occurred in the Mannheim inn as the police were trying to arrest White as a suspect in the $18,000 West McHenry bank robbery of Oct. 14, 1925, and for the robbery of an ice cream truck driver shortly before the murder. White has been tried once and convicted of the murder and sentenced to life imprisonment, but the Supreme court reversed the conviction.

Jury Reported Evenly Split.

The jurors were reported evenly divided on the guilt or innocence of the defendant, whose prosecution was part of the drive against public enemies and racketeers started last fall by law enforcement authorities.

The arguments of the jurors were so heated that they could be heard through the double barred doors of the jury room into the surrounding anterooms.

Those in favor of an acquittal verdict took the defense theory that the physical facts proved that White could not have committed the murder, but that the fatal shot was fired either by a member of the police party or by James Johnston, former convict pal of White, who was also killed in the shooting affray.

Agree with Prosecution.

The jurors siding with the prosecution were just as emphatic in their arguments that the state had proved that White started the shooting by trying to murder Sergt. James McBride of Bellwood, the member of the arresting party who discovered that fingers were missing from White's right hand and that his description corresponded with that of one of the bandits wanted for the McHenry bank robbery. McBride testified that White fired from his coat pocket and that the first bullet wounded him in the head.

McBride was shot a few months ago while he was riding on a street car through Maywood on his way to the state's attorney's office to aid in the prosecution. Claude Maddox, leader of the so-called Circus gang and a pal of White, is under indictment for this shooting.

Jurors' Debate Heated.

The jurors' debate became so heated that several recesses had to be taken to prevent the disagreements from becoming more than verbal clashes, it is reported.

The crowd which had been in attendance throughout the trial—many of the spectators reported to be hoodlum friends of the defendant—stayed to the finish. An extra guard of policemen and deputy bailiffs remained on duty to prevent trouble. The prosecution witnesses, who have been closely guarded since the attempted murder of McBride, were kept from the Criminal court building to prevent any attempts to intimidate them in the event another trial is necessary.

The jurors retired to consider their verdict at 4 o'clock after hearing a plea from Assistant State's Attorney Harry Ditchburne that they take the defense at its word on the statement that the "defendant wanted liberty or death."

Asks Freedom or Death.

Attorney W. W. O'Brien, chief defense counsel, in his argument had told the jurors that his client wanted no compromise verdict — that he wanted either complete freedom or death on the gallows as asked by the prosecution. A death verdict in the case would mean execution by hanging because the crime involved was committed prior to the enactment of the electrocution law.

White's case was sent to the jury without a word of testimony in his defense other than that drawn out by his three lawyers, O'Brien, W. W. Smith, and Everett Jennings in cross-examination of prosecution witnesses. O'Brien and Jennings talked in his behalf to the jurors.

The defendant, who earlier in the day had seemed confident of a quick acquittal, seemed to become worried as midnight approached without any report from the jurors. He paced up and down in the court cell. He is a powerful man, just under six feet tall. The smile which he had during the afternoon session when his lawyers were ridiculing the prosecution witnesses was worn off by midnight.

It was reported in legal circles that the trial of White has cost gangland at least $50,000. Much of the money, it was reported, has come from his labor connections. He is connected with several teamster organizations.

State's Plea to Jury.

In presenting his case to the jury Prosecutor Ditchburne said:

"I am asking you, gentlemen of the jury, to consider the testimony in this case from a logical standpoint, free from any flourish or display such as made by the two defense lawyers.

"The state, I believe, has proved this defendant guilty beyond any possibility of a doubt.

"The only defense to this case is that all the state's witnesses are liars or cowards. O'Brien calls Sergt. James McBride of Bellwood a coward. If Jimmy McBride is a coward, I wish that we had more cowards like him among the police of the metropolitan area. Nobody could say that he was a coward when he shot down White's pal, Jimmy Johnston, the ex-convict.

"White wanted to kill McBride, not Pfaume. It was McBride who put the heat on him. He shot first at McBride.

"Are you going to wrap a flag around fellows who carry these, two at a time [the prosecutor at this point waved before the jury the two .45 caliber automatic pistols found in White's possession when he was later arrested]?" He was referring to the speech of Attorney Jennings that every defendant is entitled to the same trial under the flag.

Defense Lawyers Object.

The defense lawyers were on their feet together, shouting objections to the ridicule of their arguments. The judge finally ruled that the prosecutor's statements should be ruled out of the record.

The prosecutor then urged the jurors to return a death verdict.

"I ask you to render a verdict in this case so that the public will know that the law is getting somewhere in its fight against these enemies of society," he said. "I ask you to accept the defense challenge of liberty or death."

Argument for Defense.

Attorney O'Brien confined most of his argument to the physical facts of the case and said that it would have been impossible for White to have committed the murder as charged by the state's witnesses. He said it was unlikely that the defendant would have a .45 caliber pistol in his pocket without it being discovered by the policemen. He argued that it was either Johnston or Policeman Jones [one of Pfaume's companions] who shot Pfaume. He pointed out that Policeman Pfaume ran around the roadhouse for some minutes, according to the witnesses, after he was shot. This he argued, was impossible.

The only effort made at the defense for White was when Michael J. Galvin, secretary-treasurer of the Chicago Truck Drivers union, was called to the witness stand. Attorney O'Brien asked him if he knew White's occupation and the prosecution objected and was sustained. Attorney O'Brien, with a wave of his hand, then announced that further defense was not necessary and closed the evidence.

Recites Story of Case.

Assistant State's Attorney Laird was then called on to sum up the evidence produced by the prosecution. He showed that White had been sought as one of the men who had robbed the West McHenry State bank.

Policemen Pfaume and Morris Jacobs of Forest Park, Sergt. McBride of Bellwood, and Policeman Jones of Berkeley, started out on a tour of the roadhouses in search of the robbers of the truck driver. They found White and Johnston, both, former convicts, in the Mannheim inn, along with two women.

They started to arrest White, and as they were escorting him back into the dining room of the inn for his coat, it is charged, White started shooting. Johnstone and Pfaume were killed and Sergt. McBride was wounded.

Medical Society Clears Terry Druggan's Doctor

Dr. Adolph Kraft, physician to Terry Druggan, was justified in the statements he made several months ago to Judge John H. Lyle in the Felony court regarding Druggan's condition, according to a report made public yesterday by the public relations committee of the Chicago Medical society. Druggan, the report says, left his hotel room without Dr. Kraft's knowledge and against his advice. Dr. Kraft asked the medical society to make an investigation of his conduct after Judge Lyle had criticised him.

Charges Wife Broke Into Song on Attending Opera

Dr. Anthony Bertash, a physician with offices at 4910 South Michigan avenue, yesterday filed suit for divorce in the Superior court against Mrs. Nellie Bertash, 3201 Wallace street. The physician charges drunkenness and alleges that he was forced to stop taking his wife to the opera because she insisted on singing during the performances while under the influence of liquor. He asks the court to divide $100,000 worth of property held jointly by them.

San Bernardino, Cal., March 13.—[Special.]—Worthless check charges against Maj. Richard M. Cannon in connection with the operation of a private school near here were dismissed today following announcement that the defendant's father, Bishop James Cannon Jr. of Virginia, had made good the checks.

EDUCATORS JOIN MOVE TO EXPOSE NEW YORK GRAFT

'Vigilantes' Organizing to Force Action.

New York, March 13.—[Special.]—Prominent educators today joined churchmen and other city leaders in the demand for a thorough city-wide investigation of the charges of graft and political corruption bobbing up from day to day. From Dr. Henry R. Linville, president of the Teachers' union, came a plea for a nonpartisan investigation which would remove the educational system "from its present status as a racket."

CHANCELLOR BROWN.

From Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown of New York university came the same appeal.

And from Dr. Frederick Robinson, president of City college, came a plea for the appointment of a committee of competent men from the fields of education, business, law, social work and church work, to lay out the scope of the inquiry.

Dewey Gives Ideas.

From Dr. John Dewey, emeritus professor of philosophy at Columbia university, came the suggestion that the educators work particularly toward the development of a series of ideals in city government and definitely divorce politics from education.

The city affairs committee, of which John Haynes Holmes is chairman and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise vice chairman, decided to submit definite, specific charges against Mayor Walker to the governor. Announcement of this intention was made in the following statement:

"The city affairs committee has submitted its charges against Mayor Walker to eminent legal counsel and at their advice has voted to proceed at once to their final formulation for presentation to the governor.

"The charges will be presented in person by a committee consisting of Dr. Holmes and Rabbi Wise, at such time as the charges are perfected and the governor may find it convenient to receive the committee."

State Law Invoked.

The proposed charges against the mayor, like those against District Attorney Crain, will be brought under section 34 of the state public officers' law. This law permits the governor, either in person or through a commissioner, to investigate and hear the charges and to remove the official in question.

Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey and a member of the committee on plan and scope of the citizens' committee of one thousand, which will endeavor to force legislative action on a city-wide investigation, proposed that the citizens of New York City should write, wire, or telephone their senators and assemblymen appealing for an immediate action on such an investigation.

"Vigilante Body" Forming.

Meanwhile the board of trade, representing some 820 leading business houses of the city, proceeded with the formation of its so-called vigilante committee of twenty, which is to operate more or less secretly in investigating not only elected officials but Tammany Hall and the doings of its district leaders.

The vigilantes will be a sort of hybrid between two Chicago organizations set up there to route out graft—the secret committee of six and the Chicago crime commission.

It will be nonpartisan and nonpolitical; it will finance itself; it will try to function with "moral force," and, failing in this, will employ investigators to find facts upon which it will then map out a course depending on the circumstances.

Sift Office's Stock Deals.

Meanwhile the Seabury investigation continued to turn up its daily quota of unsavory revelations. Today's sensation centered around a $27,000 stock market account carried by Patrolman Andrew J. McLaughlin of the vice squad.

McLaughlin is the officer who in 1923 arrested Vivian Gordon, the woman who was murdered recently after she had threatened to give information to the Seabury investigators.

He opened his brokerage account with Henry Clews & Co. on May 3, 1929, with a cash deposit of $7,009. At later dates, up to about Christmas of that year, he made deposits up to a total of $27,000, largely in cash. When he closed out the account he had $6,300 left.

He stood on his constitutional rights and refused to tell what he did with the $6,300.

Arrested 1,000 Women.

Nevertheless a considerable amount of information was extracted from him. He told the referee that he made it a practice to arrest women on evidence he knew would not stand up in court because there was always a chance that the case would come before Magistrate Jean Norris. She usually would convict a woman on evidence that other magistrates would throw out, he said.

In the past ten years he arrested between 1,000 and 1,200 women and gained convictions in about half the cases. Stricter rules of evidence make it harder to get convictions nowadays, and that explains why his percentage is low, he testified.

El Paso, Tex., March 13.—(AP)—Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York City reached El Paso late today en route to Palm Springs, Cal., where he planned to rest ten days or a fortnight at the home of Samuel Untermeyer. GERMAN PARTY BOLTS; SEEKS AID TO OUST FASCISTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 13.—The coalition parties in the state of Thuringia, which gave the German Fascisti their first ride in the government saddle, was wrecked today by the German People's party, which announced its withdrawal from the coalition owing to the persistent and slanderous attacks on the People's party by Fascist leaders. The People's party is negotiating with other parties with the aim of putting an end to the Fascist rule.

The Fascists staged a dramatic scene at Cassel today during the trial of 98 communists changed with breaking up a Fascist meeting. A man rushed into the courtroom shouting that communists were outside the building beating up Fascists and that they had flung two of the Fascisti into the river. The Fascist lawyers demanded an adjournment, which the magistrate refused, whereupon the Fascisti witnesses marched out en masse to join in the mêlée. Reinforcements of police forcibly cleared the neighborhood. No confirmation of the drownings was obtained.

While the government councilor, Lassally, was questioning Police Sergeant Friedrich Pohl in police headquarters at Hamburg today over Pohl's alleged Fascist activities, Pohl suddenly drew a revolver and shot Lassally in the breast. He is in a critical condition. Pohl was overpowered.

GUZIK KINSMAN INDICTED BY U. S. AS TAX DODGER

Charge Lipschultz, Lone Racketeer, Owes $75,000

Louis Lipschultz, described as a lone wolf in the south side alcohol and gambling rackets, although he is a brother-in-law of Jack Guzik of the Capone gang, was named in an indictment charging income tax evasion returned by the federal grand jury yesterday.

Lipschultz is alleged to have filed no returns for the years 1927 and 1928, when his income from the rackets totaled $234,430.14, according to the true bill. He is named in two counts charging willful failure to file returns, which is a misdemeanor, and two counts charging willful attempts to defeat and evade taxes, which is a felony punishable by five years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Charge He Owes U. S. $75,000.

The indictment charges that Lipschultz tried to evade payment of $18,037.15 for 1927 and $20,789.14 for 1928, and, with interest and fraud penalties, he owes the government about $75,000, according to Assistant United States Attorney Dwight H. Green, who presented the case to the grand jury.

Lipschultz's name played an inconspicuous part in the trial of Jack Guzik, who was convicted and sentenced to five years for income tax fraud, but he had not been mentioned in the investigations of hoodlums' and politicians' incomes conducted by special intelligence agents under A. P. Madden.

Not Molested by Capone Gang.

The last known address of Lipschultz was 5048 Quincy street. His operations were said to have been confined to the south side. Being a brother of Mrs. Jack Guzik, he was "given a pass" by the Capone mob and not molested by rival gangsters because of the power of the Guzik name, federal investigators said.

The indictment of Lipschultz adds another name to the growing roster of hoodlums, grafting public officials and crooked contractors who have been caught in the income tax net of United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, which was resulted in convictions of Ralph Capone, Jack Guzik, State Representative Lawrence O'Brien, County Assessor Gene Oliver, and pleas of guilty by Frank Nitti, Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake. Federal Judge Woodward fixed bond for Lipschultz at $25,000 and issued a bench warrant for his arrest.

SOCIETY WOMEN COOK AS STRIKE CLOSES UP CLUB

MEXICO CITY, March 13.—(AP)—Today was Friday the 13th and plenty of it for members of the swanky Mexico City Country club. Bartenders, waitresses, maids and other help of the club struck after demanding that only union employés be hired and after an argument over the disposal of tips. Today the entrances and grounds were picketed by 25 or 30 employés. Rallying to the aid of the hungry and thirsty golfers who were able to talk their way by the guarded gates and get in their round of golf, fashionable women of the American and British colonies raided the kitchen and prepared luncheon.

Fire Does $3,000 Damage to Blackhawk Restaurant

Fire broke out in the kitchen of the Blackhawk restaurant at 139 North Wabash avenue last night and caused $3,000 damage. Flames and smoke were confined to the rear and diners in front were unaware of the fire. The blaze originated in a grease chute.

MOTHER HURLS THREE CHILDREN IN WATER, FOLLOWS; ONE SAVED

Mattapoisett, Mass., March 13.—(AP)—Mrs. William Chester Allinson, 35, of Saylesville, R. I., drove her three children to a dock here tonight on the pretense of showing them the New York boat and then hurled them into the water and jumped to her death after them. Two of the children were drowned.

The tragic story was revealed by the survivor, Wayne, 11, after he was found a mile from the place of the drowning in an exhausted condition. The boy told how his mother had thrown him, his sister, Hope, 6, and his baby brother, De Witt, 3, from the edge of the dock.

Police grappled several hours for the bodies without finding any trace of them.

An automobile parked near the edge of the dock bore mute testimony to the truth of the boy's story, however.

Wayne said his mother had been ill for some time and frequently had "bad spells."

WOMAN POLICE SPY JAILED FOR DEFYING JURORS

Report Mrs. Kub Ready to "Talk."

CRIMINAL COURT.

Joseph Campbell, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell by Judge Ross C. Hall.

John Smally, assault with a deadly weapon, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell by Judge Peter Schwaba.

Mrs. Shirley E. Kub, former undercover investigator for Acting Police Commissioner John H. Alcock, was sent to jail yesterday for four months on a contempt of court conviction growing out of her defiance to the special grand jury investigating police corruption. Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court, who imposed the sentence, refused to listen to any plea for leniency and ordered Mrs. Kub taken to jail.

It was reported last night that after a few hours in jail Mrs. Kub communicated with jail officials and asked what Prosecutors Charles J. Mueller and Charles Lonsbury wanted her to do to "square herself."

Must Tell Whole Story.

The prosecutors let it be knqwn that they will not listen to Mrs. Kub until she is ready to tell the whole truth about all her connections, in and out of the police department. They said that a few days in jail may loosen her tongue and that they might then consider asking some mitigation in her behalf.

Mrs. Kub is to face a second contempt citation next week. The sentence imposed yesterday was for her refusal to testify before the grand jury on March 3. The second citation grows out of her fleeing the jurisdiction of the Illinois courts after she was instructed by the grand jury to return the next day.

Attorney to Make Appeal.

Attorney Harold Levy, representing Mrs. Kub, was given 30 days to file an appeal. In the meantime Mrs. Kub must remain in jail, the judge refusing her bail pending the appeal. The attorney attempted to excuse Mrs. Kub's action by saying that she fled because the jurors and prosecutors were responsible for "adverse publicity given to her" and because the jurors seemed more interested in her colored husband than in evidence relating to the police department.

"Mrs. Kub's failure to appear before the grand jury is an obstruction of justice," said Judge McGoorty. "The grand jury is an institution entitled to respect. Ordinarily I would give a sentence of six months under such circumstances, but because of this defendant's sex I believe four months will satisfy the law."

HUNT WOMAN KIDNAPED BY TWO GUNMEN

Missing 11 Days; Escort Quizzed by Police.

The county highway police last night were attempting to solve the mysterious disappearance of Miss Norma Newby, 36 years old, who has been missing from her home at 2706 Flournoy street since March 2. The element of mystery was brought out yesterday when Chief William F. Collins of the county police questioned a man who said that he and Miss Newby had been kidnaped by two bandits on the day she disappeared.

The man is Frank J. Murray, 47 years old, 1641 West Marquette road, a salesman, who said that he had been friendly with Miss Newby for seventeen years. He appeared at the county building yesterday and was questioned for more than five hours by Chief Collins and Assistant State's Attorney James Henry.

Tells Conflicting Stories.

Following the examination of Murray, Chief Collins said he was convinced that Murray had no knowledge of Miss Newby's whereabouts, although he had given the police several conflicting stories of the kidnaping. During the investigation two theories were advanced—that Miss Newby had been murdered or that she is being held captive by the bandits.

Although Murray said he was beaten by the bandits he had failed to report the incident to the police. Neither did he admit to the police until three days ago that he had been with Miss Newby.

Murray is married. Miss Newby, according to her mother, Mrs. Lillian Sheehan, was engaged to marry Arthur Dorion, a street car conductor.

Meets Woman in Loop.

On March 2, Murray told Chief Collins, he met Miss Newby at a loop corner. He was driving to the National Malleable Steel company in Melrose Park to make a business call, he said, and asked Miss Newby to go along.

As they were parking in front of the plant, he said, a man standing by another car approached them, waved a gun in their faces and told them to drive him west in Lake street. Another man who had been seated in the other car started his engine and followed them.

At Mannheim road, Murray said, the bandit in his car ordered him to turn north and they proceeded to Higgins road. After a drive of thirteen miles they came to the forest preserves, Murray said, and drove a short distance up a narrow road.

Woman and Bandits Vanish.

Here Murray was ordered to climb out of the car and the two bandits struck him several blows with the butts of their revolvers, according to his story. When he became conscious two hours later, he said, Miss Newby, the two bandits, and both cars had vanished.

Murray said that he walked to the highway, flagged a truck, and rode to Cicero, where he hired a cab and drove home. Suffering from the injuries inflicted by the bandits, he went to a hospital for treatment. The hospital authorities notified the police, but at that time Murray did not mention being with Miss Newby.

On March 3, the following day, Mrs. Sheehan reported her daughter's disappearance to the Melrose Park police. Murray still denied having been with Miss Newby, although his name had been given to the police by Mrs. Sheehan.

Search Forest Preserves.

The police have searched thirty thousand acres of forest preserve land without finding a trace of the missing woman.

Murray said that Miss Newby had threatened to tell his wife of their friendship if he quit seeing her, but he said he was certain that Miss Newby had nothing to do with the kidnaping. The woman has occasionally worked as a waitress in loop hotels, according to the police, and on the day preceding her disappearance was working at the Stevens hotel.

USES WANT ADS IN SWINDLE; FOUND GUILTY OF FRAUD

Aaron A. Parsons, 64 years old, who fraudulently represented himself as a wealthy mine owner to swindle persons who answered his advertisements for "secretaries and executives in a large corporation," was found guilty yesterday by Judge James J. Kelly in the Criminal court of operating a confidence game. If his motion for a new trial is overruled on March 27 he is liable to a sentence of 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary.

Parsons inserted some of his fraudulent advertisements in THE TRIBUNE. The prosecution was pressed by the better business bureau assisted by Attorney K. M. Hunt of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, attorneys for THE TRIBUNE. Assistant State's Attorneys George Lavin and Homer Dodge directed the case.

It is charged that Parsons interested those answering his advertisements in stock propositions or in investing in his supposed companies.

OLD CHURCH DAMAGED BY FIRE IN BALTIMORE; POE IS BURIED THERE

Baltimore, Md., March 13.—(AP)—Historic Westminster Presbyterian church, within the grounds of which is the grave of Edgar Allan Poe, the poet, was damaged by fire today.

Starting from a defective furnace, the flames wrecked the pulpit, destroyed the organ, and damaged a portion of the balcony.

The entire structure seemed doomed when firemen arrived, but the flames were confined largely to the basement. Beneath the floor of the basement lie the ancient graves and vaults of many former parishioners.

The white marker on Poe's grave, in a corner of the burial ground, was not damaged.

The damage, it was said, is covered by insurance.

REVELL KILLED BY PLUNGE; RITES SET FOR MONDAY

Funeral services for Alexander H. Revell, one of Chicago's leading merchants and a central figure in the city's growth, who was killed in a plunge from a window in his ninth floor suite in the Drake hotel yesterday, will be held Monday at 11 a. m. at the Fourth Presbyterian church. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery.

Mr. Revell was 73 years old and in recent years had suffered an affliction of his eyesight which had left him almost blind. It is the belief of Sergt. Charles Reynolds of the coroner's office and of the police who investigated the death that this affliction was the indirect cause of his tragic death.

How Death Occurred.

The pioneer merchant had been in general good health and spirits to the end, despite the ailment that beset him in late life, his friends stated yesterday. He arose early and went into his bath with Benjamin Holtz, a male nurse, who has attended him since his eyesight failed. Holtz left to aid in preparing breakfast, and when he returned fifteen minutes later he found the bathroom empty.

He looked out of the open window and discovered the body of Mr. Revell lying on the roof of the Drake dining room on the north section of the hotel facing the Oak street beach. It had bertled through the courtway between the two main sections.

The bathroom window is about two feet wide and the sill is but three feet from the floor. It was known that Mr. Revell's habit was to raise the window after completing his bath and the fact coupled with the presence of a loose rug below the window led investigators to believe that he had slipped while raising the window and fallen to his death.

Hold Inquest Today.

The body was removed to Klaner's undertaking rooms at 1253 North Clark street where an inquest, personally conducted by Coroner Herman N. Bundesen, will be held this morning.

For the last 30 years Alexander Revell has been regarded as a typical Chicago business man of large affairs. Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor jr., a lifelong friend and golfing companion, said yesterday that the story of his life is a wholly American story of a youth who, without benefit of formal education and finance, has forced his way to a position of influence and importance in the community.

Mr. Revell was born in 1858 within a stone's throw of the present site of the Board of Trade. He was the son of David James Revell, a grocer and real estate man who came to this country from Ireland in the early forties. His father's business was wiped out by the Chicago fire in 1871, throwing young Revell upon his own resources.

Sold Pictures of Generals.

His first commercial transaction on record was the selling of pictures of generals just after the civil war. He was only a small boy then, but the shrewdness of his character asserted itself. He promptly traded off all his pictures with unpronounceable names for those more suited to his elocutionary powers.

After his father's death Revell went to work delivering trunks from the Rock Island station and later hauled goods to and from auction houses. It was said of him that all was fish to his net. He watched the ways of business and began to buy and sell at auction sales. When dull times threatened he sold his horse and wagon and began selling goggles, which were a highly saleable item in the days when Chicago's business center was a heap of cinders.

Hit by Bank Failure.

Then he established a small grocery shop, after that a feed store. Occasionally he went back to the horse and wagon and feed business. Once he lost all his resources, $375, in a bank failure. By a shrewd deal in castile soap he regained that amount and reestablished himself.

In 1874 he began buying goods of all kinds in small lots and selling them at a small profit. He invested in coffee, hardware, books, furniture, soap, hats, anything available. He later was offered employment with the Chicago branch of A. T. Stewart & Co. of New York, but refused to accept because he was offered only $7 a week, whereas he thought he was worth $8.

At the age of 20 he opened a small store on what was then Fifth avenue in partnership with J. E. Geohegan. The sign adorning the door of this store, "Geohegan & Revell," attained some notoriety for it was facetiously pronounced "Go again and revel." This, according to his friend, Judge Taylor, illustrated his early theory that advertising was an essential factor in business, a belief held before advertising became widely popular.

Establishes Furniture House.

In 1879 he moved to ampler quarters and established A. H. Revell & Co., the furniture store which later brought him great wealth.

Newspaper clippings, brown with age, tell of Mr. Revell's leadership in reform movements and his early battles for an "unbossed" city hall. They also tell of his athletic prowess and his skill at golf, which brought him many honors here and abroad as an amateur. He continued to be a devotee of golf until his sight failed.

He served a term on the board of education and was once president of the Union League club. He was a friend and admirer of President Roosevelt and was often a guest at the White House during his administration.

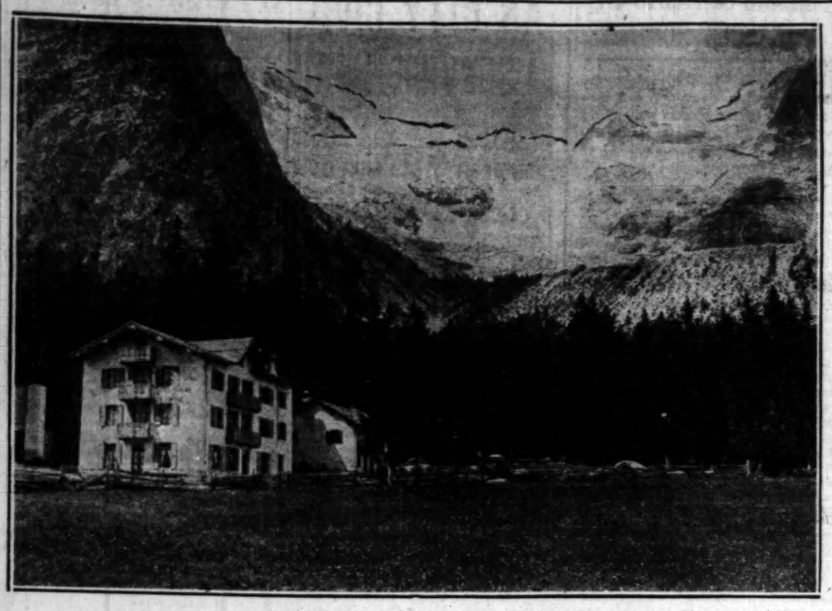

Widow, 3 Children Survive.

Mr. Revell married Maude Richardson in 1889. Besides his widow, he is survived by three children, Alexander H. Revell Jr., chairman of the board of the furniture company; Richardson Revell, and Mrs. Loring R. Hoover, who is on her way from her home in New York to attend the funeral.

Mr. Revell, in later years, traveled extensively, going abroad each summer. He was a member of numerous clubs, among them the Commercial, Onwentsia, Old Elm, Hamilton, Arts, and Opera clubs, and of many other golf and sporting clubs in other cities. He was a director of the Central Trust Company of Illinois and a trustee of Northwestern university. In 1908 France bestowed upon him the medal of the Legion of Honor.

Sixteen employés of Revell & Co., who have served Mr. Revell for many years, will act as pall bearers at his funeral.

WED FIVE YEARS AGO IN MEXICO; PLAN TO REMARRY IN U. S. NOW

Hollywood, Cal., March 13. — [Special.]—Eugene V. Brewster, one time millionaire magazine publisher, and Corliss Palmer, film actress who was married to him in Mexico five years ago, today took out a three day notice of intention to wed under American law.

Brewster said the ceremony would prevent any attack on legality of their status as man and wife.

Floods Add to Suffering in Quake Torn Jugo-Slavia

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, March 13.—(AP)—Rain which stained with bright yellow the hats and clothes of pedestrians fell on Belgrade today. The phenomenon was attributed to presence in the sky of dust lifted by recent earthquakes and borne northward by the wind.

Meanwhile rain of normal color but in unusual volume joined with the sudden melting of snows on the mountain heights to create elsewhere in Jugo-Slavia a serious flood situation. The River Save was out of its banks at many places, and in Mitrovitza the water had reached the record levels of the great floods of 1919 and 1924.

Villas were under water over a distance of twenty miles from Noya to Stara Gradishka. Peasants took their cattle from the pastures in barges, for all roads leading out of villages in the area were submerged.

Quake Shakes Tribune Writer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VALANDOVI, Jugo-Slavia, March 13.—This story is being typed on the top of a packing box, alongside a telegraph pole, helping to hold up a temporary tented telegraph station in one of the hardest hit towns in the earthquake area.

Across the street is a row of steel German bombproof tents, which have been rusting here since the Teuton invasion. They serve as excellent quake shelters. A few feet away lie the rusty barrels of two German field guns. A mule—a favorite means of transportation in these parts, sharing the honor with the bullocks—got his strap tangled in the vestiges of wartime barbed wire. These reminders have close connections with the earthquake.

The population, although homeless—not a single house being habitable—is living mostly in makeshift tents built of boards, shawls, shingles, sheets, or anything handy which would not be demolished by another temblor.

A Reminder of War.

One man, amusing his black eyed children while his wife was cooking the noon meal around a campfire in the back yard of a wrecked house when visited by THE TRIBUNE's correspondent, said: "Not so bad as war after all. Nor is it as bad as when the Turks used to shoot the Serbians in hundreds. The earthquake leaves us a chance to get out."

There goes another quake. Although light, it might mean the beginning of a heavy one. THE TRIBUNE's correspondent is cutting off in fear that something might happen to break off telegraph communications again.

Snowstorm Sweeps Latvia.

RIGA, Latvia, March 13.—(AP)—Railroad and highway traffic throughout Latvia was demoralized today by one of the heaviest snow falls in the memory of the country. At Liepaja in Courland a passenger train was derailed by a drift. The engine and a baggage car plunged down an embankment and the engineer and fireman were seriously injured.

Guatemala Hit by Shocks.

Guatemala City, March 13.—(AP)—Violent earth shocks, occurring at intervals since last night, have caused considerable alarm in Guatemala. In the department of Amatitlan almost continuous shocks were reported last night and most of the villagers slept in the streets. The volcano Pacaya was thought to be responsible for the shocks.

Youth Dies of Injuries Received in Auto Crash

Albert Rutkowski, 27 years old, 5291 South Mobile avenue, died at the county hospital yesterday from injuries received March 7 when he was struck by an automobile while crossing Archer avenue at Narragansett avenue. The driver of the car was Joseph Sharsarsky, 1145 West 67th street. This death raised the Cook county motor toll for the year to 233.

New York Savings Banks' Deposits Rise $40,270,729

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 14.—A net gain in savings deposits in 143 New York state savings banks of $40,270,729 was reported for February today by the Savings Bank Association of the State of New York. This compared with an increase of $19,985,592 in February, 1930, and with gains of $95,567,037 in January, 1931, and $74,796,764 in December, 1930. The gain during the last three months has been $210,634,530, compared with an increase during the twelve months of 1930 of $402,466,000. The increase in the metropolitan district during February amounted to $39,203,090.

HUGE LANDSLIDE SPLITS; MAY SAVE VILLAGES IN PATH

Three Tongued Fork Still Creeping Into Valley.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CHAMBERY, France, March 14.—Hundreds of homes, millions of dollars' worth of property, and possibly many human lives were saved today when "the 1931 avalanche," as the natives are already beginning to call it, split into three great rivers of earth above the menaced village of Le Chatelard.

The great landslide began yesterday when an entire range of hills began sliding down the slopes of Mont Blanc and other mountains of the Bauges range. Two villages, Michaud and Berges, were wiped out by the millions of tons of rock and mud. Michaud completely disappeared under a layer of earth 50 to 60 feet deep, while Berges was sheared off as by a razor.

Force of Slide Diminishes.

The avalanche is still sliding down inexorably to the lowlands, but its speed and force have been greatly diminished by the division. Also, the melting snow has rendered the mass more liquid, and it is now a three tongued torrent of soft mud, 25 feet deep. Each branch is more than half a mile wide.

The village of Le Chatelard, which seemed doomed last night, now seems safe, unless melting snow on the higher slopes adds to the volume of the slide or more hills are undermined by subterranean rivers. Many of the families who evacuated their homes in haste last night were returning tonight.

Town on an Island Pinnacle.

Le Chatelard is now perched on an island pinnacle. To the west, one arm of the avalanche is moving harmlessly over wild country above Aix-les-Bains, while to the east it is sliding at greatly reduced speed down into the evacuated village of Granges, for which some hope yet remains. Army engineers today dynamited a bridge near Granges in an effort to divert the slide into a mountain torrent, which, it is believed, is strong enough to carry the mass of earth away.

The main branch of the avalanche is still moving toward Le Chatelard, but, owing to its increased fluidity, it is now possible to exercise some control over its movement by clearing channels with dynamite to divert it, just as if it was an unruly river. All able bodied men in the district have been pressed into service and they have been reinforced by a regiment of troops from one of the border fortresses.

$1,000,000 Emergency Fund.

The ministry of interior today wired an emergency fund of nearly $1,000,000. In this wild mountain country, finding shelter for the homeless is a great problem and the authorities are worried, as the number of refugees is mounting. They now number nearly 200.

The following description of the avalanche was given today by an eyewitness who motored through the menaced district:

"On my arrival at Le Chatelard I found the inhabitants pouring out of their homes, carrying all their portable belongings and driving their animals before them along a winding road down to the lowlands. In the village of Granges indescribable confusion reigns. The new summer resort hotel at Milesine is being evacuated with the aid of the gendarmerie. From this spot it is impossible to see anything, but one hears a dull noise up that deadly gorge through which the avalanche will pour in a few hours.

Huge Trees Sheared Off.

"Successive explosions are heard. A few hundred yards above Granges one sees the first advancing waves of the avalanche. For a few moments it slowed down a little because it was spreading out. The slide was only moving about 60 feet an hour, but nothing can stand in the way to slow its push of millions of tons of rock and earth. I saw huge oak trees tremble like saplings, then crash down and be swallowed up by a mass of earth. In the path of the avalanche are little groups of houses, which, in a couple of hours, will be buried under 50 feet of earth, or carried along on top of the moving mass like floating houses, to be deposited in the valley miles below.

"The curious thing is that, except where precipices or cliffs intervene, one gets no impression of the stream of earth flowing down the hill. At first glance one can hardly see anything extraordinary, then you notice the hillocks gently moving up and down, and occasional rolling boulders, and here and there a little surface slide of loose earth."

A Night Letter from Ring Lardner

Tucson, Ariz., March 13.—[Special]—The Tucson sunshine association wanted Jimmy Walker to spend a day here on his way to the coast and, knowing that Jimmy and I both call New York home, even if we generally have to do it by long distance, they asked me to sign my name to the invitation. So Jimmy's train, which is scheduled to stop in Tucson fifteen minutes, stayed a whole quarter of an hour and I don't know whether it was due to his friendship for me or his natural fondness for the word "sunshine."

DROP GUN CASES AGAINST PAIR OF PUBLIC ENEMIES

Jack McGurn and Tony Accardo, public enemies and Capone henchmen, were freed yesterday on charges of carrying concealed weapons because of a recent Supreme court decision in the McGurn case. The case against McGurn was nolle prossed before Judge Ross C. Hall while that against Accardo was dismissed before Judge Joseph Burke.

McGurn was convicted by a jury last summer, but the Supreme court reversed the case because the detectives, who made the arrest, did not have a search warrant or reasonable grounds for making the arrest. The prosecutors announced they had no additional evidence and that it would be useless to go through another trial. Accardo was arrested at the same time as McGurn and the evidence was the same in his case.

CAREFUL SUICIDE LEAPS 14 FLOORS —NEARLY HITS 3

New York, March 13.—[Special.]—George R. Sander, 40, who apparently was a man of methodical habits, committed suicide today by jumping from a hotel window after taking pains to arrange that his death would give every one concerned the least trouble.

First of all, Mr. Sander obtained a room on the fourteenth floor of the hotel, obviously so that his leap would be from a point high enough to prove instantly fatal. Then he wrote out a complete report of his act for the police. After that he picked an hour when the streets are deserted.

Despite this last precaution, however, his plunge nearly proved disastrous for three persons. His body, hurtling down from its great height, plunged through the roof of a one-story restaurant and landed at the feet of two early morning breakfasters and a waiter.

WEST SIDE POLL SHOWS CERMAK LEADING 2 TO 1

Former City Hall Wards Change Attitude.

Pre-Campaign Poll

Candidate—	Prev. Vote.	Yester-day's Vote.	Totals to Date.	Pct. to Date.
Cermak [D].....	4,094	2,387	6,481	60.52
Thomp'n [R].	2,930	1,183	4,113	38.41
Stout [A].....	80	35	115	1.07
Totals	7,094	3,615	10,709	100.00

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The west side, where Mayor Thompson has claimed unusual strength, is for Anton J. Cermak, his Democratic rival, this time, according to THE TRIBUNE straw vote.

The poll in this section indicates that Thompson—if an election were held today—would lose the west side by a large majority. In the canvass, for one straw cast for Thompson, approximately two were marked for Cermak.

This poll was of street corners and confined to wards 20 to 27; 29 to 34 and 38. All of the area embraced in these wards is either normally Democratic or falls in the classification usually termed "controllable wards."

Eller and Galpin Territory.

The 20th is ruled by Morris Eller, city collector and ardent supporter of Thompson, and the 27th is looked upon as the political property of Homer K. Galpin, who is reported to have returned to Chicago to be the real manager of the Thompson campaign.

The result of yesterday's straw voting is summarized as follows:

Candidate and party—	Straws.	Pct.
Cermak [Dem.].....	2,387	66.31
Thompson [Rep.].....	1,183	32.72
Stout [A. Nat.].....	35	.97
Totals	3,615	100.00

The significance of these percentages can best be illustrated by presenting a like summary of a poll of 12,039 straw votes in these same wards in the 1927 mayoralty campaign. The two polls indicate that Thompson has lost about one-fourth of his Democratic followers in these wards. The poll of 1927, in these same wards, showed the following results:

Candidate, party—	Straws.	Pct.
Dever [Dem.].....	5,304	43.22
Thompson [Rep.].....	6,417	51.30
Robertson [Ind.].....	658	5.47
Totals	12,039	99.99

If the poll of yesterday proves to be indicative of the sentiment in the selected west side wards, Thompson faces a tremendous handicap in that territory. The large district to the west has long been a Thompson stronghold; but the poll indicates a change in sentiment. True, the campaign has not really opened; but a candidate starts with a disadvantage with public sentiment against him.

In one spot polled Cermak beat Thompson four to one, and in two others by a ratio of three to one.

Wards Placed in 2 Groups.

The wards canvassed were divided into two groups—one group comprising wards 20 to 27, both inclusive, and the other wards 29 to 34, both inclusive, and also ward 38. The segregation permits of a better analysis. The returns from each street corner in each group are as follows:

CITY SEES LARGEST CANDLE

Unique petition by the Chicago real estate board wheeled through streets to call attention to enrollment of private property owners for tax relief.

Burns for Tax Cut

What is claimed is the world's largest candle, a giant affair built by the Chicago Real Estate board, is being wheeled through the city to call attention to its enrollment of private property owners in the new property owners' division, organized to fight for tax relief. When filled with signatures the candle will be shipped to Springfield and drawn to the state capitol. It was in the lobby of the Morrison hotel yesterday.

WALES TO OPEN BRITAIN'S TRADE EXHIBIT TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, March 13.—The prince of Wales will fling open the doors to the greatest British trade show ever held outside the empire here tomorrow. His chief aid will be his brother, Prince George. The princes arrived in the Argentine capital by airplanes today from Mar del Plata, where they have been resting for their rôle as "salesmen for Britain."

Thousands will participate in the opening of the $20,000,000 trade exposition at 3 o'clock tomorrow. The prince of Wales will preside at the inauguration in the presence of Provisional President Jose Uriburu, members of the cabinet, the diplomatic corps, and 2,000 invited guests. After the ceremony the general public will be admitted.

The Canadian liner Prince Robert docked this morning, bringing a large Canadian delegation. British warships are in the harbor and British planes are stunting over Buenos Aires on the eve of Britain's drive to recapture first place in Argentina's foreign trade.

Minnesota Senate to Act on Gag Law Repealer

Minneapolis, Minn., March 13.—[Special.]—Senator C. H. Mackenzie, chairman of the general legislative committee in the Minnesota senate, announced today that his committee would meet at 1:30 p. m. next Thursday to take up the "newspaper suppression law" bill. The measure, repealing the "gag" law was passed last month by the house and has been in the committee's hands since that time.

JARECKI DIRECTS HUNT FOR FRAUD IN POLLING LISTS

Warns Politicians U. S. Can Prosecute, Too.

In accordance with his campaign to drive out dishonest polling officials and eliminate fraud from elections, County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki yesterday said that every effort is being made to uncover evidence of any alleged frauds committed at Tuesday's registration. A special staff of investigators will be on the job tonight when the judges and clerks of election revise the lists of registered voters.

JUDGE JARECKI. [Moffett Photo.]

At the same time Judge Jarecki, who is head of Cook county's election machinery, warned unscrupulous politicians that the federal grand jury as well as a state grand jury can prosecute any corruption of the ballot box. The government can take a hand, it was said, because any fraud at the polls violates the constitutional right of a citizen to have an equitable voice in the choice of public officials.

Close Scrutiny Promised.

"Any violation or negligence by judges and clerks in connection with the revision, as well as the registration and canvass, will be closely scrutinized and any irregularities will be dealt with summarily," Judge Jarecki said.

"The fraud department of the board of election commissioners is proceeding against all fraud cases and a special staff of attorneys, headed by former Gov. Edward F. Dunne, attorney for the board, will settle any disputes arising at the polling places."

Several cases of alleged fraud at the Feb. 24 primary election have been uncovered and will be prosecuted in Judge Jarecki's court next Friday. Three judges and two clerks of election from the 41st precinct of the 27th ward are in jail awaiting trial and more arrests are expected.

Five Arrested After Inquiry.

The five officials were arrested as the result of an investigation which began immediately after their count was reported. Out of 308 registered voters in the precinct, which is in the heart of the flophouse district, 308 votes were given to Mayor Thompson and none to Judge Lyle or the other Republican mayoralty candidates.

Unable to raise bonds of $2,500 each, the five officials were put in jail. Conviction of fraud will carry a sentence of up to a year in jail. The 27th is Homer K. Galpin's ward and the 41st precinct is said to be under the control of "Dago Lawrence" Mangano.

A majority of the reported cases of fraud were found to be untrue, Judge Jarecki said. The three or four cases that are being prosecuted resulted from a careful sifting of charges which came from the city's 2,987 precincts. Some 15,500 judges and clerks are on duty at the polls in these precincts.

It is expected that some 40,000 names will be erased from the total of 1,465,392 which were on the polling books Tuesday night.

A 10 Year Desert Murder Mystery Solved by Note

San Bernardino, Cal., March 13.—[Special.]—A ten year murder mystery was solved in the desert near here today with the discovery of two notes stuffed in an empty cartridge near a pile of bones. One note identified the bones as those of Don Allen, a prospector missing since 1921. It was signed "Frank J. Laptino," and stated that "Allen is now a has-was. I am sorry, but I warned him. I have the feeling I never will be caught." The other note warned Allen to stay away from a gold claim in the Cowhide valley. Laptino never has been heard from.

BALLOT COMMISSION HEARS CONTESTS ON CAUCUS NOMINEES

The hearing on objections to nominations for the mayoralty and other city offices by the caucus method and to the Socialist party's nominating petition was begun yesterday by the election commissioners sitting as a contest board.

The morning and afternoon sessions were taken up with candidates for city clerk, city treasurer, and Municipal court judge. The evening was devoted to the Socialist ticket, headed by John M. Collins for mayor. All the cases were taken under advisement. The cases of four other candidates for mayor will be heard today.

Except for allegations of legal flaws in procedure, the general line of attack by Attorneys John F. Tyrrell and Cornelius J. Harrington was the contention that the legislature did not contemplate permitting the nominee of a small meeting—possibly including only two or three persons—the same ballot rights as nominees in direct primaries, such as those of the Republican and Democratic parties, in which hundreds of thousands of votes are cast.

Ernest Stout, one of the minor candidates, alleged in his answer that the correct name of the Democratic nominee for mayor is not Anton Cermak. The Cermak family records show that the nominee's father was naturalized as Anton Cermak in 1884, his name being the same as the nominee's. It was predicted the board will expunge this attack, which was suspected of coming from city hall sources.

PRESS PROPOSAL FOR U. S. FOREST PROJECT IN STATE

Izaak Walton Chiefs Praise Plan.

Establishment of national forest preserves in Illinois, as advocated by State Representative William Z. Black of Champaign in his proposed bill to give the national government the right to acquire Illinois woodland, has been approved by the Izaak Walton league of Illinois, according to announcement yesterday by Dr. P. R. Blodgett of Chicago Heights, state president.

William G. Thon, president of the Chicago chapter of the league, also expressed approval and said that as a member of the state legislature, representing the Oak Park or 23d district, he would take an active part in working for the passage of the bill.

Long League Policy.

Dr. Blodgett, for three years president of the Illinois league, said the organization always has advocated the extension and preservation of the state's forests and said there were at least 100,000 acres of suitable wooded park sites and preserves in the southern tier of Illinois counties.

The state should do everything in its power to encourage the national government to establish federal parks and reserves here, Dr. Blodgett said.

Cites County Preserve.

Representative Thon said that conservation of all forms of outdoor wild life in America was the principal object of the league, and that anything the state could do toward furthering such work would have the support of the Waltonians.

He cited the establishment of the Cook county forest preserve district as an example of what could be done by the state and federal government on a larger scale in other parts of the state.

Erases Mixed Jury Verdict on a Kane County Robber

The first verdict returned in a criminal case in Kane county by a mixed jury of women and men was nullified yesterday. James Slaughtery, 38 years old, who was convicted of robbery by the jury and whose punishment was fixed at one year to life in prison, was granted a new trial by Circuit Judge John K. Newhall at Geneva on his plea that he had been improperly identified through a photograph. However, Slaughtery pleaded guilty to robbery without a gun immediately on receiving the new trial, and was sentenced to prison for one to ten years.

AMES REMOVED AS CITY CIVIL SERVICE HEAD

Thompson Acts in Row Over Police List.

Mayor Thompson yesterday announced the "resignation" of Maj. Carlos Ames as president of the city civil service commission. A disagreement with Thompson over the standings of various policemen on the recently posted civil service list for promotion to sergeancies was reported in the city hall to be the cause of Ames' departure.

Although Thompson announced that Ames had resigned it was learned from other sources that he had not been asked for his resignation, but had been summarily ousted. Last night Maj. Ames declared that the promotional list of patrolmen was posted on a merit basis without political preference being shown.

"I'll stand on that list, and I welcome any investigation of it," said Maj. Ames in North Carolina, where he has been on vacation. He denied that preference had been shown to any policemen who have political friends and cut his vacation short to leave for Chicago to defend the list.

Sugarman Named to Post.

Announcement of Ames' resignation was made by Thompson in a letter appointing George Sugarman, chief assistant city prosecutor, to succeed Ames. Sugarman, who is chief de gare of the Forty and Eight division of the American Legion in Chicago, has been active in veterans' organizations. He is a member of the Republican organization of Building Commissioner Paschen in the 49th ward.

The letter appointing Sugarman followed a communication sent to Acting Police Commissioner Alcock in which Thompson said he had received complaints about the police list.

Indications that the list may undergo some change were seen in the actions of Sugarman and Alcock. Sugarman asked Corporation Counsel Ettelson for a ruling on his authority to investigate the marking of the examination papers, and Alcock started an investigation ordered by Thompson.

Pat Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson, denied reports that he is intending to take the list before the special grand jury. He said that he is investigating charges of fraud in the examination of policemen that preceded the posting of the list, but that unless he finds evidence he would not ask the jury to take action.

Complaints Laid to Politicians

In the city hall it was said that the complaints of Thompson had originated with politicians whose protégés on the police force had not been favored by a high standing. It was pointed out that three members of the police quartet which has been active in Thompson's campaign failed to pass the examination.

Among other policemen, who were said to be disappointed because of assurances given them that they would receive high marks, were included two investigators for Alcock, the secretaries to John Norton, chief of detectives, and Lawrence Rafferty, deputy chief of detectives, and two policemen assigned as guards to City Sealer Dan Serritella, Capone lieutenant.

Because of the commotion over the list, Roche asked and received assurance from Alcock that no policemen will be certified from the list to the positions of sergeants.

Roche O. K.'s His Ratings.

A letter was written by Roche also to James Osborne, secretary of the civil service commission, asking that the efficiency ratings given to the men from Roche's office who had taken the examination be sent to him. After examining the ratings Roche said they were fair and in accordance with his recommendations.

The efficiency marks carry weight in determining the final grade of a candidate for promotion, Ames explained. Under a new system, Ames had obtained the efficiency marks direct from the commanding officers of the policemen instead of taking them from the police commissioner.

"It is impossible for any one to know the efficiency of the [illegible] men who took the examination," Ames said. "So, on the advice of police experts and after consulting with a number of police captains, I asked the commanding officers to grade the policemen as follows: Poor, fair, good and very good. These ratings were then translated into figures."

The action of Thompson in announcing Ames' resignation came as a surprise to politicians who remembered that Thompson had tried to oust Ames sheriff last November. It was followed by rumors that Edward Hanmark, Democratic member of the commission, may resign or be ousted.

JOLIET WARDEN DEFENDS PRISON; WELCOMES QUIZ

Tells Problems of Ruling 4,700 Convicts.

Maj. Henry C. Hill, warden of the penitentiaries at Joliet and Stateville, said yesterday that he would accept full responsibility for conditions in the two prisons and that he welcomes investigation.

Awaiting a visit from an investigating committee of five members of the Illinois house of representatives next Thursday, Warden Hill invited an inspection of the penitentiaries. He denied the charges of some critics that convicts were being pampered. He defended the talking pictures and the nightly radio programs in the prison to make life a bit more enjoyable for his charges.

The warden also answered other critics, who say his treatment of the convicts has been too harsh. He defended the practice of handcuffing prisoners to the bars of solitary cells as a humane and necessary punishment.

Tells of His Problems.

"It's a business," said Maj. Hill, "this management of 4,700 convicts. If we are too good to them they would trample upon us; if we are too harsh with them they might riot or mutiny, and we'd have to kill them. We try not to go too far either way."

There isn't enough work to keep all the convicts busy all the time, and their idleness gives a problem, but one that is being met every day, the warden said. The men have a few privileges, including the opportunity of mingling and conversing freely.

Cells in the Joliet prison are clean. Each has an electric light. There are two berths. Each cell has a mirror and—most important—a calendar. The prisoner spends an average of twelve hours a night in his cell, and he may read and smoke and listen to the radio till 10 o'clock.

Shave Twice a Week.

Twice a week he is shaved in the prison barber shop, instituted by Warden Hill, and once a month he has a hair cut. Twice a week, on shave day, he is compelled to take a shower bath, and on those days he receives clean underclothing, handkerchiefs, socks, etc.

Every two weeks he may send out one letter, censored, although he may receive as much mail, censored, as comes to him. Twice a month he may have visitors and they may bring him gifts, including food, which must be eaten then and there in the presence of a guard.

The average work day is six hours. During the winter there is no work in the quarry, and the convicts may work in either the shoe factory—where shoes are made only for Illinois state institutions—or in the furniture factory, or at any of the other odd tasks through which the wheels of prison life are kept moving.

Wear Assorted Clothing.

When released from the daily labor the convicts march back to their cell blocks. They wear assorted garments, baggy khaki trousers of one color or another, jumper or coat of grayish blue, and a cap of the same color. Some look neat and clean, others unkempt.

"It's the youngsters who give the most trouble," Warden Hill avers. "A hardboiled criminal, gangster, or hoodlum is most likely to be a model prisoner. Most prisoners learn after a few years that good behavior is the best policy.

"Mere solitary confinement has no real terror for some prisoners. But it's the only way we can punish them."

The keeper of the solitary cells explains that he never manacles the hands of a convict to the bars above their heads. That method was abolished many years ago, he says, along with the lockstep. The convicts' hands are fastened waist high to the bars and then a heavy wooden outer door is closed. This door has an opening through which the keeper may peer in occasionally after unfastening a catch.

Punished Twice a Day.

"I usually cuff them so a tall man may rest once in a while by kneeling," the keeper stated. "For a small man I naturally cuff his hands to a lower cross bar than for a taller one. I look in on them now and then."

This handcuffing punishment is given four hours in the morning and four hours in the afternoon, after which there is a plank and a blanket for the convict to sleep on. The former practice of cuffing the convict for another three hours in the evening was discontinued. Physicians inspect the men in solitary every day and at any sign of weakness they are released, according to Maj. Hill.

The warden's job pays $6,000 a year and maintenance for himself and family in the prison building. Guards and keepers are paid from $115 to $150 a month, with meals and sleeping quarters if desired. Warden Hill sees none of his men is allowed to drink because in frequenting drinking places they might meet persons who would subject them to the temptation of smuggling articles or messages in and out of prison to effect escape.

Igoe Praises Maj. Hill.

Representative Michael L. Igoe, minority leader of the house and Democratic national committeeman, who is one of the five legislators picked to investigate the prison, issued a statement yesterday as follows:

"While inhuman treatment is not to be tolerated, we cannot lose sight of the fact that the inmates of the penitentiary have violated the laws of society and therefore are not to be considered pampered guests of the state. Regulations are necessary and it follows there must be means of discovering infractions. I know Warden Hill and have confidence in him."

U. S. Agents Arrest Pair, Seize Counterfeit Plates

Walter Baker, 25 years old, and Francis Boyle, 23, were arrested in their room at 906 Edgecomb place early yesterday by secret service agents under Capt. Thomas J. Callahan, who found twenty-three molds for counterfeiting 50 cent pieces and plates for counterfeiting $10 bills. Capt. Callaghan said the men had been passing the bogus half dollars to street car conductors.

DR. JOHN WILSON IS AWARDED THE NICHOLS MEDAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 13.—[Special.]—The William H. Nicholas medal of the New York section of the American Chemical society for 1931 tonight was awarded before a gathering of several hundred chemists, to Dr. John Arthur Wilson, of Milwaukee, Wis., "for outstanding achievement in celloid chemistry, applied particularly to leather and sanitation."

The presentation was made by Dr. J. C. Davidson, of the Carbide and Carbon Chemicals corporation, chairman of the jury of award, and past president of the New York section.

Dr. Wilson Responds.

Prof. Arthur E. Hill, of New York university, chairman of the section, presided. Dr. Wilson responded with an address on "leather, sanitation and celloid chemistry," during which he dwelt largely on recently developed new methods in sewage disposal for large cities.

The new methods, Dr. Wilson said, succeed in converting sewage into a fertilizer rich in nitrogen and phosphoric acid, in a great demand at about $20 a ton, and into water "purer than the drinking water of many cities." The results are achieved, he explained, by science supplying weapons to the protozoa, the animal germs present in the sewage, with which to exterminate the bacteria, or the vegetable germs present.

How Fertilizer Results.

There is a perpetual warfare going on, Dr. Wilson said in substance, between the untold millions of animal and vegetable germs. The bacteria constitutes the pernicious element and in the absence of a sufficient supply of oxygen would win the battle against the animal germ. If there is abundant oxygen the protozoa wins, and the results is purification.

"When all the bacteria have been eaten by the protozoa," the lecturer continued, "there is nothing else for them to survive on and they themselves die, settling into the body of the purified sludge and furnishing much of the nitrogen of the resulting fertilizer."

AKRON WOMAN FLYER SOARS TO 33,000 FEET, NEW ALTITUDE MARK

Akron, O., March 13.—(AP)—Miss Frankie Renner, 30, business executive and airplane saleswoman, took a day off from her regular routine today and piloted an airplane to an altitude much greater than any other woman has reached.

She estimates that her Waco biplane went up 33,000 feet, greater by 3,000 feet than the goal at which she aimed in order to break the official altitude record for women. Miss Ruth Nichols claims to have gone 30,064.

Miss Renner, who was taught to fly in 1927, and who has 200 hours to her experience, had little trouble, she said, during the 4 hours and 4 minutes her trip consumed.

"The plane and motor worked perfectly," she said. "The weather was clear and the visibility good. The clouds were scattered and very high. My oxygen supply worked perfectly. There was no trouble with that. There was a little blood in my mouth and my ears crackled some.

"When I got up there—I believe it was about 50 below zero—the mist on my goggles froze and it was hard to see. I had on three suits of heavy underclothing, two sweaters, my flying suit, and oxygen helmet. I had two pairs of woolen stockings and my flying moccasins on my feet."

She sent the barograph and other instruments from the plane to Washington for calibration. Her altimeter stopped registering at 33,000 feet. Weather bureau officials estimated the uppermost height of the clouds which she went above to be 33,000 feet.

REVEAL FAKED COLLAPSES IN DANCE CONTEST

Nurse Tells How Show "Is Made Interesting."

The faking of collapses by contestants in the White City dance marathon "to make the show more interesting," was revealed yesterday at a hearing before Master in Chancery Robert C. O'Connell.

The hearing is being conducted on the petition of the White City Amusement company for an injunction restraining the police department, acting under the city health ordinances, from interfering with the marathon, which has been in progress since Aug. 30. Intimation that the collapses are faked came out in the the testimony of Miss Ethel Abbott, 6244 South Park avenue, the day nurse attending the contestants, under cross-examination by Assistant Corporation Counsel James N. Kearns.

Calls Collapses Fakes.

"Have you ever seen any collapses on the dance floor?" asked Kearns after Joseph A. Ricker, representing the amusement company, had examined the witness regarding the health of the contestants.

"Yes," replied Miss Abbott, "but they're fakes, that's all. They plot to get 20 minutes out to rest. They try to put on a show to make it more interesting."

Q.—What do you mean by a show? A.—We tell them to fake so the marathon will be more interesting for the public. We carry them off the floor to their quarters. They laugh and carry on and sometimes some one has to come to tell them to keep quiet.

Collapses Are Frequent.

Q.—How often are these collapses? A.—I have seen them as often as three times a week.

Q.—How do you know they're faked? A.—I go back to their quarters with them.

Q.—Have you seen any collapses that are really physical collapses. A.—No.

Albert Watson, a judge of the marathon, denied knowledge of faked collapses.

"As a judge do you make any effort to determine if a collapse is a fake?" asked Mr. O'Connell.

"I get up from where I sit in the middle of the floor and look at them and order the trainers to take them off the floor," Watson replied. "If they are faking it has never been brought to my attention." The hearing will be resumed next Thursday.

Australian Cabinet Saved from Defeat by Five Votes

Latham, leader of the opposition, moved the motion in the house of representatives last Friday, accusing Labor Premier Scullin's government of vacillation and failure to reduce expenditure.

MINNEAPOLIS CHICAGO ST. PAUL

JURY DECIDES DENISON'S TRUNK HAD NO RUM IN IT

So Ex-Congressman Plans Trip Around World.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—Edward E. Denison, former representative from Marion, Ill., was acquitted in the District Supreme court this Friday the 13th of the charge of having violated the national prohibition act.

It took the jury one hour and three ballots to agree that the former congressman, returning from a congressional junket to Panama two years ago really had got free entry of the port for a trunkful of fragile dishes and not for the fragrant Scotch and gin which prohibition agents a few days later lifted out of their protecting straw from a similar trunk in his room at the house office building.

Wizardry of Trunks.

Even as he was thanking the jury for their belief in this wizardry of trunks that had brought him all the woe Mr. Denison announced that within a week he intends to pack up the selfsame baggage and start off on another trip, this time around the world. It will not be on governmental business, for Mr. Denison, after sixteen years in the house, was defeated at the last election.

That defeat, he explained in the courtroom this afternoon, had nothing whatever to do with his constituents wondering how dry Denison could be accused of toting leaky luggage.

"My home folks, down in the 25th Illinois district," said Mr. Denison, "have always had faith in me. But I am glad I got this legal vindication from a jury; very glad. The facts have been known to the government and to the prohibition bureau for some time. This has been a persecution not a prosecution.

But the prosecution didn't have much faith in the defense that a New York expressman must have switched trunks on the dock and delivered one filled with Spey-Royal Scotch, instead of Royal Doulton china.

Trunk Without a Key.

"You've got a fairy story in this case," shouted Assistant Prosecuting Attorney John J. Sirica. "It's the fairy story of those dishes."

In the closing arguments, the main fight came down to this: If, at noon, prohibition men enter your office, point to a trunk, say they want to open it because they believe it contains liquor, and then leave to return at 8 that evening when you must produce the key, what would you do if you were guilty; what if you were innocent?

Why He Kept Trunk.

Defense Counsel William E. Leahy insisted that Mr. Denison proved his innocence by not getting rid of the trunk.

Prosecuting Attorney Irvin Goldstein insisted that it would have aggravated the offense for Mr. Denison to have disposed of the trunk; that he couldn't have opened it, for it still was sealed with an express seal; and that he did the best thing he could, he produced a key which, he said, was the right key. And it didn't fit.

"Why," said Attorney Goldstein, "he had time to go out and get 100 keys that didn't fit."

Picks Up Bottle of Scotch.

Defense Attorney Leahy picked up a bottle of Scotch, pointed to the typewritten label which the prohibition agent, apparently after some discussion and reconsideration, had placed upon its side, and he said:

"The verdict is written on this bottle—'an unidentified offender.'"

And so former Representative Denison walked out a free man, just as Representative M. Alfred Michaelson, also of Illinois, walked out a free man in Key West, Fla., May 8, 1929. Congressman Michaelson, also returning from a vacation, also received the freedom of the port. He had six trunks; one of them leaked. Twelve bottles were lifted out; the thirteenth, broken in pieces, leaked its way out.

Mr. Michaelson's brother-in-law, Walter Gramm of Chicago, stepped forward into the record, claimed the liquid baggage, and drew a $1,000 fine.

GIRL'S WISH FREES 120

Opens Prison Doors

BOGOTA, Colombia, March 13.—(AP)—A patriotic wish of Maria Olaya, 17 year old daughter of the Colombian president, has come true.

Last December, during the international observance of the centennial of Simon Bolivar, South American liberator, she presented a public petition to her father asking that petty criminals in federal prisons of Colombia be liberated.

Prime Minister Restrepo announced today that the government had granted freedom to 120 such prisoners. Miss Olaya is now studying in Rome.

REINSTATE 15 STUDENTS NAMED IN RUM SCANDAL

Minnesota U. Yields to State Senate.

St. Paul, Minn., March 13.—(AP)—Several University of Minnesota farm school students, suspended yesterday for drinking, will be granted their diplomas, some will be required to perform additional scholastic work, and two, who were expelled, will not be reinstated.

This was the tentative agreement reached today after the senate of the Minnesota legislature appointed a special committee of four to confer with the school faculty in an effort to have the ban removed from 17 students dismissed yesterday. The number of first and second offenders had not been determined and names were not announced.

Senator A. J. Rockne announced the agreement after a conference between Dean E. E. Nicholson of the university and the senate committee, which was appointed after the legislative body sharply criticized the faculty's action and considered a resolution calling for a general investigation of college drinking.

Senator Rockne said the two students who were expelled on charges of bootlegging would not be reinstated. Of the other fifteen, those who are first offenders will receive diplomas, probably two or three months after commencement. The second offenders will be required to do additional scholastic work.

FROM CAMPUS BOOTLEGGER HE TURNS TO SLEUTH

Lexington, Ky., March 13.—(AP)—McCord Christie, University of Kentucky student, testified tonight he was a campus bootlegger last year but became a federal witness in liquor cases at the beginning of the present school year.

Max Colker, Kentucky football player, was on trial before Commissioner C. N. Wiard on a charge of intimidating and impending a federal witness. He was granted a continuance when his attorney claimed he was not liable to prosecution unless he knew at the time of the alleged offense that Christie was serving as a witness and asked an opportunity to obtain evidence.

FRANCE MAY FREE U. S. BEAUTY IN SLAYING OF MATE

Find Evidence She Shot Him in Self-Defense.

NICE, France, March 13.—(AP)—French authorities sent today to St. Louis and Philadelphia, former homes of Mrs. Charlotte Nash Nixon-Nirdlinger, for character evidence which may determine whether charges shall be brought against her for the killing of her husband.

Magistrate Vachier, who will decide whether to release or place charges against the young wife, said tonight it might be several weeks before he concluded his examination of the shooting, and it was indicated that Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger might be held in jail until he reached a decision.

Fail to Shake Her Story.

The young beauty clung, against all efforts of police to break it down, to her story that she fired in self-defense Wednesday night when she killed the wealthy Philadelphia theater man, who was 28 years older than she. Her story was strengthened by the day's developments.

"It was he or I," she repeated in her cell, "and something was bound to happen."

Officials abandoned their effort to shatter her version of the killing when they found in the Nixon-Nirdlinger apartment a revolver which they said had been her husband's. It tended, they conceded, to prove her contention that she was in fear of her life when her husband leaned over her in bed and grasped her throat after accusing her of having an Italian lover.

Reported to Be Remorseful.

In the jail which shut her from friends with whom she lately frolicked along the Riviera, the 26 year old wife, a St. Louis beauty of a decade ago and runner up at the Atlantic City beauty pageant in 1923, was "remorseful and weeping for her children," said a French official who visited her.

The two Nixon-Nirdlinger children—a son of three and a baby daughter not yet two years old—have been with a nurse since Wednesday night in two rooms of the apartment where their father was killed, while detectives ransacked the rest of the suite for evidence.

The Swedish nurse, Irmo Stolt, who will be the chief witness for the defense if her mistress is brought to trial, visited the prison today with the American consul, Robertson Honey, and took fresh linen to Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger.

Nurse Accuses Slain Man.

"Every quarrel was started by her husband," the nurse said as she left the jail. "Every one was without cause. She's beautiful, and he couldn't stand having a man look at her, even when he was with her.

"They always attended cabarets and public places together, and it was seldom she left the house alone. When the police finish tracking down her movements they'll find out how true this is."

Consul Honey helped Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger to engage Attorney Bonifacio as her counsel. Louis Gassin, renowned French criminal lawyer, will assist in the defense if charges are brought against her.

Relatives of the slain theater manager are expected to come to Nice next week from New York to take charge of the children.

Congressman Offers Aid.

St. Louis, Mo., March 13.—(AP)—Congressman L. C. Dyer of St. Louis today telegraphed Secretary of State Stimson asking him to cable the American consul at Nice, France, to learn what assistance could be given to Mrs. Charlotte Nash Nixon-Nirdlinger, under arrest there for the slaying of her wealthy husband.

"I wish to have the consul ascertain whether she has an able lawyer, and under what circumstances she can be released on bail, and if she is in need of finances, and how much, so that whatever money she needs can be transferred to Nice for her."

Dyer said he would personally guarantee all expenses in connection with his request. Dyer's interest in the case followed appeals to him by relatives of Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger here.

BOOTLEGGER 'FIXERS' START TO PRISON TO SERVE SENTENCES

Indianapolis, Ind., March 13.—[Special.]—Unsuccessful in their attempt to have a higher United States court review their case, Olin R. Holt and Ora C. Butler, both of Kokomo, alleged promoters of the "Hoosier Protective association," an organization guaranteeing protection of bootleggers, were taken to federal penitentiary at Leavenworth today to begin serving sentences imposed on them here—Butler a year and a day, and Holt eighteen months.

Butler, former sheriff of Howard county, and Holt, an attorney, who ran for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in 1928, were said to have collected weekly dues from a large group of liquor law violators in exchange for promised protection.

Last September Butler was convicted on a charge of violating the national prohibition act and was sentenced to thirty days in jail.

Both men were alleged to have Ku Klux Klan support in politics.

VETERAN SLAIN IN BACK YARD OF STORE; 2 HELD

Police and the coroner's office last night were trying to solve the fatal shooting early yesterday of Eugene E. Plummer, 34 years old, 2534 West 68th street, world war veteran and father of three children. He was shot by John and Pius Matkus, butchers, of 6801 South Artesian avenue, in the rear of their place of business.

At the inquest conducted by Deputy Coroner Henry Laffan the brothers asserted they fired when they found Plummer prowling in their yard and believed him to be a chicken thief. They said burglars had been stealing chickens from them recently, and for protection they had installed an electric alarm. The alarm sounded, they testified, and the shooting resulted.

Deputy Coroner Laffan continued the inquest to March 20 for further investigation. The Matkus brothers were ordered held. According to Mrs. Katherine Plummer, widow of the slain man, her husband was temporarily out of work, but the family was not in need, being supported by her earnings as a stenographer.

PRESIDENT RUBIO VETOES PLAN TO ADMIT RUSSIANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, March 13.—President Rubio today took two important steps to relieve the ever increasing problem of unemployment. His first was to veto a project for colonization of certain undeveloped lands by Slavic farmers from Russia. His second was an offer to turn over two large haciendas for farming purposes to assist several thousand railroad men thrown out of work by the readjustment of the national railways.

Aaron Sapiro of Chicago, an organizer, had received permission from the departments of agriculture and interior to colonize farming areas for the American Slavic Colonization Trust, Inc., but the president killed the immigration project.

KIDNAP JEWELER AND ROB SAFE OF $750,000 GEMS

Bandits Force Him to Give Vault Combination.

Palm Beach, Fla., March 13.—(AP)—Robbers, who had the key to the door and combination of the safe, entered the Palm Beach branch of Charlton & Co., New York jewelers, last night, and escaped with loot estimated at $750,000. Some officials said the total might reach $1,000,000.

Otto Wegener, manager and trusted employé of the firm for 20 years, told authorities he gave the key and combination to three of four men who kidnaped him last night and threatened his life unless he obeyed their commands.

Details of Story Vary.

No charges had been made tonight but Sheriff R. C. Baker said Wegener and D. H. Odum, night watchman at the store, were being questioned. The sheriff said some details of Wegener's story varied.

Diamonds and other gems were said to have composed the bulk of the loot which was removed from the Worth avenue store in the shadow of the exclusive Everglades club and palatial winter homes.

Wegener said he was seized in front of his hotel in West Palm Beach by persons who called him "Otto." He was taken to a vacant house in southern West Palm Beach, where he was gagged and tied to the sink in a deserted kitchen after being forced to give up the key and combination.

Slips His Bonds and Escapes.

The manager asserted he was held prisoner there until early today, when his guard left for 40 minutes and he managed to extricate himself and report to officers.

"We know you have a boy going to college and have something to live for," Wegener quoted one of the men saying to him. "You won't be harmed if you give us this combination."

A member of the firm said a reward of $25,000 would be given to any one furnishing information to lead to the capture and conviction of the robbers. He said a larger reward would be posted for recovery of the loot.

California Love Mart Girl Given $2 Hat, She Reveals

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 13.—[Special.]—The story of Camilla Clark, a high school girl who trusted her mother's false friend, started the revelations which rounded up the gang of Hollywood white slave procurers and brought charges against millionaires, it became known today.

Camilla Clark's story was told to the district attorney, even before the stories of Clarence Tauber, aged 16; Helen Scott, 15, and now in a hospital; Alice Blake, 16, and Helen Livingston.

She will be the principal witness when the cases charging statutory offenses, conspiracy to abuse minor girls, and contributing to delinquency of under age girls are pushed, here and in San Diego, against the five persons already arrested.

Five Persons Accused.

These defendants include Olive Clark Day, 24 year old mistress of the Hollywood gang of procurers, and the woman about whom Camilla Clark's story revolves; William Jobelmann, the Day woman's partner in illicit traffics; Alexander Pantages; John P. Mills, and Jesse Shreve. The last three are accused as being well paying debasers of the high school girls whom Miss Day and Jobelmann provided.

For her experiences in submitting while, she says she was dazed, Camilla Clark was given a $2 hat and a cheap coat, she says.

According to the story as recounted today, Camilla told the district attorney that Olive Clark Day lived for a while at the home of her mother, Mrs. Ruth Clark, and sister, Doris, in Hollywood. Although names of all the women were Clark no relationship exists.

One day last September, according to the story told officers, Olive Clark Day invited Camilla to drive to San Diego with her and William Jobelmann.

Visit Fine Home, She Says.

"We went to a fine home on Point Loma," Camilla Clark is reported as informing the district attorney. "Olive told me it was the home of a friend of hers. We stayed that night."

Next day, according to the girl's story, a man introduced as "Bill Martin" came to the house, and after she accepted a glass of what she thought was a harmless beverage she said she became dizzy, lay down, and the man Bill approached.

"Then," the story runs, "Bill went away, and Olive came and said she was sorry and later bought me a new hat. I still trusted Olive, so when she came to me in October and said Bill was sorry and wanted to tell me and straighten things out, I agreed to go to San Diego again. They made some tea and I drank some and became dizzy and the same thing happened to me that had happened before."

Book Refers to Girl.

Miss Day brought some books to the Clark home, saying she wanted to keep them from Jobelmann. Camilla Clark's brother-in-law saw a passage in one which read: "Bill threatens to tell truth about Camilla."

Another read, "I think it will be all right if we get Camilla drunk."

The brother-in-law went to the district attorney's office.

Miss Day has not been seen or heard from since she was liberated on $5,000 bail, pending hearing of charges. Jobelmann remains in jail.

GENERAL IRWIN IS LAID TO REST AT WEST POINT

Soldier Buried in Grave Beside Father's.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

West Point, N. Y., March 13.—[Special.]—Maj. Gen. George Leroy Irwin was buried here today in the military academy cemetery, an historic mountain guarded spot where many of the nation's distinguished soldiers rest.

There were gray clouds in the sky and a haze over the hills during the impressive military service in the quaint old cadet chapel, and the wheels of the black-draped caisson bearing the casket crunched over unmelted snow patches as it followed the winding path to the burial plot.

Thirteen minute guns were fired, the burial service was read, and the coffin was lowered into its grave, after which taps was sounded, three volleys of musketry fired, and cannon boomed a major general's salute.

Sun Breaks Through Clouds.

The sun broke through the clouds and the mist over the hills above the Hudson lifted as the last military honor was concluded. Tonight Gen. Irwin rests under a mound of flowers beside his father, Brig. Gen. Barnard John Dowling Irwin, who died in 1917. Nearby granite shafts mark the graves of Gen. Winfield Scott, Maj. Gen. George W. Goethals, Maj. Gen. George A. Custer, and others who served their country in a distinguished manner.

The services this afternoon were the most impressive here since the burial of Gen. Goethals. Every officer of the post, booted, spurred and wearing sidearms, was present. High ranking officers from distant army centers came to pay tribute, and their civilian friends were in the chapel and at the graveside.

Brought Home on Transport.

The body of the former commanding general of the Panama canal division, who died Feb. 19 aboard the Italian liner Virgilio, near Port of Spain, Trinidad, was brought from the Brooklyn army base, where it arrived Wednesday on the transport St. Mihiel. The funeral train arrived at West Point at 2:45 p. m. and was met by Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, superintendent of the Military academy, and other army notables.

The engineer detachment of regular soldiers commanded by First Lieut. Gordon E. Texter furnished the escort. The coffin was removed from the train and placed upon a caisson shrouded in black.

Charger Follows Coffin.

Six horses, their saddle blankets the only touch of color, drew the caisson along the driveway overlooking the Hudson, past grim, gray, fortresslike buildings and down a winding road to the little burying ground at the base of Storm King mountain. A coal black charger, its head and body robed in black and carrying boots reversed in the saddle stirrups, an army tradition, followed behind the coffin.

Members of the family and army officials in automobiles made up the funeral cortege.

At the chapel a detachment of regular soldiers stood with rifles at present arms. The post band in full dress uniform stood stiffly at attention as the funeral party drew up.

Soldiers Worship There.

The old cadet chapel is a historic building about which much sentiment has been expressed. It was removed stone by stone in 1911 from its site by the library where it had stood since 1837. It is a quiet place where cadets and distinguished soldiers have worshiped since early last century. Over the altar the painting, "Peace and War," by the late Prof. Weir, is the main ornament. There, too, a scriptural text is inscribed: "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people."

Fluted white pillars rise from among the old fashioned closed pews and a winding staircase leads to the choir loft. Around the walls are black marble shields, inscribed in gold letters with the names, rank and dates of birth and death of the generals of the revolution. A shield without a name, with only rank and date of birth, has been placed among them for Benedict Arnold. Flags captured during the Mexican war and British cannon are along the walls. Outside the walls are ivy covered.

Pulpit Banked with Flowers.

Today the front of the red velvet draped pulpit was banked high with roses, tiger lilies, lilies of the valley, tulips, ferns, jonquils and cala lilies. The Rev. Dr. A. B. Kinsolving, military academy chaplain, conducted the services. There was no eulogy.

As the coffin was rolled down the aisle to the door, the field artillery detachment began firing its major general's salute of thirteen guns, one each minute. Honorary pall bearers were Maj. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, commanding general third corps area; Maj. Gen. Blanton Winship, judge advocate general of the army; Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, superintendent of the academy; Col. D. W. Hand, commanding officer seventh field artillery; Col. Charles P. Echols, professor of mathematic, and Col. C. C. Carter, professor of philosophy.

The cemetery at the foot of the Storm King has been West Point's burying ground since its birth in 1802. It is a beautiful grassy area, dotted with elms, birches, willows, and oaks, with an outlook across the sweeping Hudson and toward blue hills to the north and west.

Constitution island lies to the north, and directly below is the post rifle range, overlooking the point in the Hudson where chains were strung across the river to bar the British ships. Old Fort Putnam, key to the defense of all territory south during the revolution, looks down on the little cemetery from the southeast. Across the valley may be seen Trophy point, historic gathering place of the cadets.

Episcopal Service Read.

A cold March wind swept over the burying ground this afternoon as the 125 officers, friends, and members of Gen. Irwin's family stood beside the burial plot. The post band played the "Dead March" and then "Nearer, My God, to Thee." As the last echo of the cannon shots died out against the hills Chaplain Kinsolving read from the Episcopal burial service and prayed. Then the soldiers fired three volley of musketry across the open grave and a bugler stepped briskly to the front and sounded "Taps." Cannons again fired a rapid thirteen gun salute.

Members of the family attending the funeral were Mrs. Irwin, a daughter, Josephine Irwin, and two sons, Maj. S. Leroy Irwin of Fort Sill, and John D'Arcy Irwin of Washington; Col. and Mrs. Robert R. McCormick and Dr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Small. Mrs. McCormick and Mrs. Small are sisters of Gen. Irwin.

Many Officers Attend.

Others attending the service included Capt. Charles A. Easterbrooke, aide de camp to the late general; Brig. Gen. Lucius R. Holbrook, commander of the 1st division, whom Gen. Irwin was to have succeeded; Chaplain Albert Simoni of Fort Sheridan; Brig. Gen. John J. Bradley, retired; Col. J. W. Gilson, who was Gen. Irwin's aide during the world war; Col. W. B. Graham of Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn, and Col. Truman Murphy.

Gen. Irwin, who was 63 years old, served as captain during the Spanish-American war. He was an artillery officer in the Philippines, the Canal Zone, and in Cuba. In 1917 he commanded the 161st Field artillery brigade at Camp Grant. He sailed for France in command of the 41st Infantry division and later led the 66th, 2d, and 57th Field artillery brigades. He served on the Verdun front, the Alsace front, in the Marne-Aisne, Oise-Aisne, and Meuse-Argonne offensives. He was awarded the distinguished service medal, the legion of honor, the croix de guerre with palm, and other medals for his gallantry in action.

Gen. Irwin was born at Fort Wayne, Mich., and descended from a Scottish family that has given soldiers to the world since the time of Robert Bruce in the fourteenth century.

VATICAN RELENTS ON ARCHBISHOP'S HOLY LAND VISIT

VATICAN CITY, March 13.—(AP)—It was said unofficially today that the Vatican would not oppose the Archbishop of Canterbury's intended visit to the Holy Land if he made the visit privately as one of the many pilgrims of every Christian faith who go to Palestine at Easter or other seasons.

The archbishop planned to be the guest of J. P. Morgan, on whose yacht he is cruising in the Mediterranean, on a visit to the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem, which is guarded by the Catholic, Greek, Armenian, and Copt religions. The Holy See had made representations to the British government suggesting difficulties which might arise from such a visit.

FARMERS SEEK NEW BASIS FOR MILK PAYMENT

Control the Market in Metropolitan Area.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Dairy farmers in the 26 counties of Illinois, Wisconsin, and Indiana from whom Chicago and fifty nearby communities obtain their milk supply indicated yesterday they were preparing for a reconsideration of the basis upon which they are being paid.

This was seen in the announcement by officials of the Pure Milk association in Chicago that a call had been issued for one representative of each of the 169 local farmer groups in the organization to attend a meeting in Chicago to air rural grievances on their existing remuneration system.

There are 22,000 members of the association, and 18,466 now ship milk daily to Chicago, its suburbs, and to cities between Janesville, Freeport, and South Bend.

Controls Milk Market.

The association, which arose from a farmers' strike in January, 1929, and the enforcement of a new ordinance requiring all milk in Chicago to come from tuberculin tested cows, now controls all the market milk supply of this area. It has been described by federal farm board members as a good example of a farmers' cooperative marketing organization.

No dairyman is now able to market his milk in Chicago unless he belongs to the Pure Milk association, according to statements of directors yesterday, even though he has qualified with the health department as to the quality of his milk supply.

"The main difference between our cooperative and a labor union," D. N. Geyer, the association's manager, explained, "is that the union sets its scale and some of its members may not be working at all. Our obligation is to enable every dairyman in our cooperative to sell his product every day. Every member's milk must go to market every 24 hours, without fail."

"Pooling System" Not Used.

Geyer pointed out also that the plan was not a "pooling system" where every member could send all the milk to market he wished, and the returns spread equally among all farmers on the basis of their volume of milk shipped. This plan, he said, is now operating in Milwaukee.

Resentment in the ranks of the dairymen last January, when farmers were forced to accept most of the cut in reducing retail milk prices a cent a quart, was said yesterday by farmers in several sections of the producing area to have continued.

"The whole trouble is," said a Rock county, Wisconsin, farmer, "that we are being paid now on the basis of the amount of milk we were producing in September, October and November of 1929. This was reduced for us last fall to meet a decline in city milk consumption, even though we must plan our production a year in advance. Many farmers now feel we should have a readjustment in this basis."

Farmer Cites His Return.

Another Rock county farmer, whose herd of 15 cows is his only means of supporting a family, milks twice daily, pays for trucking and freight to market, and gets back $60 a month to pay for his feed, overhead costs, and living expenses. Several claim they get 90 cents per 100 pounds for most of the milk they ship in, from which hauling charges of 22 cents are deducted. University of Illinois studies report the cost of producing milk in this area to be from $1.90 to $4 per hundredweight.

Auction sales show farmers selling cows at a sacrifice. One farmer near Hebron, Ill., was offered only $72 per head for his herd of 15 cows, but when he sold the herd as well as his membership and basic rights in the Pure Milk association's Chicago market, he obtained $150 per cow.

Tells of Reduced Quota.

A veteran Walworth, Wis., dairyman produced his books to show that he formerly was entitled to the market price of $2.30 a hundred pounds for 12,000 pounds monthly. His quota has been cut to 10,800 pounds, for which he obtains $248.40 per month. He ships a total of 18,000 pounds per month, and for the added 7,200 pounds gets but $68.84. He has sold 7 cows for less than $80 a head this month from a herd that took years to build up.

"It looks to us like the Chicago milk market is pretty well tied up for those who now own memberships in the Pure Milk association," averred a Du Page county dairyman yesterday. "It looks to us like the time has come for reconsideration of how much the farmers should get out of the consumers' milk money. We get less than a nickel of the 13 cents, while the man who delivers it gets over 4 cents."

ROBBER SEIZED AFTER HE PHONES VICTIM THREAT

Walter Suydam, 28 years old, former convict and army deserter, living at 1260 North Dearborn street, was arrested yesterday as a bandit when he attempted to cash $445 in checks at the Upper Avenue bank, 919 North Michigan avenue. He fell into his own trap because he tried to intimidate his robbery victim, Charles F. Simms, 438 East 62d street, a restaurant owner, whom he held up on Wednesday night.

Simms, his roommate, Gilbert Ward, and a friend were held up in Simms' room, and Simms was forced to indorse several checks amounting to $445. On Thursday Suydam tried to cash the checks, and succeeded in getting $50, but was told to open an account before cashing the others. The same night Simms was called on the telephone and threatened with death if he stopped payment on the checks.

Simms notified the police and yesterday accompanied Sergts. Joseph Mallow and John McVeigh to the bank. Suydam appeared to open an account and was seized. Simms identified him. Police say Suydam served three years for robbery and one year for forgery in Joliet and 14 months at Leavenworth for army desertion.

ENDS HIS LIFE WITH GAS.

Edward Rose, 49 years old, committed suicide yesterday in his room at 1411 West Madison street, by inhaling gas through a hose attached to a gas fixture.

MISS STURGIS

LA FERN HOPKINS.

STURGIS ELECTS ITS QUEEN FOR BLOSSOM FETE

Schoolgirl of 18 Wins Beauty Crown.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Watervliet, Mich., March 13.—[Special.]—Southwestern Michigan's candidates for the May throne of a blossom queen in the Twin cities of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph are posed for selection these nights against the background of a March blizzard. Not even six foot drifts along rural highways have seriously impeded the progress of the competition.

At Sturgis last night an audience of several hundred waxed wildly enthusiastic in the new auditorium of the high school as La Fern Hopkins, 18 year old high school senior, emerged from a field of fifteen girls with the palm of charm and beauty and the title of "Miss Sturgis." Her victory entitles her to enter the finals on April 1, with the representatives of thirty-five other communities in this section of the state. Loretta Coohon was the judges' second choice.

Tonight the entire town of Watervliet was planning to turn out for the American Legion program at the high school, which will be climaxed by the choice of "Miss Watervliet." Eight nominees are awaiting the ordeal of promenading in their prettiest frocks before three anonymous judges from nearby towns, who will name the winner.

They are Irma Brenner, Thelma Scherer, Rose Danneffel, Louise Volay, and Helen Lisauskis, high school students and each 18 years old; Julia Wood, 19, and Dorothy Bailey, 20, business girls, and Rosella Feller, 20, a home girl.

LEADERS OF 100 CHICAGO UNIONS SUPPORT CERMAK

Three hundred labor leaders, representing one hundred unions with a total membership of more than 300,000, met yesterday in the Bal Tabarin of the Hotel Sherman to form the A. J. Cermak for Mayor Union Labor club. They endorsed the candidacy of Mr. Cermak without qualification.

Headquarters of the club, which is not to be a permanent political organization, but will disband immediately after the election, will be in suite 414 in the Hotel Sherman, with regular meetings every Friday at 2 p. m. The The club is financed entirely by the unions and has no connection with either political party.

Durkin President of Club.

The meeting was called to order by Martin Durkin, vice president of the Chicago Building Trades council and business agent of the steam fitters, who was elected president of the club.

The other officers elected are James Ryan of the sheet metal workers, secretary; A. G. Goudie of the International Teamsters' union, treasurer, and William Tabor of the Street Car Men's union and Mary McEnerney of the Bindery Workers' union, vice presidents.

Mr. Cermak delivered a short address to the labor leaders. "In twenty years' service in public office," he said, "I have always used my office for the good of union labor. You all know my record and I will stand on that.

Cites County Contracts.

"During my tenure as president of the county board all county contracts have been executed by union labor."

Among the other speakers who addressed the newly organized club were: James Kehoe of the street car men; Edward "Pop" Ryan, former president of the Building Trades council; Richard Spillane of the Chicago Typographical union, Michael Sexton of the carpenters; Dan Cleary of the electricians, Richard J. Wrenn of the engineers; Michael J. Galvin of the Teamsters' union, Robert Fritchie of the milk wagon drivers, Jeff O'Connor of the firemen's union, A. J. Horan, Municipal court bailiff, and Peter Brady, Democratic candidate for city clerk.

CATCH WOUNDED COMPANION OF SLAIN BANDIT

Wounded in the right leg, John Vleck, 18 years old, whose pal was slain when they were surprised by Cicero police early yesterday while trying to rob a dry goods store at 5215 West 25th street, was captured several hours later as he was hobbling along 14th street on his way to a doctor's office. A short time before Vleck's arrest, his slain companion had been identified as Walter Vitek, 17 years old, of 1658 West 14th place. Vitek and Vleck were shot by Patrolman Girard Hurlbert and George Rondomski who had been summoned by a woman who lived above the store the youths were attempting to enter.

SEALED VERDICT IS ORDERED IN BANK FRAUD CASE

Federal Judge Robert C. Baltzell last night ordered the jury to return a sealed verdict today in the case of W. G. Weatherston, former cashier of the Oak Park National bank, and John C. Woods, former candy manufacturer, who were on trial charged with embezzling $87,500.

Timothy J. Crowe, former president of the bank and former president of the sanitary district, testified for the government yesterday that he put up $115,000 to help the bank's finances as a result of loans made by Weatherston to Woods, without knowledge of sanction of the bank's directors.

A. H. Johnson, agent of the justice department, testified that Weatherston admitted to him that he had juggled the books of the bank. Assistant United States Attorney Owen A. West prosecuted the case.

ARTIST ENDS HIS LIFE.

A verdict of suicide "due to financial troubles" was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Glenn Craig, 35 years old, a commercial artist, whose body was discovered yesterday in his room at 313 Wisconsin street. He had ended his life with gas.

RAIL ENGINEER GIVES A LESSON IN ELECTRIFYING

Fine in Cleveland, but Chicago Is Different.

H. W. Pinkerton, an electrical engineer employed by the New York Central railroad, came in from Cleveland, O., yesterday with a suitcase full of lantern slides and movie films.

Mr. Pinkerton made the 500 mile trip to give Chicago engineers a conception of the magnificent electrified terminal which the New York Central and the Nickle Plate roads have recently erected in Cleveland.

For nearly two hours in the auditorium of the Engineering building he entertained an audience of 200 engineers, analyzing the obstacles faced and overcome in the Cleveland project and picturing the benefits accrued to the city and the two railroads since the terminal was completed last June.

Cost Set at $90,000,000.

The cost of the project, Mr. Pinkerton announced, was between $85,000,000 and $90,000,000. The plan, he averred, was first conceived by the late A. H. Smith, president of the New York Central, and the company had since been well repaid in public good will and increased traffic.

The engineering problems, as Mr. Pinkerton described them, were many and varied. There were sharp curves and steep grades to reckon with. To pull the long trains of heavy Pullman coaches over this twisting trackage the railroads had the General Electric company design and build 22 electric locomotives of a type capable of handling heavier rolling stock for ten years to come.

Power houses and repair shops were needed and copper transmission lines had to be strung on steel towers. In this last respect the railroad proved more than generous, for, whereas the terminal ordinance required two miles of electric trackage on either side of the station proper, the railroads decided to build 17 miles.

Film Shows It All.

Finishing the technical side of his lecture, Mr. Pinkerton signaled his assistant to start the film. The first caption announced that the picture had been photographed and distributed by the New York Central's publicity department. It was a silent film and Mr. Pinkerton supplied a running explanatory comment.

Here was a view of one of the electric giants in action, rushing smoothly along the white right of way at forty miles an hour and taking the curves without a tremor.

Now came a view of the terminal development itself—a forty story tower rising from the heart of Cleveland, facing a public square and surrounded by a cluster of new buildings, with the misty Lake Erie in the distance.

Question Mr. Pinkerton.

The film ended and as a number of engineers gathered around Mr. Pinkerton was asked a number of questions:

Q.—Did you notice the contrast between the smoke grimed La Salle street station, facing the elevated tracks on Van Buren street, and the Cleveland terminal on the public square? A.—I didn't pay much attention.

Q.—Has the Cleveland electrification built up suburban traffic? A.—No, there isn't any suburban traffic to speak of.

Q.—No suburban traffic? Isn't the New York Central's principal excuse for failure to electrify in Chicago that the suburban traffic doesn't justify it? A.—Conditions differed in Cleveland. There were many considerations.

Q.—Had there been any public demand for abatement of the smoke evil that speeded the Cleveland electrification? A.—Of course, all the big cities are clamoring for electrification all the time.

Q.—Does Dr. Pinkerton know why his railroad refused to electrify in Chicago? A.—I am just an engineer with my nose to the grindstone. Patrick H. Crowley of New York, president of the New York Central, is the man to ask.

Close 4 Michigan Banks to Protect Depositors

Detroit, Mich., March 13.—(AP)—Four suburban banks failed to open for business today. They are the American State bank of Ferndale, the American State bank of Wyandotte, the State Savings bank of Melvindale, and the State Savings bank of Lincoln Park. M. C. Taylor, deputy commissioner of the state banking department, issued the following statement:

"These four banks were taken over by the state banking department in order to conserve assets and to protect the interests of depositors."

Turkey Bars Russians; Fears Bubonic Plague

ANKARA, Turkey, March 13.—(AP)—Considerable alarm is felt in official circles here at the possibility of spread of bubonic plague in Turkey from Georgia, southern Russia, where an epidemic is raging. The frontier has been closed to persons coming from Russia. There have been many deaths in the Georgian republic.

FLOWER SHOW OPENS NEXT SATURDAY IN MERCHANDISE MART

The flower show of the Garden club of Illinois will open Saturday in the Merchandise Mart, crammed with new ideas and varieties for Chicagoans, its sponsors say.

Among the new flowers to be on exhibition will be three annuals from South Africa. Gerberas, or Transvaal daisies, grow to be 4 inches in diameter, are daisy-like in form, and their coloring includes violet, cerise, orange, and ruby. Dimorphothecas also are of daisy shape, and almost as large as the gerberas. They have orange, yellow, and salmon-rose flowers. The third variety is arctotis, which is called the "blue-eyed African daisy," has white flowers with mauve centers. All these flowers are of the class of coloring often called "art shades."

Since the embargo was declared against narcissus importations in 1926 few of the new varieties of daffodils produced abroad have been seen in this country. This year for the first time a complete collection of the improved types will be shown, flowers being sent to the show from Oregon by airplane. The variety Gallipoli by the English breeder, Brodie, has a large yellow trumpet heavily margined orange red, the first variety in which red has been introduced into a trumpet of such size.

Many new tulips will be shown, including the new variety Porthos, a pure white Darwin. The display of evergreens, suitable for Chicago weather, will include many new varieties. Rock plants from the Pacific coast will be shown in several gardens.

ONTARIO RAISES PRICES OF HARD LIQUOR; NOT ALE

TORONTO, Ont., March 13.—(AP)—Following the announcement of E. A. Dunlop, provincial treasurer, in the Ontario legislature yesterday, increases in the prices of whiskies, gins, brandies and rums went into effect today in the 120 government liquor stores throughout the province under the direction of the liquor control board. There is no change in the price list for beer and wines. The biggest increase announced was on Bourbon whiskies, these going up 30 cents a bottle. On some of the Scotch brands a 25 cent increase was made. Most Canadian brands went up 10 cents a bottle.

SUPPORT AUDIT BUREAU TO CURB CONTRACT GRAFT

See Tax Savings in Johnson Plan.

Business men, law enforcing officials and members of the city council yesterday joined in commending the proposal of United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson for the creation of a state bureau of audits which would have the power to investigate public contracts.

Through such a bureau, Mr. Johnson contended at a dinner of the Chicago Better Business Bureau on Thursday night, the taxpayer could keep a watchful eye on public contracts to an extent that excess profits and graft, instances of which were related by the speaker, could be eliminated.

Suggests Legislative Details.

Mr. Johnson presented his plan only in principle, but Ald. John A. Massen [48th] suggested some legislative details.

"If such legislation would oblige contractors to file uniform accounts that would actually reflect their operations I believe that three benefits would accrue to the taxpayers," Ald. Massen said. "In the first place it would prevent the destruction of evidence regarding contracts; it would provide data for a comparative study of costs, and it would eliminate graft or excessive profits."

While the general assembly is in session is a good time for a concerted action by civic organizations and citizens to obtain legislation to put the plan into effect, declared State's Attorney John A. Swanson.

Savings for Taxpayers.

"I agree with Mr. Johnson's conclusions," said Prosecutor Swanson. "There is room for improvement in the handling of public contracts and there certainly are no reasons why contracts obtained by political influence should be allowed to ruin the people by placing a burden on them through taxation to pay the immense profits."

In a speech broadcast over W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE'S radio station, last night Mr. Johnson again referred to his plan. "If that [the plan] comes about," he said, "it will mean a saving of millions of dollars to you and me as taxpayers, which means that we will have better schools, better police protection, and better government, for much of this dirty graft money finds its way into crooked politics."

Speaking on crime Mr. Johnson said that whenever there is evidence of open gambling, open violations of the prohibition law, vice, and racketeering, it is a sign that organized crime is operating.

ACTOR BOYD FINED $500 FOR HIS GAY LOS ANGELES PARTY

Los Angeles, Cal., March 13.—(AP)—A "little party" at the home of William Henry Boyd, 45, film actor and late of the New York stage, had its sequel in Municipal court today and it cost $500.

The actor broke up what promised to be an interesting trial, withdrew a plea of not guilty for one of guilty, and was ordered to pay a fine of $500 or serve fifty days in jail.

At his request Boyd was given a few hours to go out and locate $500. Six policemen raided his home on Feb. 28. The officers said they found Boyd's guests in a high state of merriment and some of the women scantily clothed. They said a bar and roulette table were in full operation.

Besides seizing gambling paraphernalia and liquor they took a motion picture machine alleged to have contained an obscene film.

PERUVIAN REBELS DEFY PRESIDENT; THREATEN WAR

LIMA, Peru, March 13.—(AP)—Provisional President Samanez Ocampo today gave official confirmation to reports that a faction of the Arequipa army had refused to support his government if Col. Gustavo Jimenez remained as secretary of war, because they feared he would make reprisals against them.

The southern forces threatened a new rebellion if Jimenez did not step out and the junta here has been negotiating by telegraph in an effort to bring the rebels into line.

In a statement this morning the provisional president indicated that he would give no ground. It was issued a few minutes after the cabinet had met in extraordinary session to confer with Col. Aberlardo Gonzalez, chief of the southern forces, who had arrived unexpectedly. The statement said the junta would not bargain with "the army divisions at Arequipa and Cuzco which, with unpatriotic motives, threaten a revolution."

MOSCOW BUILDS "SKYSCRAPERS" 13 STORIES HIGH

Plenty of Windows Is Main Feature.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MOSCOW, Feb. 16.—[By Mail.]—Skyscrapers have made their appearance here since my last visit. The highest building is a 13 story structure opposite the foreign office which will be occupied by the G. P. U., the secret police, when completed this spring.

The corner forms a sort of tower and the rest of the building, all in which faced cement over concrete, is ten stories high. It adjoins the old headquarters on the Lubianka, formerly an insurance company's offices.

On the G. P. U. tower, there are balconies at every floor, made in the approved modern style prevalent in Berlin, Paris, Vienna, Madrid and other cities, of solid concrete. But the local wisecrackers insist these "terraces" are in reality machine gun emplacements for the dread organization to defend its headquarters in case of necessity.

New Government Buildings.

Opposite the Kamany most [most means bridge] new government buildings are rearing their heads. They will be 11 stories high instead of 15 as projected, because of the marshy land around the river, which does not provide sufficiently strong foundation. They will be almost all glass and steel, with each floor almost one continual long window facing on all sides. The buildings present a striking appearance, even in their uncompleted condition.

The new postoffice and telegraph building opens on the Tverskaia and is seven stories high, also chiefly of glass and steel, to give the tired operators and mail clerks light. The big main hall is one of the warmest spots in town and a favorite rendezvous for people to meet downtown, and sit on the big benches and warm up.

New Housing Scheme.

Plans are under consideration for increasing the housing capacity of the city by adopting the Paris plan of adding more stories to existing buildings. The scheme produced excellent results in Paris, where the average five and six floors have been increased to seven and eight. Here the average is only three stories and the structures are built too heavily and solidly, with enormously thick walls to keep out the cold, that most of them, architects and engineers assert, will stand an additional two or three floors.

Moscow's population is now 3,000,000, according to latest estimates, and growing all the time. It is one-third larger than before the war. Hundreds of acres of floor space have been taken over by the government since the capital was moved here from Leningrad.

MAKE CHANGES IN GREAT LAKES LIGHTHOUSES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—Extensive changes in the buoy and lighthouse system of the great lakes were announced by the department of commerce today.

"Changes are being made in the buoys in the Saginaw river, Michigan, in the St. Mary's river, and in the Chicago harbor approaches," according to the department, "and the lower Fox river, Wisconsin, the upper Fox river, Wolf river, and Lake Winnebago are also being greatly improved by the changes and additions to the aids to navigation."

ASK DEATH FOR 5 LIFE FOR 66 IN SPANISH MUTINY

77 Officers Go on Trial at Jaca.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

JACA, Spain, March 13.—The one republican flag that actually flew in Spain during the tragic, comic opera mutiny last December lay rumpled on a table, but the smiling portrait of King Alfonso XIII. dominated the messroom of a cold army barracks here today when the court martial of 77 rebels opened.

The king's prosecutor, wearing woolen gloves because of the bitter cold, began reading evidence, under which he is asking a firing squad for five associates of the luckless Capts. Fermyn Galan and Garcia Hernandez, already executed for their part in the uprising, and life imprisonment for 66 others, including the burly drum major of the "republic's" first band.

The red banner, which floated from the city hall at Jaca, where the brief revolution "raged," was wrapped ignominiously in a newspaper among other records of blasted hopes.

Prisoners in High Spirits.

A certain grim humor pervaded today's hearing. Everybody wore mittens. The accused officers looked astonishingly smart in their uniforms and decorations after three months in prison and were in high spirits. They could afford to be, convinced as they are, even if Premier Admiral Aznar hasn't promised mercy already, that the government is seeking to provide no new martyrs of the revolution.

This mountain fortress of another age is crammed with relatives and friends of the rebels on trial, but a sleet storm and a heavy detachment of civil guards has thus far left everybody cold.

From the evidence read today it is even clearer that the revolt, which the government of former Premier Damaso Berenguer at the time tried to present as an isolated outbreak of local communists, was, except for being premature, an integral part of a general uprising calculated to implant a conservative republic under the presidency of Alcalca Zamora.

Tells of Revolt Ambitions.

The high ambition of the dawn revolt was told in the testimony of Capt. Sediles, Capt. Galan's most intimate friend, and for whom the death penalty has been asked. He said he did not know what impelled Capt. Galan to the hasty takeoff that doomed the whole movement at the start, but made it clear that he and his men believed military garrisons all over Spain had already risen and that a republic had been victoriously proclaimed.

The objective of that seemingly mad march through the mountains was the big port of Barcelona, Capt. Sediles said, explaining that the military movement feared a general strike there of a revolutionary character, which, as partisans of a conservative republic, they hoped to stop.

"Is it true you were paid to revolt?" asked the president of the military tribunal.

"It is not true!" Capt. Sediles snapped. "Absolutely not! We needed money so badly I had to dissuade Capt. Galan from taking the regimental funds."

Counted on High Ald.

Other witnesses declared they thought Capt. Galan moved his troops when he did because he had counted on aid from higher military authorities in the region. If testimony yet to be revealed shows this is true it will be surprising, inasmuch as the evidence has been in the hands of the government from the beginning and no generals outside of the revolutionary committee have been molested.

One officer today attempted to implicate the captain general of the garrison at Saragossa.

King Alfonso left tonight for London to visit his wife's mother, Princess Beatrice, but it is thought that if death sentences are ordered he will sign a commutation order from there, if he has not done so in advance of his departure from Madrid.

MYSTERY DEATH, DISAPPEARANCE UNDER SCRUTINY

Seek Identity of Body Burned in Auto.

Perry, Ia., March 13.—(AP)—County Attorney George Sackett today announced the mystery case of John M. Smith, Farmer-Labor candidate for governor of Iowa in the 1930 election, whose body was purportedly buried here Feb. 6, would be turned over to the state board of criminal investigation for solution.

The county attorney said that county officers would surrender the case to the state agents with the request that they attempt to solve Smith's disappearance and establish identity of the body placed in the cab of Smith's truck which was found partially destroyed by fire in a ditch near Denison, Ia., Feb. 3.

Mrs. Smith, beneficiary of $50,000 insurance taken out on Smith's life, believed her husband must have met with foul play on the night his automobile containing the unidentified body was burned on a highway near Denison. She said she would make no move to collect the insurance until the whereabouts of her husband is definitely established.

The body was exhumed and examined yesterday at the request of insurance companies carrying policies on Smith's life. The autopsy revealed that the body had been embalmed before burning and that a skull fracture suffered by Smith some years ago was not in evidence on the body. Teeth charts of Smith and the body also failed to check.

Smith carried policies totaling $30,000 which provided double indemnity in case of accidental death, and $10,000 straight life insurance.

Now...Shell makes it possible for motorists to save MILLIONS

See, on this chart, what Shell has done . . . It may cut down your driving costs many dollars

HOW many motorists need buy extra-priced gasoline to get utmost efficiency from their motors?

With so many types of gasoline on the market, and with such a confusion of claims for them, the car owner has been bewildered.

Shell does not want to sell premium gasoline for engines that do not need it. As a simple matter of good business, Shell believes it pays to give motorists what they ought to have.

Shell is now ready to supply gasoline—at regular prices—which more than 75% of all cars can use with perfect satisfaction. Long and costly research with actual engines and hundreds of fuels, has made it possible.

New Improved Shell 400

Shell offers it to all car owners today. New Improved Shell 400—a unique gasoline that marks a great step forward in motor fuels.

In anti-knock value, New Improved Shell 400 is far above common regular priced gasolines—in fact, above many premium priced brands.

At least 3 out of 4 motorists can use it—and forget any question of paying an extra 3 cents per gallon! New Improved Shell 400 will give them all the anti-knock value, quick starting and power their engines are capable of, at a real money saving.

A second important advance—Super-Shell Ethyl

For the less than 25% of engines which should not use New Improved Shell 400, Shell has perfected a second new fuel—Super-Shell Ethyl! To a fine grade of high test gasoline—exceptionally volatile, quick starting and powerful—has been added a heavy Ethyl fluid content.

This 25% or less of today's cars cannot get full economy from "just any" premium priced gasoline. If they could, New Improved Shell 400 at regular prices would serve them!

They need Super-Shell Ethyl's extremely high anti-knock value, its instant pick-up. There is a saving to them in every filling of Super-Shell Ethyl—a saving in future repair bills, as well as in mileage and performance!

A test you owe your own pocketbook

No test of common gasolines can tell you if you are wasting money today. The only way to know is to run New Improved Shell 400 in your own engine. 3 motorists in 4 will find it works even better than the average premium gasoline.

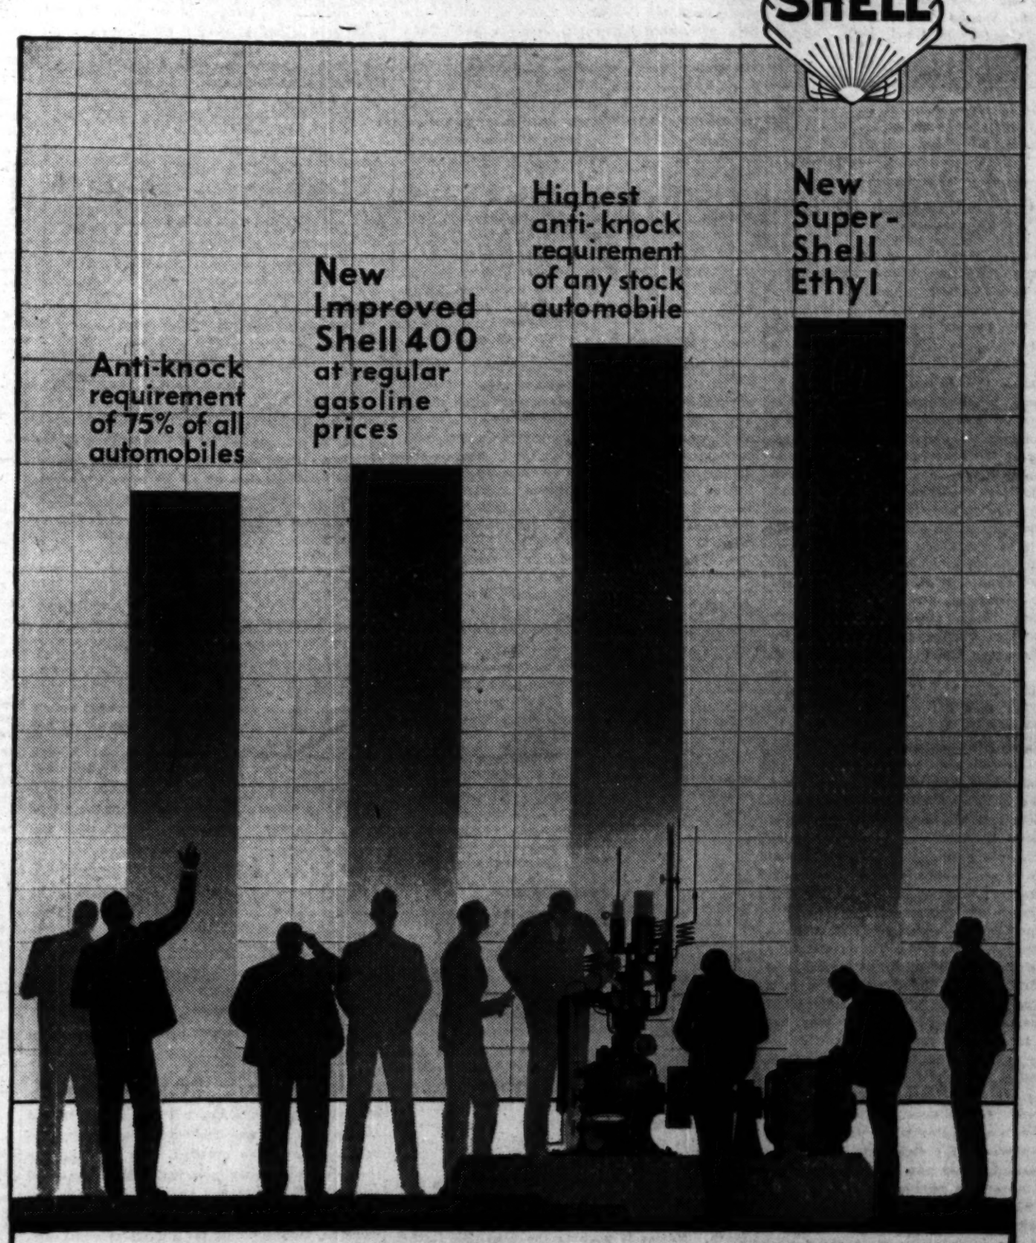

Then, if your car is one that needs Super-Shell Ethyl, you can tell on one tankful of this fuel. Try New Improved Shell 400 first—then Super-Shell Ethyl if you require it.

Make the trial now! The reward to 3 people out of 4 is perfect motor operation at new low costs. And, for the other 25%, truly super performance at genuine economy in mileage, upkeep costs, motor life.

Does it give you more mileage?

While there is evidence that New Improved Shell 400 gives most cars more miles per gallon of gasoline, only the experience of thousands of drivers can verify this added saving. Your Shell station man, at the time he fills your gasoline tank, will hand you a post card like that above. Use New Improved Shell 400 and then tell us, by marking and mailing the post card, whether you secure more miles per gallon from it. Your co-operation in this test may help others to reduce their motoring costs.

A GREAT STEP FORWARD IN MOTOR FUELS

At last, a measuring unit for anti-knock values—the new Octane Number ratings! To establish them, Shell tested hundreds of gasolines. Common fuels were found to lack sufficient anti-knock value for many makes and models of cars. Now, note the chart. Here is fuel at regular price that is ideal for at least 75% of all cars on the road. The highest Octane Number requirement of 75% of all cars is 58. New Improved Shell 400 exceeds this figure—tests about 60. Thanks to this fuel, less than 1 motorist in 4 now needs to buy premium priced gasoline.

A second new fuel, Super-Shell Ethyl, with an Octane Number of 74, exceeds the anti-knock needs of any stock automobile. It is recommended only for those cars it can really benefit

NEW IMPROVED SHELL 400

Definitely better than many present premium fuels, yet sold at regular prices—at least 75% of all cars can use it satisfactorily

For the less than 25% of cars which require an extremely high anti-knock value to operate most efficiently. Priced three cents more per gallon

MR. WICKERSHAM AND THE REPORT.

Mr. Wickersham says that he did not expect such criticism as the report of his commission has received, nor does he think it justified. Furthermore, he says, it is odd that the unfavorable and uncomplimentary opinion appears in the opposition to prohibition, which had the most reason to find the report encouraging. The dry attitude toward it pleased the chairman more.

A fairly general feeling regarding the report is that it dodged its own conclusions. It carried a covering recommendation that the prohibition experiment was worthy of further trial, or a recommendation tantamount to that. The peculiarity was that the majority of the commissioners dissented. Dissenting opinions in one way or another negatived the conclusion which otherwise the commission seemed to have reached. For some reason or other the commission, as an entity, as an official court of inquiry and counsel, did not produce the verdict which its members reached.

This confusion can be understood. On one side there was political timidity and expediency. On the other there was the individual intelligence, candor, and conscience of the members of the body. The individuals would not give up their convictions, but they did not get them unreservedly expressed in the recommendations to which the commission as an entity committed itself.

If the report had gone consistently and honestly from the opinions of the majority to a statement of facts and recommendations as would then have been agreed upon, the administration and the Republican party would have had official findings such as would have required either dodging or action. The method of fact finding employed in this inquiry is one favored by Mr. Hoover in just such questions of government. It was an inquiry authorized by congress. The investigators were named by the President. Congress and the administration asked for a discovery of facts and for suggestions. The facts were studied and the recommendations were made. If they had been made in the way any reliable and distinguished body of inquiry is expected to make them the report would have advised the modification of present laws and the adoption of a radically different system of regulation. If congress, the administration, and the Republican party had continued to adhere to the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act as now in effect and force they would have been required to repudiate the advisers to whom they had submitted the case.

The opposition to prohibition, satisfied that the majority of the investigators went about their business with open minds and came to the conclusions inherent in the facts revealed, feels that a tricky device was used to squander the force of this verdict, to confuse its meaning and leave the way open for further dodging of the issue. That is why Mr. Wickersham finds so much criticism of the report. It is justified. The prohibitionists are pleased because the recommendation for further trial of Volstead seems to save face and it gives them another chance to try for continued domination of the Republican party convention.

THE DEATH PENALTY.

The Kansas legislature has passed a bill for capital punishment for certain crimes. At this writing the governor has not approved it. There have been no executions in Kansas for 61 years. Michigan has not had an execution for 100 years. There is to be a referendum there to determine whether capital punishment shall be written into the criminal code and the legislature has passed a contingent bill for the installation of an electric chair in the state penitentiary at Jackson.

The tests which criminal justice has given the administration of law without capital punishment seem not to have been satisfactory, although in these two states they cover a long period of experiment. Executions were abandoned as punishments because people thought they were unworthy of civilization. It was actually less a thought than an emotion. In fact, the murder, not the penalty, was the reflection on the humanity supposedly basis of modern culture. In the slow processes of justice the murderer became dissociated from his crime and perceived only in relation to his own fate, a disturbing thing to sentimental, imaginative, or kindly people.

Then there was the conception of the death penalty as revenge, as an act of wrath committed by a community and executed against an individual and a conception of the condemned person as the victim, almost equally with the one he had killed, of the imperfections of life away from which society made slow progress. Some states yielded to the feeling that capital punishment was too distressing to be a part of law's procedure. To this feeling was joined the argument that the death penalty was not a deterrent. What deters a man from committing murder is seldom known because if it deters him he has not done the crime and, not having done it, he would find the reasons which controlled him highly complicated. But this is known: Capital punishment is the chief thing the murderer dreads. Life imprisonment is a terrible punishment, but a killer in danger of the death penalty will fight to the end of his last chance to win the alternative.

An execution is a shocking thing, but when the crime which calls for it has been proved it is the just thing. American law is not inconsiderate or brutal. It is much more questioning than British. It takes into account every influence which may have entered into the crime, every extenuation or mitigation which should be considered, and, even when the administration of it does not encounter a miscarriage of justice contrived by the defense, it is lenient far beyond the intention of the codes of other nations. In such a system of law capital punishment is justly preserved for the cases which plainly require it.

THEFT IN PUBLIC WORKS.

United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson has investigated the accounts and contracts of persons doing public work in the inquiries made by his office in income tax frauds. The revenue law gives the government access to the records on demand, a right which is peculiar to it for this purpose. In the prosecution of fraud in income evasion Mr. Johnson found ample and convincing evidence of frauds which are outside the jurisdiction of his office. He gave a general, in some instances specific, idea of what they were in a talk to several hundred business men.

They are contract frauds in public works, incredible stealing of public money with the transparent object of political profit. It is generally notorious that the public funds are looted in public work, but even the business men must have been astonished when Mr. Johnson gave them some of the shocking facts revealed in the investigation of the records. No tax system can stand up under such raids and the people of Chicago may observe where their tax system is today, the condition of their funds, of their public service and public works. The plight of today could not be escaped, the practices of years being what they have been.

It must have occurred to the business men, as it must to all the taxpayers of the city, that something can be done to stop it and that no improvement in public financial affairs need be expected until that something has been done. The tax system cannot carry the burden of public work and the weight of organized graft.

ELECTRIC P. R. R.

The Pennsylvania railroad will spend $175,000,000 on electrical knickknacks and gadgets leading towards an improvement and beautification of this well known eastern railroad in sections east of the Alleghenies. Though the Pennsylvania lines have some trackage extending over the mountains and leading across the deserts of Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois even as far as Chicago, the $175,000,000 electrical benefit will naturally be laid along the littoral areas of the Atlantic where the folks who knew the owners as boys are living. Some 240 electric locomotives, 150,000 tons of steel, and 60,000,000 pounds of copper will electrify the lines from New York to Washington, and senators who might become all too regulative in temper will run up to the metropolis without soiling a collar.

The front end of the Pennsylvania system is in New York; the hind end is in Chicago, and it is only natural for those who manage such a railroad to lavish money on down eastern service. They live there and their money is there. The railroad only gets its living from the west.

Though Chicago and the middle west may well be tempted to direct a well executed kick or so at a railroad which persistently displays only its hind quarters to the setting sun, the policy no doubt would be unwise. By riding on the electrified Illinois Central and routing goods, where possible, for export from New Orleans the benefits of electrical service can, in a measure, be obtained.

THE HIGHWAY TO PANAMA.

Six years ago THE TRIBUNE advocated an air route to Panama, and what was then a rather doubtful enterprise has now become almost a commonplace of regular air travel. Today the Pan-American union has under consideration a highway from the United States to Panama. A conference this month will be held in Panama City with this end in view. At the fourth Pan-American commercial conference in Washington in October the subject will be again under consideration. Routes will be discussed. Five years is set for the time before completion.

Already great progress has been made towards this Pan-American highway. On May 15 the road to Mexico City will be open to some 25,000,000 motor cars from the United States and points north. Mexico is pushing the road still farther south. That difficulties will arise in financing and building a road through the smaller countries of Central America must be expected. The result, a completed highway from Panama to the great northern areas of the continent, will more than justify the labor.

Associated with this project should be a transisthmian highway in Panama. Until a good road from Colon to Balboa is constructed the canal will have neither the convenience for travelers nor the military security that it should have. This road forking to the two oceans should be the last lap of the great continental highway from north to the far south.

Transportation moves farther every year along the line from collectivism to individualism. Once the automobile was used for local movement, then it became national, now it becomes international as a transportation agency. Though the bus, directed tours, improved railroad and steamship service are tendencies back towards collectivism, the drive towards individualism in travel continues. With four wheels and a few gallons of gasoline, millions of Americans will find their way before long into remotest Central America.

QUAIL AND POTATO BUGS.

[Danville Commercial-News.]

The dictionary calls quail an "old world game bird." The American quail, or bobwhite, is a game bird in some states. It is protected in others. It has been protected for some time in Ohio, but there is now a movement afoot to have the protection repealed. Hunters want the right to shoot quail for sport. Farmers imagine the quail have increased so much that they are becoming a pest. A well informed naturalist, on the other hand, makes a strong case in their defense.

"Where bobwhites are numerous," he says, "a person would have to search through a whole potato patch for more than ten minutes to find as many potato bugs as may be found elsewhere in a single vine. No other birds are so useful to farmers, and their usefulness is proportional to their numbers."

As between potato bugs and quail, most farmers would doubtless choose the quail. Unfortunately they don't always know the facts.

THREE CHEERS FOR THE EVE.

Somebody way down east sounds off and says we are now on the eve of the greatest period of Prosperity the country has ever known. 'Rah, 'rah, 'rah! Anyhow, we can all feel better after that, for at least it's a change. We had all got a little fed up on this Prosperity just around the corner stuff. It may have been around the corner, but the trouble was that the darned thing stayed there and never even poked its fool head out. But this being now on the eve of the greatest Prosperity we have ever known is a lot better. We had rather be on the eve than waiting for Prosperity to jump out from behind the corner. It puts us in mind right away of Christmas eve, with old Santa coming down the chimney with a big pack of presents. Or New Year's eve, with somebody in the corner making Tom and Jerrys.

Anyhow, it's different and we're for it. Everybody likes to be on the eve of things. And so we can settle down to wait again, but a good deal more calmly and more hopefully. And, looking around, we can see signs that this eve thing is all to the good. Sellers are selling and buyers are buying. How much they're selling and how much they're buying is nobody's business. The thing is you don't have to wait for Prosperity to jump out from behind the corner any more. You just remember we're on the eve. It's a new idea, and, anyway, if these prophets don't stop prophesying some day some one of 'em is going to hit the nail. Who was it said even a stopped clock is right once a day?

FOOD POISONING.

MRS. N. G. writes: Will you please explain ptomaine, its cause, symptoms, and aftereffects? I read somewhere that it came on with vomiting and purging and some one else said there is pain and weakness at first.

REPLY.

Physicians stopped writing about ptomaine several years ago. The term is not a good one. It is scientifically wrong. An additional reason was that it had come to be used very loosely. It was something of a catch-all. In order to promote a better understanding, as well as to be more accurate, the general term—food poisoning—was substituted for ptomaine poisoning. Then "food poisoning" was divided into several disorders. One of these is botulinism. This is caused by a gas producing bacillus growing in canned goods. A clearer understanding of this disease and its cause, and improved methods of canning, have almost wiped out botulinus poisoning. This is a poisoning of the nervous system, with double vision, great weakness, and other nerve symptoms. It generally comes on a day or more after eating spoiled food. It is frequently fatal. It is not a diarrheal disease except in rare instances.

Another form of food poisoning is the diarrheas caused by paratyphoid bacilli and allied bacteria. It generally comes on within a few hours after eating the poisoned food. Diarrhea, vomiting, and cramps are the outstanding symptoms. There may be fever.

Symptoms beginning immediately after eating are generally caused by poisons from other sources.

Another form of food poisoning is the fevers somewhat like typhoid, caused by members of the paratyphoid group of bacilli or other kinsmen. In this variety diarrhea is a minor symptom and vomiting is not to be expected.

Thus you see that while the term ptomaine poisoning has disappeared or nearly so, the various food poisonings are still much in evidence. It seems probable that botulinism due to eating canned goods may not trouble us much from now on. Not so the other forms of food poisoning. They seem to be on the increase within the last ten years. This seems to be due to our more complicated kitchen arrangements and our custom of buying our foods rather than raising them, and eating them on the premises where they are produced.

TREATMENT FOR ECZEMA.

D. C. writes: My skin is always chapped, except in the summer, when it is very warm and I perspire. It is like dead skin and just clings on, catches dirt quickly and, after a bath, itches something terrible.

REPLY.

Doubtless you live in air that is too dry and have what is called eczema due to dryness. Living in a conservatory or spending the winter in the south or southwest would cure you. Your original trouble is complicated by bath itch. Below is a method of treating eczema of the hands and face sent in by N. K. R.:

"Procure ten or fifteen pounds of pure clean wheat bran and five pounds of granulated sugar, which comes in cotton sacks just right for the purpose. Place a good handful of bran in the empty cotton sack and place in hand wash bowl. Pour hot water on bran in sack and let stand for ten minutes. When it is cool enough, wash face and hands. Squeeze sack several times and wash hands and face with this water, using the sack for a wash cloth. Wash hands thoroughly, squeeze all water out of bran which is still in the sack, and use this same bran filled sack for a towel. Follow this procedure for several weeks, using no other means of washing. Do not give up when it starts to improve, but continue it for some short time after. Not only will the affliction disappear, but the complexion will improve a hundred per cent. It is all a matter of persistency."

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 14, 1915.

LONDON.—The admiralty admitted that seven merchant vessels heretofore not announced had been torpedoed by German submarines in the last 72 hours. Two of these, it is stated, were sunk, and of two others it is said the sinking is not confirmed. Three were damaged but not sunk. One neutral ship, the Swedish steamer Hannah, had fallen victim to the submarine warfare. One report says it was sunk by a floating mine near Scarborough, but survivors arriving at Hull say it was torpedoed.

PARIS.—The advance of the British troops in the vicinity of Neuve Chapelle is estimated at about 4 miles in a dispatch reaching here from Bethune. The Germans have been forced back beyond the forest after heavy losses, 1,000 prisoners being taken.

LONDON.—Dispatches from Petrograd and Berlin indicate that the Germans are driving their forces against the Russian line in two directions—towards Novo Georgievsk and the Vistula river. One German column with its center north of Prasnysz was sweeping in a wide curve to the south and west, and the other at Ossowiets on its right is moving down the Narew.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—After a conference with Count von Bernstorff, Counselor Lansing of the state department was convinced that the German government would settle for the loss of the William Frye and its cargo of wheat in a manner agreeable to the United States and the owners of the ship.

PARIS.—French and British battleships continued their bombardment of the Dardanelles forts, but according to the latest dispatches the allied fleet has not penetrated the straits as far as previously had been reported. Seventy small mine sinkers are continuing their efforts to pierce the mine fields and are under a continuous rain of iron from the Turkish shore batteries.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 14, 1901.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Benjamin Harrison, soldier, lawyer, statesman, and twenty-third President of the United States, died at his home at 4:45 p. m. Just a week ago to the hour he was in good health and chatting with his old law partner, William Henry Harrison Miller, former attorney general of the United States. Pneumonia caused death, which was quiet and painless. None of his children was present, although Col. Russell Harrison, a son, and Mrs. Mary Harrison McKee, a daughter, were hurrying to his bedside. The funeral probably will take place on Sunday, March 17. Gen. Harrison was born at North Bend, O., in 1833, the son of John Scott Harrison. He was a descendant of a family whose name has been written throughout the story of American independence. Three of the name have been famous in the nation's history—William Henry Harrison, soldier and ninth President of the United States; Benjamin Harrison of Virginia, thrice governor of his state and signer of the Declaration of Independence, and the former President, a grandson of William Henry Harrison, who now lies dead.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—Two communications from Andrew Carnegie tell of the steel king's retirement from active business life and of his donation of $5,000,000, of which $4,000,000 is to be used for the endowment of a pension fund for superannuated and disabled employés of the Carnegie company, and $1,000,000 will be devoted to maintaining the libraries at Braddock, Homestead, and Duquesne, Pa., near this city.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 14, 1881.

ST. PETERSBURG.—Emperor Alexander II., czar of all the Russias, was assassinated by Nihilists at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The czar was returning from a parade when a bomb was thrown and exploded under his carriage, doing considerable damage to the vehicle. The emperor alighted unhurt, but just then a second bomb exploded at his feet, shattering both legs below the knee and inflicting other terrible injuries. He was immediately conveyed to the winter palace, where he shortly afterward died.

The explosion also killed an officer and two Cossacks, and many policemen and other persons, including Grand Duke Michael, were injured. Two persons were concerned in the crime, one of whom was seized immediately. An official messenger makes the following announcement: "God's will has been done. At 3:25 o'clock this [Sunday] afternoon the Almighty called the emperor to himself." The assassins were disguised as peasants. One report states that one of them was so roughly handled that he has since died. The bombs were said to have been made of thick glass filled with nitroglycerin. The first assassin gave his name as Rousakoff.

Alexander II., Nicholaiewitz, emperor of Russia, son of the Czar Nicholas and Alexandra Fredorovna, a sister of Frederick William IV., and William I. of Prussia, was born April 29, 1818. One of the greatest acts of his régime was the issuance of a ukase by which 25,000,000 serfs were freed. This was the sixth attempt on his life.

A BALANCED NOTE.

Chicago, March 12.—Your editorial of today on the Kirkland verdict strikes a balanced note. People on all sides are vehemently blaming prohibition in this connection, or as passionately denying its contribution. Any one, regardless of his personal conviction, who studies without excitement and with an open mind conditions as they exist among our young folks today must in all honesty admit that the road to lax living and destruction of decent restraint and morality is much easier, much speedier, far less liable to punishment than it was 15 to 20 years ago.

At a home club gathering a few days ago a letter published in this column signed Ex-Co-ed caused quite a bit of comment. The majority of those present were mothers and there was disappointment expressed over the verdict in the Kirkland case, most of us believing that in all justice and honesty the only verdict possible under Indiana law was that of death, even considering with great pity the plight of the murderer's mother. We wondered if Ex-Co-ed would carry her antipathy to the death penalty to the logical conclusion if her own life were threatened.

Also, we were amused at the naïve assumption that girls could "always take care of themselves under any circumstances." I wonder how many girls who have so smugly relied on their wit, resourcefulness, strength, and the correctly timed blow could, if they would, tell of a losing fight? MRS. F.

THE HELPLESS GIRL.

Chicago, March 12.—How I wish that the Ex-Co-ed could have been in Arlene Draves' place!

Won't she please tell what defense a girl would have if a boy led her out to a car under pretense of taking her home and then, when she was all unsuspecting, gave her a blow on the jaw that would knock a man out and ravished her before she came to? I want to know because I'm a mother.

If Arlene was to blame then all the girls and women who are slugged and dragged into alleys are to blame for being out at that time and place.

LILLIE HAMILTON.

ABOUT PARENTS.

Chicago, March 12.—I'm an average girl, free, white, and 21. I have gone to one of these so-called corrupt seats of learning and I've had as many good times as could be crowded into the life of one so young. And yet of all the young people that I know in this town and others there isn't one, male or female, who doesn't have to account to his or her parents for all their movements. And the parents, those that I know are all very fine, well educated people who have their children's every interest at heart. But they aren't old boors who chastise a game of bridge or see a lot of filth in a decent, well conducted dance.

And, too, I object strenuously to L. W. S.'s unfounded statement that "most parents do not even know where they [the reprobate youths] are." I'm sure that the young people I know are fairly representative, and none of them leave their homes without the knowledge of their parents, to drink and indulge in other types of rot in which their dear folks would not approve; and believe me, if they should err, their parents would know it soon enough. The odor of liquor on the breath is not so subtle that a mother or dad can't get it within twenty feet or more. I see no reason whatsoever for any young persons concealing their whereabouts from the finest people that live—their mothers and dads. It just isn't done, anyway—not by the majority of average young people from normally well regulated homes.

The only girl I have ever known who really went bad—in fact, rotten—was the daughter of the most bigoted old fool who ever lived. He wouldn't even let her laugh out loud. Take your choice, I've got mine.

MARGARET WILLIAMS.

WHAT TO DO?

Chicago, March 11.—Should a young man like Virgil Kirkland go scot-free? For the protection of society and the example to others, emphatically no. But of what avail is either a long prison sentence or the electric chair? A long term in prison, as a general rule, makes a man more bitter, more desperate, much more nearly a criminal than he was when he entered. The electric chair ushers him swiftly into eternity before he has had a chance to atone in any way for his misdeed. Does either form of punishment make crime to cease? Long years of futile experimentation would lead one to think that, What, then, should be the method of administering justice? Virgil Kirkland is mentally and spiritually ill and should be treated as a sick man. For such time as it would take to send him back to society capable of becoming a useful citizen he should be confined under the sympathetic care of specialists in mental diseases. Such a method is regenerative and constructive. LYDIA GLOVER DEMO.

GOING TO PEORIA.

Chicago, March 12.—C. H. Rainch states in the Voice of the People that the Rock Island railroad excursion rate is $6 from Chicago to Peoria and $3 from Peoria to Chicago. I take the trip frequently, and never paid more than $3.75 excursion rate from Chicago. Where does he buy his tickets?

J. J. WAGNER.

THE NEGRO VOTE.

Chicago, March 10.—In Monday's TRIBUNE it was stated that Mayor Thompson in the straw poll conducted the day before received 73 per cent of the colored votes, and the statement reminded me that I am frequently asked by white friends why the colored votes so strongly favor him. I always answer, with pardonable pride, that the colored people are instinctively loyal. I have heard much argument as to whether he is really friendly, even among colored people themselves, but the great essential fact is they think so, that is the great majority of them. In all of his campaigns he makes much of this loyalty in his speeches to them so that on election day they go to the polls much as the old crusaders used to go to war.

Politically, the colored people have always been loyal to the Republican party, chiefly because they have been made to believe that that party was more friendly toward their progress as citizens than the other major party.

Mayor Thompson may never have read a book on behaviorism, but he can certainly write one, and he seems to know just what to say and what to do to keep the colored man's enthusiasm at fever heat. In the primary campaign he is alleged to have said at one of his meetings in the 2d ward: "If I talked here for two hours I couldn't make a vote, for every damned one of you will vote for me any way." To most any other group of citizens such a remark from a candidate would be taken as an insult, but the colored folks saw only one meaning, the one he intended them to see—no other candidate could possibly be so friendly toward their group as William Hale Thompson. His political meetings among colored people are not political meetings at all—they are revivals.

In your article you note a loss to the mayor in Sunday's straws, a small loss to be sure, but none the less a loss. You call attention to the fact that in 1919 Sweitzer and Hoyne polled 43 per cent of the votes in the 1st, 2d, 3d and 4th wards and cite these figures as illustrative of what can be done then in a properly conducted campaign by Democrats. May it not be that these trends show a rising tendency among thoughtful Negro voters to question the wisdom of bloc voting? I know that there is such a tendency. They are wondering if it is not wiser, after all, to cast their votes as Americans rather than as Negroes—that is, when the whites permit them to do so. Wondering if after all it is not more essential to have good government per se than to feel so much concern about how a candidate feels about a black face. They see that economically the colored people are largely dependent on the whites. A few jobs in the city hall or the legislature make things rosy for these who hold them, but the great masses must look to private enterprise for opportunity if they are to keep the wolf from the door. If the majority of the owners of private enterprise desire for the welfare of business that certain political conditions prevail and the aforementioned Negro masses, out of mistaken loyalty to individuals or to party, prevent that consummation, those masses lose more than they can possibly gain by voting to obstruct the general wishes of the community.

Unconditional allegiance to any individual or to any political party is a bad thing for any group of people, and it will be a grand thing for Chicago when the possible outcome of a vote in the 2d, 3d and 4th wards can no more be predicted with certainty than the vote in any other of the fifty wards.

CHICAGO SENDS SINGLE JUDGE TO SUPREME COURT

City's Growth Ignored in Districting.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 13.—[Special.]—Inequalities in the seven Supreme court districts are being studied as an instance of minority control in government, due to lack of reapportionment.

JUSTICE DE YOUNG.

The present districts stand almost as set up in the constitution of 1870 when it was adopted. In sixty-one years only six counties out of the 102 have been shifted.

As Illinois' population has trebled in the six decades and the industrial regions have grown and rural sections have receded, the districts have become so lopsided and uneven that they show the following rather astonishing aspect:

Fifty-seven per cent of the state's population in the Seventh district, which includes Cook county, elects one Supreme court justice, Frederic R. De Young of Chicago.

The remaining 43 per cent of the population elects six justices of the Supreme bench, the high tribunal of the judiciary, one of the three coördinate branches of government.

Chances Are Limited.

Opportunities for redistricting are regarded as limited. Five of the districts could be changed by the legislature of 1933. The constitution says the boundaries of districts may be changed "at the session of the general assembly next preceding the election for judges therein, and at no other time."

It also says that whenever alterations are made "the same shall be upon the rule of equality of population, as nearly as county boundaries will allow; and the districts shall be composed of contiguous counties, in as nearly compact form as circumstances will permit." A change in boundaries does not affect the tenure of any judge.

Elected for Nine Years.

The supreme judges are elected for nine year terms. Five of the seven have terms expiring in 1933.

It has been held that under the constitution, the legislature is empowered to change the boundaries of a particular district at the session which convenes next preceding the election of a judge in that district. Lawyers view this as meaning the 1933 legislature is empowered to redistrict in the case of the five districts which will elect supreme judges in June, 1933.

Here is the population of the seven districts as they stand now and as they were in 1870, when the constitution was adopted:

District and Justice.	1930.	1870.
1. Duncan	685,374	362,040
2. Farmer	571,843	397,842
3. Dunn	716,260	466,533
4. Orr	401,909	336,031
5. Jones	437,983	283,656
6. Heard	514,254	298,039
7. De Young	4,339,335	455,080
	7,630,654	2,530,891

Cook county, which contains 52 per cent of the population, is only part of a district, as the Seventh also includes the counties of Lake, Will, Kankakee, and Du Page. The district has increased ten fold in the sixty years since it was established.

Cook Furnishes Most Cases.

More than half the cases in the Supreme court come from Cook county, and legal experts have maintained that modern problems need judges acquainted with metropolitan conditions. But the district, with 57 per cent of the state's population, still elects only one-seventh of the Supreme court. The court sits in judgment on the acts of the legislature and determines their validity.

As to Cook county, for years the assumption has been that the phrase "as nearly as county boundaries will allow" should be construed to mean that a district must be bounded by county lines. This would mean no county could have more than one district. Members of the Supreme bench have said this is the attitude taken by most of the justices. Also the seven saying districts shall be "composed of contiguous counties" has been held by downstaters as meaning that a district must have at least two counties. Some have maintained, however, that Cook county might be divided into districts on the "equality of population" basis.

Reform Effort Likely.

An effort is expected to be made to even up the downstate districts, and to make Cook county at least one district in itself.

The five judges whose terms expire in 1933 are: Justice De Young [7th]; Warren W. Duncan, Marion [1st]; William M. Farmer, Vandalia [2d]; Frank K. Dunn, Charleston [3d]; Oscar E. Heard, Freeport [6th].

In the sixty-one years since the 1870 constitution was adopted, the only changes made in the Supreme court districts have been as follows: Pike and Scott counties were taken from the 4th and placed in the 2d; Rock Island was changed from the 4th to the 6th; Mercer, Warren, and Henderson were switched from the 6th to the 4th—a total shift of only six counties. Meanwhile the state population has grown from 2,539,000 to 7,630,000.

RADICALS HOLD DEMOCRATS ARE ONLY HOPE NOW

President Is Assailed by Senator Norris.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—"If the Democrats nominate home one who is worse than Hoover—which would be a difficult thing to do," said Senator George W. Norris, Republican insurgent of Nebraska, today, "why, then, I, for my part, would go fishing."

He was summing up the results of the "progressive conference," of which he was chairman and which concluded yesterday with the adoption of a legislative program.

"The progressives' only hope," he said, "lies in the Democratic party."

President "for Big Business."

"President Hoover's record has shown that he is on the side of big business and the monopolies," Senator Norris declared.

He decried any third party movement. Such movements had failed in the past, he pointed out and would continue to fail until direct presidential primaries were adopted.

He was confident that the "progressive conference" had helped stimulate public opinion to a realization of the country's political ills.

"And that public opinion," he prophesied, "will have to be reckoned with by both major parties. I look to see it reflected in their platforms. While it is a foregone conclusion that President Hoover intends to be renominated, the Democratic choice is still open and on this choice I believe that 'progressive' sentiment will have considerable influence."

Will Seek No Trade.

The radical groups in the two houses of congress, he asserted, would seek no trade by which, in return for support of their legislative program, they would help one party or the other to organize.

Prohibition, as he saw it, he insisted, was an issue less important than the pressing economic issues of the day. He would, he conceded, support a movement for modification—but first, enforcement should be totally divorced from politics and prohibition given a fair chance.

Senator Dickinson [Rep., Ia.], chairman of the newly formed advisory council for agriculture of the Republican national committee, issued a statement which said that the conference had failed to develop "even one proposal which would create a single job for any workman in the United States, or add a single cent to farm prices."

Calls Findings "Amusing."

He termed the findings of the conference as to agriculture "amusing," and pointed to the administration measures which had maintained the prices of the principal farm commodities above the world level.

"Another singular thing about the conference," he said, "was the failure of a single speaker to recognize or even mention that the depression in large degree arose from causes outside of the United States and from drought within. All the suggestions for remedying the depression were based on the proposition that we could control depressions solely by action within our own borders.

Doubts Farmers Will Benefit.

"Perhaps the various commissions appointed by the conference [although all commissions were roundly denounced] may bring forward at some future time some concrete proposals by which some worker will get a job or some farmer will get more for his products."

From the radical camp the word went out that if the Republican regulars carried out their plan of touring the farm lands, telling what the administration had done for agriculture, a band of radical orators, led, perhaps, by Senator Borah of Idaho, would follow in their tracks dispensing "the truth."

CONGRESS VOTES 400 MILLION AID, TILSON FIGURES

Construction Funds on His List.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—Representative John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, majority leader of the house, did some arithmetic today and figured out that the recent session of congress had appropriated no less than 400 million dollars in relief measures, which he listed as follows:

Emergency construction act	$116,000,000
Emergency construction item in first deficiency act	18,000,000
Additional appropriation for federal aid to highways	42,000,000
Advances to reclamation fund	5,000,000
Drought relief, including seed loans	60,000,000
Increase in public building appropriations and authorizations for new buildings	116,000,000
Advance to shipping board construction loan fund	35,000,000
Total	$398,000,000

This total, he pointed out, omitted the 250 millions for the farm board's revolving fund and such sums as may be necessary under the veteran's service certificate act.

"The congress," said Mr. Tilson, "has shown a lively interest in the welfare of government employés and of labor in general by the passage of laws giving half holidays every week to postal employés, Saturday half holidays throughout the year to other government employés, and requiring that prevailing wage rates in the vicinity where the work is done be paid by all contractors on government building projects."

In spite of heavy expenditures, Mr. Tilson said congress has carried out a policy of economy in so far as it has been possible to do so without conflicting with the relief program.

105,766 BONUS CHECKS HANDLED FIRST WEEK, GEN. HINES REPORTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—During the first week following passage of the veterans' bonus loan bill, the veterans' bureau received 966,793 applications and sent out 105,766 checks totaling $40,358,811, Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, head of the bureau, reported to President Hoover today.

The output is expected to increase about 50 per cent this week and shortly to reach a peak of 200,000 payments a week, Brig. Gen. Hines told the President. The bureau, he said, had exceeded expectations in the dispatch with which the applications were being handled, and he explained that it had been necessary to employ and train 1,200 additional clerks to handle the work.

Cases showing emergency or urgent need are given definite priority, Brig. Gen. Hines stated, but this necessarily slows up action on the mass of regular applications. He again emphasized that veterans should apply for loans only in case of actual necessity and should apply in their own communities or by mail to the bureau and then wait a reasonable length of time before attempting to "follow up" their cases.

"Every time a veteran writes or phones to the bureau about his account and requests a report on it, he simply delays and impedes its adjustment," Brig. Gen. Hines said, explaining that, in order to reply to an inquiry, the file must be secured, and action on it came to a standstill.

This Veteran's Bonus Loan Lands Him in Prison

Columbus, Ind., March 11.—[Special.]—Curt Davis, 40, on receiving a check for $500 for a loan on his veteran's compensation certificate, went to Indianapolis, bought an automobile and was arrested on his return when five gallons of liquor were found in the car. He pleaded guilty on four liquor charges in Bartholomew Circuit court and his fine, with costs totaled $340. He also was sentenced to one to two years in state prison and two thirty day terms at the state penal farm. His driver's license was suspended for a year. He also will lose the car.

Eugene O'Neill Denies Ever Seeing Woman's Book

New York, March 13.—(AP)—Eugene O'Neill declared in a deposition read in federal court today that he never heard of Miss Georges Lewys or her book, "Temple of Pallas-Athene," until she charged he had plagiarized the work for his play, "Strange Interlude."

The deposition of the author, who is being sued for $2,000,000, was taken in Paris.

O'Neill stated he began actual writing of the play in Bermuda in the summer of 1926. He continued writing while in Nantucket and Belgrade Lakes, Me., and finished the play in Bermuda in 1927. He said he worked alone on the manuscript, but had discussed various phases of the work with George Jean Nathan, critic; Dr. G. V. Hamilton, of the Rockefeller foundation; George Pierce Baker, professor of drama at Yale, under whom O'Neill studied at Harvard when Dr. Baker taught there in 1914, and Kenneth MacGowan.

Masters Draws Strange Picture Called Lincoln

Doesn't Seem to Hurt Abe, Reviewer Says.

BY OLIVER R. BARRETT.

"Lincoln, the Man," by Edgar Lee Masters [Dodd Mead].

In the first chapter of "Lincoln, the Man," Mr. Masters advises the reader that he has no new facts to produce; that he has taken from earlier biographies such facts as he has used "as a basis of analysis of Lincoln's mind and character." That Mr. Masters' analysis has produced conclusions undreamed by the biographers who gathered the facts will appear in the following extracts from the index of his book. [The page references are omitted]:

LINCOLN, ABRAHAM—Intellectual cunning; twisting dialectic; equivocation and duplicity; undersexed man; demagogue; reputed tenderness; cruelty; compared with Robespierre.

The restraint in the index does not hold in the text. The following examples selected at random will suffice:

"... "the obscene mouth of the Jewish Jehovah"; "Lincoln was a Jehovah man"; "smeared over with religion."

Over a period of many years the proof of Lincoln's honesty and his will to do right has been slowly and painstakingly accumulated. All civilized nations have paid tribute to that honesty. In those tributes has inhered a belief—and from them has come the creed of a faith—that it is worth while to try to cling to the principles of honesty and integrity.

Mr. Masters, from this same proof, interprets Lincoln's honesty as duplicity, and warns us "that most so-called moral principles are illusions."

In a school text book published during the civil war for the use of the children of the confederacy, one of the lessons began: "Abraham Lincoln is a poor, weak man."

Mr. Masters' book is an ill-timed echo of "the lost cause" in which he repeats at length the old arguments for slavery and secession, and retouches the picture of the "poor weak man."

A book which challenges attention only by an overload of abuse and error is provocative of an inquiry into the reason for its writing, yet such inquiry at best is only a deduction.

Edgar Lee Masters in 1898, then about 30 years of age, brought forth his first literary effort, a thin, flat book of thin, flat verses, followed by four or five of similar merit, all "yawned into oblivion."

In 1915 a reading public sated with the smooth confectionery style, welcomed his "Spoon River Anthology." it was a sensational success.

After this his books came thick and fast — poetry, novels, and dramatic-verse. In his "Spoon River Anthology" he had glimpsed over the top of mediocrity, but from the infection of that fatal praise he became too fearless, too painfully analytical, and too willing to warm over and serve up his earlier successes. His popularity waned, the public turned to newer lights, and now his "Abraham Lincoln, the Man" appears—a volume of protest.

In this book Mr. Masters seems to state a cause to which might be attributed his wrath toward Lincoln:

"Our greatest Americans are Jefferson, Whitman, and Emerson; and the praise that has been bestowed on Lincoln is a robbery of these his superiors."

But Lincoln's fame detracts from none of these. Jefferson wrought in founding, Lincoln in maintaining, the republic. Emerson, who has no rival to his fame, said of Lincoln: "His heart was as great as the world, but there was no room in it to hold the memory of a wrong," and Whitman (who divides his fame only with Poe) wrote: "O Captain! My Captain!"

One who had not endured could not write so revealingly as Mr. Masters has in these lines about Lincoln—while thinking about himself: "He could not stand the pangs of obscurity and rejection, and these feelings were made more bitter by the envy that makes inequity of honors bestowed on others and not on one's self."

It may be true, as has been said, that Mr. Masters has written with a "passion for justice"—but the passion is all for Lincoln, the justice for Mr. Masters. His contribution seems only the protest of a neglected genius.

The book is worth reading as one of the curiosities of literature, and when it is finished the memory of Lincoln will emerge no more harmed than would be his monument by the act of some angry boy who casts his mite of mud for the sun to dry and the winds to disperse. The monument will stand.

Now It Seems De Vere Wrote Shakespeare Plays

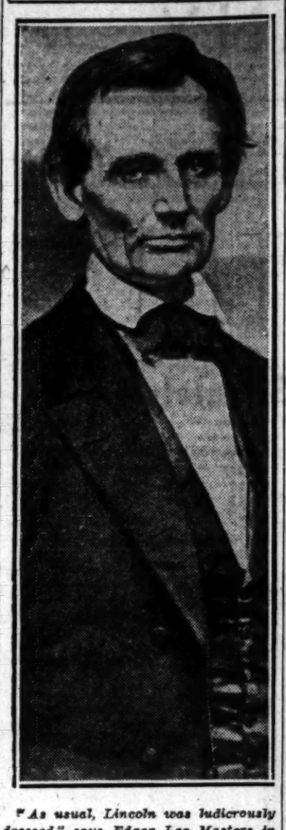

"Hidden Allusions in Shakespeare's Plays," by Eva Turner Clark [Payson], is a lengthy volume, the result of four years' research which convinced the author that the plays attributed to William Shakespeare were really written by Edward de Vere, 17th earl of Oxford. She shares with you all her findings. If you, after almost 700 pages, are still unconvinced that's just too bad.

If the Panic Hit You This May Be of Interest

"Our Mysterious Panics, 1830-1930," by Charles C. Collman [Morrow], tells the whole tale of the series of panics which have been dramatic periods in American financial history. Panics are the result of human events rather than inevitable cycles, the author asserts, and gives interesting examples of his theory.

REFUTES MASTERS

"As usual, Lincoln was ludicrously dressed," says Edgar Lee Masters in his controversial "Abraham Lincoln the Man." This photograph, the original of which is owned by Oliver R. Barrett, was taken by Brady on the day of the Cooper Union speech, which was the occasion that called forth Mr. Masters' description. The picture disproves the allegation.

Antarctic and Spain Supply Books for Young

Others Are Derived from Climes In Between.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.

[Director of Children's Work for Branches in the Chicago Public Library.]

"A Book of Marionettes," by Helen H. Joseph (Viking).

"Wind from Spain," by Marguerite Aspinwall (Century.)

"A Boy Scout with Byrd," by Paul Siple (Putnam).

Among the new books for older boys and girls are Marguerite Aspinwall's "Wind from Spain" and Paul Siple's "A Boy Scout with Byrd."

The first is a story of a young girl who as a result of a railroad accident loses her sense of identity and finds herself alone amongst people who know her only through their acquaintance with her brother who has suddenly been called to Yucatan. They take her to their home on Nantucket island for the summer, and the tale is woven about the life there.

The story is for the most part unconvincing with coincidence playing a rather large part in the development of the plot and lacking in the fine atmosphere which made "The Sea Girl" an earlier story of Nantucket by this author, a very good one.

Paul Siple's story of his adventures with the Byrd expedition as told in "A Boy Scout with Byrd" is an unusually good one for this series of books by young authors. The writer was selected from the Boy Scout organization to accompany the expedition and the book is an account of experiences encountered. The author is somewhat older than the earlier boy authors represented in this series, and his part in the venture was more than that of an observer only. It is illustrated with photographs, and is an excellent account of the famous expedition for the boy for whom "Little America" would prove too difficult.

Revival of popular interest in marionettes and marionette shows as an educational as well as recreational activity in the last few years makes especially valuable the revised edition of Helen Haiman Joseph's "A Book of Marionettes." Originally published in 1919 it has been recognized as an invaluable aid in the study and development of the marionette theater since its publication.

Gentleman of Feudal Notions Meets New Ideas

"The Cast Iron Duke," by Stephen McKenna [Dodd Mead] is the author of "Sonia" in a satiric mood. The creed of the Duke of Leominster comes direct from the middle ages. His is a feudal dukedom and mankind his vassals. Wives should be selected like horses, for their breeding points, he declares. Rights for women and esthetics for men are alike inconceivable. What happens to him when he encounters modernity are the delights which the book offers.

Here's Story of Wife, Mother and Author, Too

Mary Roberts Rinehart Writes of Life.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"My Story," by Mary Roberts Rinehart. [Farrar and Rinehart.]

It was 3:30 of a chill morning. Huddled among pillows and under eiderdowns, there was a person so intent upon the book in her hands that she had not known when the clock had dashed from nine to ten, from ten to midnight and through the hours that followed. When the last words were read and, still in a pleasant daze, she looked at her watch—that 3:30 shocked her. Sheer human reality had kept her Sheer human reality had kept her tense for hours. Forever [she sometimes thought] books had been flowing under the bridge of her spectacles and she could almost count on her fingers the number of times that any book had tossed off time so completely.

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART.

That person was your friend the literary editor. That book was "My Story," the autobiography of one of America's most popular novelists.

"My Story" is something much more than a merely popular book about a popular writer. It is the autobiography of a great artist, in the greatest of all the arts, the art of life. Mrs. Rinehart has achieved a success with her writing which has made her an international figure. But "My Story" is not the story of that achievement. It is the story of a woman who has lived with courage, zest and gallantry, who has been first of all a successful woman and after that a successful writer. Her first job in life has been that of a wife and a mother. Never once has she lost her sense of human values. Fame was something with which she enriched her home, not something to which she sacrificed her human relationships.

"My Story" covers a period in American life when there was much talk about the independence of women, when women [in fiction and fact] tried to "live their own lives," when the home was no longer looked upon by the intellectuals as a career, when the family was disintegrating. For the thousands of women—and heroines—who threw upon the altar of their ambitions their husbands, their children, all of their human responsibilities in their passion to be "free," here was a woman who wanted her life to be enriched because of what it would mean to her family, who didn't want to be "free," and who achieved a fulfillment which the more militant seekers never even touched. Her success as a writer was brilliant, but her success as a woman was phenomenal. In a period when it was the intellectual fashion for women to be free, she was among the pioneers. When she entered a nurses' training school at seventeen it wasn't being done. When she wrote her first play she signed it Rinehart Roberts, because women weren't playwrights in those days. She was the first person to visit the Belgian front during the war and write about it. She did many pioneer things. But all of those things she did as an enrichment to, not as a substitute for, that popularly scorned and outmoded institution, "the family." She managed to create a happy and fulfilled life for her husband and her three sons as well as for herself.

There is no word of any of these highsounding things in "My Story." They are tacit in the pleasant record, just as deep affection and true friendship are often implied in a casual "hello." "My Story" is a gay book, genuinely amusing, although like all reality it is deeply moving and it makes you weep at times. There are no psychoses in it, no talks of adjustment. There is really, when you think back, very little that is even intimate in it, only a line or two here and there. But when you have finished it you know the author as you know the person nearest to you spiritually, and you envy her not so much all of the brilliant and happy and enchanting things that have happened to her so much as that wisdom [likewise implied and never spoken] which life has taught her. "My Story," on its face the pleasant story of the life of a popular novelist, is to this reader, and I believe it will be to most other readers—a great human document.

'THE GARDEN' CALLED BETTER NOVEL THAN 'THE JEALOUS GHOST'

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Some weeks ago I reported news of Neil H. Gunn's forthcoming novel, "Morning Tides." This book, as I foresaw, is now a minor sensation in London. Considering how little it accords with the fashionable, or recently fashionable, style of novel, its success is a very hopeful sign.

L. A. G. STRONG.

"Morning Tides," though slight in theme, for it is not, properly speaking, a novel, but a collection of many episodes in the life of a boy, shows an imaginative gift which recalls that of D. H. Lawrence. The subject matter of Mr. Gunn's book resembles the subject matter of, say, "Sons and Lovers," only in so far as that book gives us a piercing glimpse of family life and the true character of a sensitive child, but I can think of no other writer who has such a gift for the small, significant details of a boy's mind. Nor does Mr. Gunn fail when it comes to rich and vivid descriptions of exciting scenes. He may become a great writer.

There is another novelist of whom I have similar hopes. This is L. A. G. Strong. Mr. Strong's second novel, "The Jealous Ghost," was, perhaps, hardly robust enough to impress any but those who knew what gifts Mr. Strong has shown in earlier work, but he has now written a third long and very attractive book called "The Garden." Here, too, the hero's boyhood is described with great delicacy and great insight; and he is taken to very early manhood in a close and beautiful study.

Mr. Strong has been a schoolmaster, but the favorable reception given to his early work, "Dewer Rides," and a volume of short sketches, "The English Captain," has encouraged him to take the risk of giving up schoolmastering and devoting himself to literature.

Still a third young writer, Lionel Britton, has written his first novel. It is a huge affair, called "Hunger and Love," and it is to be presented to the world for a preface by Bertrand Russell. Mr. Britton is the author of the play "Brain," which so completely staggered Bernard Shaw. He is described by Mr. Russell as "an intellectual proletarian," and this is an interesting fact. We have become used to the intellectual who is suffering from too much education, as Mr. Ivor Brown has called him, "a man who has been educated above his intelligence," but an uneducated man, or one who has educated himself, who is as much of a highbrow as the best of the educated highbrows, is something of a novelty in these days. Seven hundred pages, and more, of proletarian intellect will be enshrined in the novel "Hunger and Love." It will create a sensation.

China Provides Lively Themes for Writers

So Is Discussed in Big Way at Teas.

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—This was a somewhat off week for visitors and literary teas. There was a small farewell party given by Ruth Aley for Henry Williamson, now bound for England. And at that the guest of honor was absent because of a bad cold.

Mr. Williamson has spent the winter in New York and liked it. Differing in opinion from most English visitors, he says it is an excellent place for work.

If you want seclusion and quiet here, it is only necessary to change your hotel or take an apartment and neglect to notify your acquaintances, he says. After ringing up the old address once, or failing to hear from you for a week, they will assume you've left the city and forget it.

Blair and Robin Niles, Lucille Douglass, Thomas Boyd and his wife, Elmer Davis and his wife, and Will Cuppy were among the other guests at the Aley cocktail party. Blair Niles has just finished a novel, her second. She said she thought the present tendency was to write novels too long.

She confessed that it might depend a good deal on the novel and on personal predilections.

Elmer Davis said he had started a novel about a father and daughter last summer, but gave it up; it would not jell. Then a few weeks ago he picked up Struthers Burt's latest, "Festival," and found it had the same theme.

Thomas Boyd has just finished a biography of Light Horse Harry Lee, father of Robert E. Lee. Being accused vaguely of writing on the civil war, he repudiated the charge. He said his interests were exclusively early American. When whiskers appeared in American history, he said, he lost interest. The type changed entirely; the shaven American was hard-bitten, hard-swearing, hard-drinking, aristocratic, and elegant. The bearded American became rather pious, respectable, and sometimes hypocritical.

Mr. Boyd himself is clean-shaven, fair, young, husky, and "full of strange oaths," like his admired revolutionary heroes.

Over on Park avenue the other afternoon tea was being served in celebration of Inez Haynes Irwin's new novel, "The Family," her first in three years.

Mrs. Irwin enjoys the freedom which writing gives for living wherever one wishes. New York in wintertime—she and Will have a big rambling house in Greenwich Village on West 11th street. Many of the Village streets have less abstract names; some of them—Elizabeth, Perry, Cornelia, and Christopher—she used as names of characters in "The Family."

Summertimes the Irwins move to the country, and between seasons come trips abroad, sometimes business, sometimes just for the pleasure of "batting around funny parts of the world."

Whether short story or novel, Mrs. Irwin always dictates the first draft; she got the habit from Will. "Will never even takes notes—he loses them if he does. He tucks data away in his retentive memory, which clings to all sorts of intricate statistics although it will forget immediately in what pocket he put a notebook. But I," declares Mrs. Irwin enviously, "have the feminine faculty of remembering where things are, and I lean heavily upon memoranda until after the first draft is dictated. This accomplished, writing for me is sheer pleasure."

To the Man Who Knows Its Origin Every Word Presents a Picture

Originally the Word
CANDIDATE
Meant One Clothed in White!

In Latin, candidus means "glittering," "white." Among the ancient Romans, a man campaigning for office wore a white toga and was called candidatus, "one clothed in white." Directly from this origin comes our word candidate. It is interesting to note that from the same source comes our adjective candid, meaning, literally, "white," and applied figuratively to a mental quality unclouded by dissimulation or bias.

This is but one of the many thousands of fascinating stories about the origins of English words which you will find in

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

A number of them have been presented in a handsome, illustrated booklet which we will be glad to send you free on request.

Not only do these word stories make the most interesting reading, but to know them will give you an effectiveness in speaking and writing that can come in no other way. When you know the origins and the essential meanings of words, as they are presented in The Merriam-Webster, your own use of words will become more forceful, accurate, and colorful.

The Merriam-Webster gives you the whole word power of the English language. It is a library in one volume, its type matter equivalent to a 15-volume encyclopedia. Its encyclopedic information makes it a general question-answerer on all subjects. In its 2,700 pages there are 452,000 entries including thousands of new words; 12,000 biographical entries; 32,000 geographical subjects; 100 valuable tables; over 6,000 illustrations.

THE SIXTH JOURNEY
BY ALICE GRANT ROSMAN

SYNOPSIS.

John Falconer, a successful architect, returning home to England from Cape Town, meets Hilary Revel, author of travel books, on shipboard. During the journey home their acquaintance grows into a friendship neither wishes to end.

John tells Hilary of his daughter, Judith, born of a café singer while he was a soldier. His wife, John says, had magnanimously adopted the child. Hilary suspects such magnanimity. John's sister, Gertrude, became Judith's legal guardian when his wife died.

Hilary had taken her war invalided brother, Hugh, away from home ten years ago to give her younger sister, Christine, and brother, Stephen, a better chance. Now that Hugh was dead, Hilary was returning home. Hilary is not met when the boat docks and John takes her to her door. Hilary's stepfather, the only sympathetic member of her family, tells her that Hugh left her his possessions in trust, to be settled on her at her marriage or to buy her an annuity at the age of forty if still single.

The next day after their return John takes Hilary to luncheon. He tells her he loves her and asks her to marry him, and Hilary accepts.

Judith leads a lonely life in her aunt's home. She has a private teacher, Miss Mead, while her cousins are away at school. Her cousin, Prue, is her only friend in her aunt's house. Her father she knows as Uncle John. She senses she is different in some way from other children. When Aunt Gertrude hears of her brother's engagement she send Judith to the country. Then she invites Hilary and John to dinner.

INSTALLMENT XVIII.
THE YOUNG GENERATION.

"John and I rather want a very simple wedding," said Hilary.

"My dear, no! O come, we can't allow that with such an attractive bride. After all, we are only married once."

"That's one for you," remarked Prudence darkly to Falconer across the table.

"Prudence! I'm ashamed of you. Have you no sense of decency? A man is an entirely different matter," declared Mrs. Livingstone, slightly flustered at her own slip. "Weddings are a woman's province, and all men hate the fuss, we know, but they must not be selfish. Now, what I should suggest . . ."

She would have planned the entire ceremony had not Falconer interposed: "If you say another word, Gertrude, we shall be married at a registry office and tell you when it's over."

"Of course if you take it like that!" returned his sister, offended.

When dinner was over she told Prudence to take her uncle into the garden to smoke his cigar, and carried Hilary back to the drawing room.

"Girls of that age are so tactless," she said; "you must not mind her unfortunate remark."

Hilary was amused. "Not at all. I knew John was a widower before I had ever met him, and it isn't a sensitive point."

"Very sensible of you. Poor Sylvia, she was a sweet girl and we were all devoted to her, but it is a weight off my mind that John has been able to put his grief aside. A man needs a home, and a woman who will consider him and help his career. . . . And above all, my dear," said Mrs. Livingstone, her voice sinking to a discreet Victorian whisper, "he needs children."

Hilary, thinking of Christine, was seized by a hysterical desire to laugh. She wondered how many Gertrude would advise.

Coffee arrived at this moment and with it a nervous looking girl who wished to know if there were any letters to be posted.

"My——er——secretary, Miss Mead," said Gertrude. "Yes, in the morning room, Miss Mead, if you will be so good. . . . I have so much correspondence. . . . And, where were we? O yes——" Mrs. Livingstone laughed. "I hope you will put your foot down and not allow John to be so foolish about the wedding. Now, my advice is . . ."

She had almost reached the ceremony by the bishop when John walked in from the garden, followed by the bored figure of his niece.

"Are we to see Judy tonight, or is it past her bedtime," he inquired.

"O, long past and, to be quite truthful, she is in the country. She was looking a little pale and as lessons are of no great importance at that age I've sent her off to romp on a farm and get her roses back. We are speaking of a little ward of mine," remarked Gertrude to her guest.

"Yes, I've heard about Judith," returned Hilary.

"Of course." Not quite knowing how to take this, Mrs. Livingstone added sweetly, "Dear Sylvia's adopted niece."

Prudence, strolling across the room, met Miss Revel's eyes and winked.

"Is she not strong, then?" inquired Falconer.

"O, perfectly. A wiry little thing. But London is no place for children in the summer, and good country air is so essential. And then she is with her old nurse and will be so well looked after. You remember Tracy?"

"I should have thought she would be better at school," suggested John, frowning.

"No, quite out of the question." Gertrude's tone was short. "Prudence, give your uncle his coffee. . . . And now, Hilary, you must tell us all about John's wonderful library in Cape Town. You know what he is; I have been able to get nothing from him."

Judith was deftly dismissed.

When the visitors were departing Prudence sauntered out to the taxi with them.

"O, thanks for offering to give me tea in town," she remarked pointedly to Hilary.

Her aunt elect felt she disliked Prudence Livingstone intensely.

"I'm a good deal occupied just now," she said; "later on we must arrange it."

"Don't let me put you out." The girl looked at her with a kind of cool scorn, shut the taxi door and watched them drive away.

"Prudence has grown into a thorough little cub," said Falconer with disgust. "Odd, she used to seem rather a nice kid to me."

"Pretty-ish in her way," remarked Hilary. She felt herself entirely out of sympathy with the young generation. Christine had seemed to her shallow and self-seeking and too ostentatiously sophisticated for words, but at least she was frank about it and would scorn to express her superior knowledge in winks and hints. It did not occur to her that frankness would be unlikely to flourish in Gertrude's neighborhood, and the idea that Prudence wished to suggest some common understanding with her about little Judith was revolting. "I must be a thorough Rip Van Winkle," she said to John in dismay. "I am beginning to think this word 'modern' is just an excuse for every possible breach of good taste. And ten years ago I suppose my elders were thinking much the same about me."

"Yes, we all go through it. Each generation reacts violently against the hypocrisy of the one before, and believes it is doing something new and surprising. . . . And then falls into hypocrisies of its own."

"It will need our children to point them out to us, I suppose," said Hilary, "and we shall be too far gone in crime by then to believe them. We'll talk indulgently of these modern young people. O, John, I shall be more than thirty years older than my daughter if I have one, and it's too much."

Falconer, gathering her into his arms, said tenderly:

"You will never be old, my darling. It isn't in you. You grow younger and younger every hour."

"I suspect that is your hypocrisy," she smiled, "but keep it up, won't you, I like it."

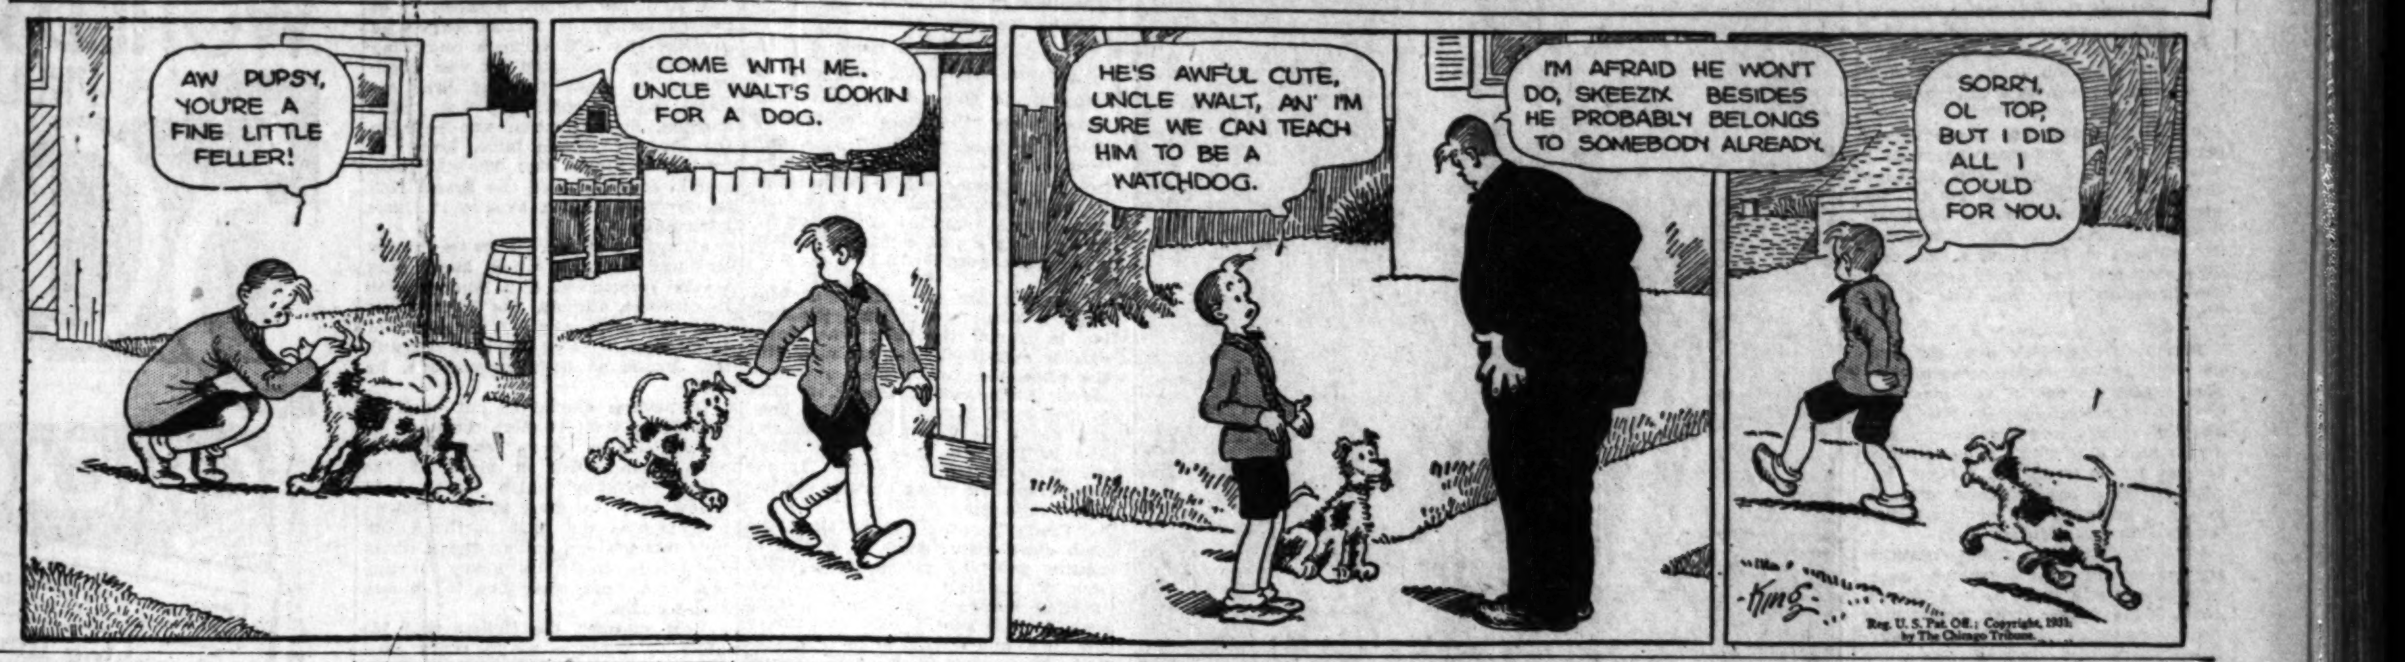

. . . .

Falconer lay thinking of the woman he loved, his very wakefulness a [illegible] because it spoke of her. Sleep and he had long been on uneasy terms and it had annoyed him on his return to London to find no bedroom available in the club but this one looking on Pall Mall. Now the swift whirr of passing cars, the echo of occasional footsteps in the still street below seemed part of the rhythm of his happiness. There was no past. It had dropped away, and he felt young and tireless, every nerve in him awake to her sweetness and his need of her. He could see each turn of her head, every smile she had given him, hear the changing tones of her voice, loving her laughter, and the quick flash of anger in her gray eyes, her wisdom, her foolishness, her fun. With her were peace and happiness and all the beauty of the world.

GASOLINE ALLEY—WALT IS HARD TO PLEASE

Order to Love, German Text, Also Is Obeyed

"Liebe auf Befehl" Like "Boudoir Diplomat."

"LIEBE AUF BEFEHL."
[The Command to Love.]

In th' int'rests of diplomacy
A marquis makes love—reluctantly.

Presented by Universal.
At the Punch and Judy Theater.

THE CAST.

Marquis de Saint-Lac	Johannes Riemann
Manuella	Olga Tschechova
Der Kriegsminister	Hans Junkermann
Marie-Anne	Talla Burrell
Der Gesandte	Arnold Korff
Smile	Albert Conti
Dr. Munsterra	Paul Wiegel

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

KIND: German screen version of the play "The Command to Love" and the movie "The Boudoir Diplomat."

QUALITY: Good.

ACTING: Excellent in the main. The leading man is, I would say, a bit too self-conscious for perfection.

PHOTOGRAPHY: All right.

DIRECTION: Intelligent.

DIALOGUE: All in German.

STORY: Concerns the amorous dallyings of a handsome young attaché. Women are crazy for him and under orders from his government the marquis makes love to them, using the fair fools to obtain favors from powerful husbands.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: Germans probably will enjoy "Liebe Auf Befehl." Persons unfamiliar with the Teutonic tongue, and the story, won't have the faintest idea what the to-do's all about.

"CAPTAIN THUNDER."

A merry bandit, Captain Thunder,
Who loved his women, wine and plunder.

Produced by Warner Brothers.
Directed by Alan Crosland.
Presented at the Castle Theater.

THE CAST.

Ynez Dominguez	Fay Wray
Capt. Thunder	Victor Varconi
El Commandante Ruiz	Charles Judels
Pete Morgan	Robert Elliott
Juan Sebastian	Don Alvarado
Bonita Salazar	Natalie Moorehead
Pablo	Bert Roach
Hank Riley	Frank Campeau
Don Miguel Salazar	Robert Emmett Keane
Pedro Dominguez	John Sainpolis

KIND: The press sheet says that "Captain Thunder" is "a hot tamale heartbreaker." I would more sedately describe the film as comedy drama concerned with the adventures of one rare animal—an un-lying caballero. What Captain Thunder promises, Captain Thunder does.

COMICAL? At times.

QUALITY: Good.

ACTING: Vurr' good. Note the names in the cast!

PHOTOGRAPHY: Expert.

DIRECTION: Clever.

SOUND, STAGING, ETC.: Pleasing.

STORY: Interesting but not highly original. You may be surprised at the ending. Then, again, you may not.

DIALOGUE: So so. But it's well delivered. Charles Judels, who always gets so excited you're afraid he'll burst a blood vessel, puts on a couple of fine fits.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: The average fan will find "Captain Thunder" mildly entertaining fare.

REMARKS. Nice to see Victor Varconi again. And if there isn't that fine screen detective, Robert Elliott! But not detecting. Alas, no!

See you tomorrow!

Pluto, Brother of Earth, Tipsy on Birthday

Travels His Orbit at a Rakish Angle.

Flagstaff, Ariz., March 13.—(AP)—Today is Pluto's birthday, the first anniversary of the discovery of "planet X," the ninth world and the only one which is mother earth's twin in size.

The birthday marks the finish of the big scientific row which this shy, far-distant brother stirred up. For months some astronomers called him a comet, or at best a "planetary object," a sort of half-wit planet.

Doubts vanished recently with discovery of Pluto's image on photographic plates taken in 1915 here at Lowell observatory, which discovered him 15 years later, and other taken at Mount Wilson observatory in 1919.

Pluto now appears to be the only known place where a human being could go without changing his weight. His mass, the factor which determines gravitation's pull, is very nearly that of the earth.

Both he and the earth are about 8,000 miles in diameter. Venus, the only other member of the family of approximately similar girth, is 7,500 miles across.

Pluto's light is slightly yellow, resembling the shine of Mercury, innermost of planets. The new world absorbs more of the other colors than that of yellow, which causes a strong suspicion among astronomers that he has very little atmosphere.

In one respect Pluto differs from all other planets, the rakish angle at which the plane of his orbit is tilted. His eight older brothers and sisters all have orbits set in the same plane, which figuratively lies like a Puritan hat brim, severely straight across the brow of the sun. Pluto's orbit is tipped to one side like the chapeau of a cavalier. Its tilt is 17 degrees.

This difference is profoundly important to astronomers. Something titanic happened to account for this partial upset in Pluto's baseline.

That is more difficult because his average distance from the sun is 3,800,000,000 miles, but in 50 to 75 years, when he is closest to the sun in his eccentric orbit. Pluto will cut a cool billion miles off this distance.

His name? It was picked by an 11 year old English miss, who induced an astronomer to cable it as a suggestion the night after the discovery was announced.

Later, when naming time arrived, Dr. V. M. Slipher, director of Lowell observatory, and his associates decided on Pluto, god of the underworld.

Lent Day by Day

SEVEN MODERN BETRAYALS

The Rev. M. A. Morrill.
World's Service, Methodist Episcopal church.

The belief that the world is a soulless machine ruthlessly indifferent to the ideals and aspirations of men.

The passion to get something for nothing—to live upon the labor of others.

Denial of the dignity of another human personality.

A desire to live in needless luxury which takes no account of the poverty of millions in our own and other lands.

Unwillingness to subordinate the desire for profit to the welfare of human beings.

Taking upon one's self lightly the vows of membership in the Christian church or encouraging others so to do.

Thoughtlessly or deliberately turning one's back on "sacrificial social mindedness" as a way of life, which, for Christians is symbolized in the Cross.

PRAYER:

O Eternal Christ, we pray Thee that we may never come into Thy Presence with motives that are not of the best. May our chief thought be always for Thy glory and the triumph of Thy kingdom.

Chaplin's 50-50 Clause Makes British Chain Theater Men Balk

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, March 13.—[Special.]—A sensation was caused in the film world today when it was learned that the biggest and most influential group of English movie theaters had refused to book Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights." The cinemas concerned are those of the Gaumont British Theater corporation, which number three hundred, of which one hundred are in the London district.

Negotiations betwen the Gaumont corporation and Chaplin's representatives fell through over the sharing terms. Chaplin's representatives demand 50 per cent of the receipts wherever the film is shown. At the Dominion theater, where it now is reported playing, it takes in about $50,000 weekly, Chaplin receiving 60 per cent of the receipts, with a guarantee of $200,000 and a twenty week run.

The Gaumont decision was based on the general feeling of London film houses that the length of the Dominion run will considerably reduce the value of the film when it is released because generally a successful run at the Dominion means the picture was seen by half a million people.

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS

Keyserling Fears Americans May Fail to Buy Happy Lives

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, March 13.—[Special.]—Count Hermann Keyserling, Darmstadt philosopher, concluded tonight the last of his trilogy of lectures.

"Fatigue is a characteristic of all nations in this period after the war," said Keyserling. "We are in a machine age so dominated by rationalization and material limits that there are few able to live lives worthy of human dignity. But we are on the threshold of a new epoch, and never before in history has youth faced such a perspective of future progress."

American mechanization must be accepted by the nations of Europe and must even be developed steadily to a certain extent, but it must not be carried too far, he said. He cited Jules Verne and H. G. Wells as thinkers who turned their intelligence to aid man's progress instead of limiting his liberty.

Different people had different ideals of the pursuit of happiness, he said. Some nations, like the United States, blessed with a plethora of material goods, might not actually be as happy as the people of Spain, whose satisfactions are of a more emotional nature. Perhaps some Americans had so much that its very quantity prevented them from enjoying any one thing to its full.

Destiny is most evident, perhaps, in animals, he declared, giving as an example the extraordinary case of eels, which, leaving European shores in response to instinct, traversed thousands of miles to the South Pacific. There they bred, and the young eels, without ever having known where they were directing themselves, found their way back to European waters in answer to the force of destiny.

"We therefore must have faith in the significance of life and in our own destiny," he said. "We must have something more than faith in the destiny of commercial trusts, as in America, and we will thereby to acquire courage to create courage, to risk everything to fulfill destiny. It is only thus that we can hope to achieve lives worth of the dignity of man."

Lawmakers See University, to Vote Later

$11,780,000 Sought for Use at Urbana.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Urbana, Ill., March 13.—[Special.]—Tramping miles and miles around the vast campus of the University of Illinois, the state legislature today completed its biennial inspection of that institution. The legislators go back to Springfield Tuesday to consider the $11,780,000 appropriation request that the university is asking for the next two years.

In the morning, the 100 assemblymen, who made the trip from the capital yesterday, were guided into almost every laboratory and lecture hall scattered over the 421 acre tract where about 14,000 students are attending classes.

At noon they took a swing over the grounds again in autos to gain a perspective of what they had seen at close hand. Then they had lunch and departed to their homes.

The legislators are in a good frame of mind to consider the budget, the university authorities hope. "We'll do our best to help you," Chairman Homer J. Tice of the house appropriations committee told the faculty at luncheon. Senator Henry M. Dunlap of Savoy spoke for the other side of the assembly, and inasmuch as he graduated here in 1875 and lives only a few miles from Urbana, the university feels its requests will have sympathetic consideration.

"We really are about the largest state university in the country," President Harry Woodburn Chase remarked after the luncheon. "The University of California is larger, but then California would be, and Columbia university in New York is larger, but that's hardly in the United States, so that puts us high."

The budget for this biennium represents a $250,000 decrease below the appropriation granted by the legislature in 1919. This was in deference to the depression, the trustees tacking on a slight increase in tuition fees to make up the difference. It is anticipated that the budget will be scrutinized closely in the house and senate appropriations committees next week. In building items the budget lists $1,900,000, of which $1,400,000 would be spent in Chicago on the medical and dental schools. The other half million is scheduled for a new agricultural laboratory at Urbana. The rest of the total is for operation and maintenance.

The sights they saw in their tour this morning—ranging from the most involved scientific experiments to such an understandable thing as the test of the strength of a thick steel beam—were arranged to display the versatility of the university's courses.

The assemblymen saw glass made; they watched an architectural design class sketch plans for huge skyscrapers; they passed through acres of classrooms; a library building as large as the statehouse was visited; they witnessed a university play; and they saw an enormous testing apparatus fifty feet high bend a steel beam as though it were made of clay.

This latter experiment was perhaps the most spectacular. The material testing laboratory professors were examining the beam—designed for skyscraper support—at the request of the manufacturers and they exerted 557,000 pounds of force upon it before it began to shatter. The beam was almost nine inches in diameter.

Chicago members were especially interested in an experiment being made for the Chicago subway commission. Proper ventilation for the State street tube is being sought and the experts have erected a tower of metal which, if practicable, will be one of a hundred such devices used to rid the mezzanine passage above the tracks of excessive heat.

Two Chicago Musicians Get Praise of Critic

BY EDWARD MOORE.

YOU may, before long you will perforce count Joseph Rosenstein among the astonishing talent in the guild of violinists. It is quite as much to the point, also, that he happens to be a Chicagoan by birth.

Eighteen years old, the program says he is, and yesterday he made a solo appearance with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. He got the assignment through having been selected winner in the annual audition inaugurated by Dr. Stock a year ago. This season it was for violinists, and the important part was that it got him.

Playing Dr. Stock's own concerto, he made an amazing impression. The piece ranks as one of the most important compositions of the last quarter century, and so far only a few of the most able adults have ventured to play it. It is no end difficult, but after gaining acquaintance with it, you will begin to find out that it is wonderfully beautiful as well.

Both its difficulties and its beauties showed young Mr. Rosenstein as a person who will have to be reckoned with. He played with astonishing poise, firmness, command, almost anything you want to demand from a fine violinist. Perhaps in future years he will develop a somewhat more suave tone, but his insight and musicianship are something to marvel at now. He is without argument an artist that you will want to see grow from year to year.

Another Chicagoan was called to the stage in the course of the afternoon, when Albert Noelte appeared at the end of the performance of his own suite for wind instruments, percussions, and harp, to receive the applause of the audience. Here is an excellent bit of work, and peculiarly interesting both for what it accomplished and what it avoided. It is an uncommon combination of instruments, to begin with. Dr. Noelte says that he knows of no other of the same kind. Yet it sounded like an orchestra and not like a band.

Secondly, Dr. Noelte likes to experiment with the polytonalisms of contemporary music. So do others, but they frequently manage to make them unbeautiful, to cause a puckering of the musical mucous membranes. Dr. Noelte worked on clear and generally highly attractive outlines, perhaps growing a bit Straussian at times, but always with the belief that melody is an important element of music, and for which he is warmly thanked.

And Dr. Stock assembled other music in keeping. He began with the Vaughan Williams Fantasia on a theme by Thomas Tallis, he continued with Dukas' "The Peri," a lovely piece this, and he ended with that grand old circus processional, Tschaikowsky's "Marche Slave," where the drums crashed and the trombones flung up their brazen arms in the spirit of high carnival.

Popularity of Lace Is Growing Again

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Lace just keeps on getting more and more popular in Paris fashions. All grands couturiers report lace afternoon and evening gowns being bought in flocks by their smart clients and they also assure me that lace will play an important part in their forthcoming collections.

Wool lace is also being forecast for daytime blouses, suits, and dresses, and Rodier's new woolen that has an overlay of beige wool lace woven with its dark ground is slated to be one of the season's textile runners. Beige is the newest and prettiest shade for the lace afternoon frock.

Lenie of S. A. designed the beige lace afternoon frock, sketched above, for Vera Korène, the willowy star of "Matricule 33," that has entered on what looks like a record run at the Theatre Apollo. And you know it's always safe to take tips from the stars, for even if you don't believe in astronomy you can't deny the fact that the theatrical stars do foretell the sartorial future of the public.

The principal charm of this frock lies in its sophisticated simplicity. It's cut princess with more than a suggestion of an empire line. The diagonal mounting of the circular section that concentrates the fullness in front of the skirt accentuates the slender effect of the figure. A bow tie of lace finishes the pointed décolleté. The huge scarf is of red fox—you know that's to be the fashionable fur, this spring. Hat and shoes are golden brown velvet.

FRENCHMAN TRICKS SHAW INTO GIVING INTERVIEW AT CAIRO

CAIRO, Egypt, March 13.—(AP)—George Bernard Shaw has been hoaxed into giving an interview, but all will be forgiven if he can get Rudyard Kipling into the same boat.

The newspaper, Revell, said today Shaw had been so hotly pursued by admirers since his arrival here that he instructed the hotel porter to "tell 'em I'm dead," but a French journalist got in by scribbling on his card, "Einstein's nephew wants to shake hands with Shaw."

"What do you think of nudism?" the reporter asked when Shaw received him.

"When one's body is so esthetically formed as mine," Shaw replied, "one likes the world to admire it. Nudity puts an end to the Darwinian quarrel, for when they are naked all humans look like gorillas."

When Shaw discovered the hoax he told the journalist he would be forgiven if he would play the same trick on Kipling, who is now at Asouan.

Popular Girl Is All a-Flurry When Right Man Comes

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Why is it that the one you don't care a darn about is crazy about you—and the one you do like you just can't get?" asks "Pretty," thereby merely adding one more name to the thousands who've asked the unanswerable question before.

"Pretty" is all her name applies, by her own confession, supported by many beaus and dates to pick and choose from. But there's one with a Voice. A voice, "Pretty" says, that "would make any girl's heart stop, look, and listen." He's not a singer by profession, either, but a business man with, according to "Pretty," "everything a girl could want—cars, money, and good looks."

The girls are all mad about him. She's a little madder than the rest, but is fearful that her time would only be wasted pursuing the man with the voice, the cars, money, and good looks. She's willing, though, to take a chance on getting him. But how, she wants to know? If she doesn't kiss or pet with him he'll probably not want to see her again. If she does, maybe he won't want to see her again, anyway.

"Pretty" would like to show the man she's indifferent. "I'm sick of petting and kissing," she tells. "I'm sick of running around to parties, meeting fellows I don't care a thing about. This one I care for thinks I'm nice, but I want more than that from him. How in the world should I act?"

Funny how problems of personal conduct begin to affect girls when they sight the one who looks like the One and Only. Whether they should kiss and pet takes on a serious aspect, doesn't it, proving always a bit of doubt deep down inside a girl about the wisdom of kissing and petting.

We must object to the qualifications "Pretty" lists as "everything a girl could want." Cars, money, good looks. Heavens, a gangster could have these! He could even have the Voice. Why not, when you're wanting and pursuing, look for something a bit more marriage-substantial?

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

That a renewed interest is being taken in fruit orchards, grape, berry, and currant patches was seen in the record attendance at the annual Du Page county farmer bureau's pruning and spraying demonstrations, near Glen Ellyn and Naperville, yesterday.

R. S. Marsh, extension specialist of the University of Illinois, expressed surprise that 132 farmers (including one banker who said he was being obliged to study farming practices these days) should turn out. The morning demonstration was held on the Frank Wiegand farm, Roosevelt road, near Finley road. The afternoon session took place on the Frank Keller farm on Ogden avenue in Lisle township.

A good set of peach buds was found on these orchards, which Marsh says is also prospective of a bumper crop in southern Illinois. He pointed out that the modern apple tree is not pruned for looks as much as for utility. Prune as little as possible, he says.

Grapevines should be cut back so that about eight runners carry six to eleven buds or "eyes" each. This is now recommended in place of the "spur" pruning which leaves only a few buds on short stems. Marsh also pointed out that northern Illinois farmers are finding the Latham and Chief raspberries heavy producers, with high resistance to disease and freezing.

Last summer the Kellers sold 260 pints of Lathams at 25 cents each from 100 plants in their roadside stand. A growing market for roadside sales of berries, grapes, and fruit is said to be the reason for renewed interest in these crops in the Chicago area.

Arts Club Tea Draws Society to Newer Things

BY THALIA ——.

THE Arts club, always a pleasant haven for the artistically and socially inclined, hummed busily yesterday during the luncheon hour and through the late afternoon. About 300 members and guests attended the tea and reception which opened the four new exhibitions and lingered until almost dinner time to discuss the sculpture of Matisse and Georges Rouault's paintings and the striking models of modern architecture from the Bauhaus at Dessau, Germany.

Mrs. John Borden, in a sand-colored crepe frock, black hat, and black and scarlet scarf wound tightly about her throat, arrived early to fill her capacity as head of the hostess committee. Mrs. Patrick Campbell, who came in with Mrs. Wilhelm L. Baum, was almost stampeded as she entered by the Arts club members who were entranced with her talk there a few weeks ago.

Among the others who dropped in between 1 and 6 o'clock were Mrs. Thorne Donnelly, Miss Eleanor Holden, Miss Nellie Carpenter, Miss Anna Morgan, Mrs. George A. Poole, and her daughter, Miss Betty Poole; Mrs. Ralph Winston, Mrs. Arthur W. Jerrems Jr., Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. Duncan Hodges, and Miss Emily Larned.

Earlier in the day there were several luncheons, among them Mrs. Howard Cunningham's for Mr. and Mrs. Carl Milles, Arthur B. Slade's for 12 guests, Mrs. Arthur Tuttle's for 8, and one given by Mrs. John Borden.

Returned or departed are—the Edward H. Bennetts, who are back from a 3 weeks trip to the gulf coast. . . . Robert J. Thorne and his daughter, Mrs. George Corson Ellis, who sailed on the Olympic yesterday afternoon to join Mrs. Thorne and the two younger Thorne girls, Laura and Narcissa, in Paris. . . . Mr. and Mrs. James Scott Kemper (Gertrude Zeising Stout), who have returned from a wedding trip of two months in California and Arizona, and are now domiciled at "Old Orchard," 76 Locust road, Winnetka. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Lester Stevenson, formerly of 1320 North State street, who have moved to New York recently, Mr. Stevenson now being one of the department heads for Lord & Taylor. . . . James E. Baum Jr., who is back from his latest hunting trip, and specimens of Persian wild asses and wild goats that he got are coming along to the Field museum in a few days. . . . Mrs. John L. Senior, who left last night on the Santa Fé Limited to spend a fortnight at Santa Barbara and then a week or more at a ranch near Castle Hot Springs, Ariz.

Lake Forest Boys Busy Making Models of Yachts.

Not all the fun of having a boat is in sailing it. The real yachtsmen are the ones who can build their own—if not lifesize vessels, then models. The Lake Forest boys are slaving away in manual training class at school and in basements at home to turn out a fleet of miniature ships for a regatta under the auspices of the Young Men's club. Admiral Crosley has said he'll turn over the Great Lakes naval training station to them some sunny Saturday in May, as he did for last year's affair, and so there's a tremendous lot of careful work going on hulls and spars and all sorts of nautical gadgets.

Roger Bronson and Morrow Krum help the boys along with their efforts and run the show for them. The first regatta was held at the Aldis compound, if I'm not mistaken, two years ago, and there were loads of people at last year's at the naval station. In Mr. Bronson's cellar is a regular big sailboat on the way to completion for next summer, and the remarkable thing about it all is that the basement door is large enough for it to go through all right.

Locating Various Chicagoans; Some Back from South.

Locating various people: The George M. Lytton family are all together for the nonce at their winter place on the Mississippi gulf coast (Mrs. Lytton Benello went down recently, and Miss Rosemary was to go directly there after landing from Europe—Mr. Lytton is returning today from one of his frequent visits). . . . The John F. Jelkes returned to Chicago yesterday from Palm Beach with the Frazier Jelkes, who are to be here for a week. . . . Mrs. Phelps B. Hoyt and Mr. and Mrs. Dexter Cummings have arrived in New York from Miami Beach for a week's stay before returning to Chicago.

There are to be two spring holiday dances for the boys in Miss Harris' school—the first one, for boys in the upper school, on Friday, March 20, at the Webster hotel, and the second, for the lower school lads, at the Parkway on the following Friday, the 27th. Miss Harris is to be in charge of the first party, and Mr. Bournique, the dancing master, of the last one. Graduates of the school who will be at home for spring vacation are invited, too. These include Hathaway Watson Jr. and Walter Watson, who will be at home next week from St. Mark's.

Announcements in yesterday's mail . . . the Junior Friends of Art will hold their spring meeting on Tuesday at the Stevens hotel, with a program including a musical, a talk by Robert Lee Eskridge, and a style show with modeling by some of the members . . . the women's division of the Salvation Army, headed by Mrs. Charles King Corsant, will take over the opening of the Congress hotel's new tea room next Saturday for the benefit of emergency work among women of the city . . . a couple of score of Junior leaguers and matrons interested in the Army's charities have promised to serve as waitresses and to assist at luncheon, tea, and dinner.

National Frat Merges with N. U. Scribblers

With a formal visit to President Walter Dill Scott by national officers, the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity yesterday opened ceremonies to end in the taking up of a residence on the north shore campus. The fraternity is taking over the Scribblers, 23 year old Evanston local, with a large journalistic membership.

The national fraternity has a world wide membership of 27,000, including former President Calvin Coolidge and Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in the Wilson cabinet. More than 500 delegates, representing national officers, prominent alumni and undergraduate chapters from the middle west, are attending the three day celebration. The Scribblers is the strongest of the locals.

In the formal call on President Scott, Horace Brightman of New York, president of Phi Gamma Delta; George F. Snyder, secretary, and Penfield Mower of Boston, treasurer, paid official respects to the head of the university, members of the faculty, and trustees. This was followed by a smoker and joint reception for members of the Scribblers and the Phi Gamma Delta in the chapter house on the campus.

Today 150 members of the Scribblers are to be initiated into the national fraternity. In addition to the 35 active members of the local, 115 of its alumni are to be initiated. In the evening Judge Evan A. Evans of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, a Phi Gamma Delta, will deliver an address at a banquet in the Orrington hotel in Evanston. Dr. Harry Gage, president of Coe college and president of the North Central Association of Colleges and Universities, also member of the fraternity, will be another speaker.

The celebration closes with a reception Sunday. Louis E. Leverone of Chicago is general chairman of the event and is being assisted by Hardin Hawes and Hargrave A. Long of Evanston.

In taking over the Scribblers the national fraternity is reviving a former chapter which existed at Northwestern in 1868 as the Phi chapter. At the completion of the reinstallation of the Phi chapter, Phi Gamma Delta will have a chapter in each of the schools of the Big Ten.

Missionary Society Ends Its Duquoin Convention

Duquoin, Ill., March 13.—[Special.]—The annual convention of the bi-county Christian Women's Missionary union closed at the First Christian church here last night. Delegates attended from Jackson and Perry counties and principal addresses of the gathering were delivered by Mrs. William Hart of Benton, president of the state organization.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Cookie Deluge.

We were entertaining a party of friends one evening, and among them was a young man new in the crowd. Being anxious to impress him with my hospitality, I insisted upon passing around a plate of cookies I had baked. My embarrassment was acute when upon approaching him, I stumbled over a corner of the rug and hurled the contents of the cookie plate into his lap and at his feet. His laughter seemed more loud and long than the rest, and I retired to an inconspicuous corner for the remainder of the evening. G. M.

Bright Sayings of the Children

A telephone operator was at one end of the wire and little Madeline, who had answered her ring, at the other.

The operator, obeying the company's rules, was trying to get the child to call an older person. She began, according to the rule, by asking, "Is your mamma there?"

"No."

"Is your big sister there?"

"No. There's on one here but grandma and me and the cat. Grandma can't hear and the cat can't talk." M. E. H.

A FRIEND IN NEED

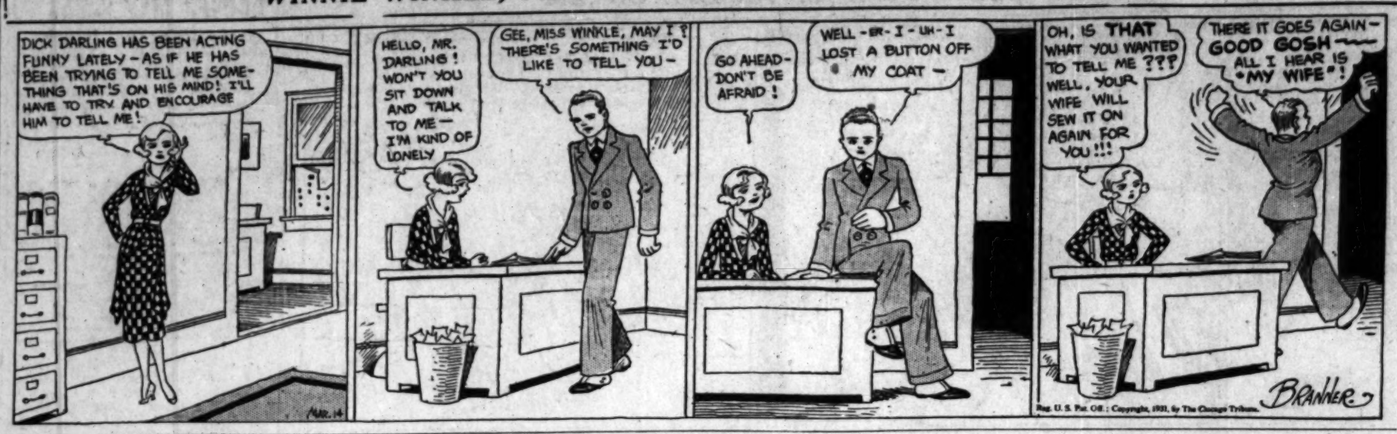

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Offers Large Ice Box.

"I have a large ice box which I don't need. It could be used in a small store or a large household, but would not do in a small apartment. If you know of some one who can make use of it I shall be glad to give it. MRS. I. F."

The storekeeper going into business on a small scale who cannot buy all the equipment he needs could make use of this refrigerator, I think. Write me if you'd like to have it; please do not telephone.

Large Family Gathering Not an Unmixed Joy

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"Building the Baby," a book on the care of the baby by Carolyn C. Van Blarcom will be sent postpaid by the Public Service Department of The Tribune on receipt of 65 cents.

At first this letter seemed timely for next year's holidays. But on second thought I realized that things like this have to be thought out—or thrashed out—far ahead of time. Sometimes we get so warmhearted around Christmas time that our minds cease functioning!

"My Dear Mrs. Bevans: I believe there are a number of mothers who would find my problem similar to their own at this season of the year. How can grandparents and grandchildren be combined in the holiday family gatherings in such a way that neither will suffer, and the mothers come through with sanity?

"We have just come tonight from a Thanksgiving gathering—dinner and supper. There were two grandmothers, one great-grandmother, eight other adults and three girls and five boys whose ages are 13, 11, 10, 10, 8, 7, 5 and 5.

"All had to be indoors because of the storm. The children played in one room, but their noise was maddening. The grandmothers were distracted and the parents constantly admonishing and reprimanding.

"My child was whipped three times—not because she was mean, vicious, impudent or rude—but because she was noisy. The same group will congregate again at Christmas with two other families which will add four more young children.

"I have said I will not go and my husband thinks me unreasonable. I feel Christmas is so important in childhood and I know children can feel nothing of the beauty and spirit of the day in such a hectic gathering.

"My two youngsters respect and love the grandmothers, but just can't be quiet very long. The grandmothers love the children, but just can't stand their noise.

"Can you offer anything helpful? Should we beat the children into submission and quiet? Or should we disappoint the grandmothers by not having the traditional all-day-and-half-the-night sessions? They expect it. They are old.

"I do so want to be agreeable, but every one is so unstrung by night. My two are excitable and after today it will take several days to regain their poise.

"My husband says children soon forget a whipping and perhaps the grandparents won't be here another Christmas. So true! Yet perhaps any one of us might not be here, even tomorrow."

Here is one of those practical problems that doesn't get into books on child psychology. We'll try to discuss it on Monday, with tact and discretion!

Cleansing Creams Are Valuable to the Sedentary Worker

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The huge demand for cleansing creams, nourishing creams and other lotions for skin preservation and protection is not the result of high powered cosmetics sales pressure only. The main reason all this cosmetic sale is today in its high ascendancy over that of earlier days is because we live under conditions trying to the skin. We live sedentary lives with only a sprinkling among us of daily, devoted athletic or exercise fans.

We eat highly concentrated foodstuffs, as a rule. We live an unconscionable amount of time indoors; including time spent inside motors, taxis, street cars and els. The skin hasn't a chance, the way it used to have under more normal living conditions, to work out its own salvation. Then, we have to reckon with dust and grime and air soil as never before in history.

Deprived of such normal household activities as formerly furnished normal exercise for women, naturally some compromise with artificial aids has to be made to meet the current skin needs. As we have to adjust ourselves to changed home environment, to changed labor conditions, so we have to subscribe with later day methods of skin protection.

The sebaceous glands whose function is to secrete a natural lubricant, which; in turn, keeps the skin surface soft and pliant lacks, in our modern day the impetus, through sluggish bodies, to conduct its originally intended work. So we have to compromise with lotions that will supply the necessary lubricant to prevent wrinkling, harshness and dryness. It's no fad—all this preaching about cosmetics for the skin. It's a necessity, proved conclusively by the study of skins that take no precaution, no preventive or protective measures. They look the part.

Cleansing and "oiling" the skin, then, become the two most important features of skin care and preservation. And cleansing treatments that penetrate the pores are needed, which is why good cleansing lotions are so widely advocated.

Food Talk.

A number of our readers have been having difficulty with angel food cake. Some have sent me their recipes so that I may know how they make and bake their cake. Everything goes well, it seems, until the cakes are about half baked. They rise beautifully at first, then they go down.

Now, I have no way of knowing how faithfully these cooks adhere to the rules in their recipes. But something is surely causing the trouble, even though it seems so insignificant as to be overlooked. I know this from experience. Last spring I wanted to see if I could bake a good angel food in a paraffin lined tin. And so we tried it. The cake rose beautifully and seemed normal in every way until it was taken out of the oven. Just as soon as the pan was inverted the cake pulled out of the pan and went flat. We did this a few times to convince ourselves that paraffin paper was out of the question, then we went back to the plain tin but using the same pan that we had previously lined with the paraffin paper. The cake fell just as it had done when we used the paper. We tried again and again, and after a half dozen failures we began to think our knack for making angel food was temporarily gone. But we kept on, and after eight or ten cakes were baked in this one time paraffin lined pan, the cake turned out as fine as could be.

What had happened? To prove what I surmised, I applied a thin coat of paraffin to a new pan and tried the cake, and it also was a failure. So our original trouble was that paraffin had come off the paper and had adhered so tightly to the pan that we didn't succeed in removing it when we washed the pan.

The surface of the pan for angel food must not be so smooth that the cake dough can't adhere to it and hold it up as it rises. A surface that offers enough resistance to hold up the dough until it cooks and becomes rigid enough to support itself is best. And this rigidity is not complete until the cake bakes and cools. That is why an angel cake should never be helped out of the pan until it is thoroughly cool. Angel cake that is perfectly baked and thoroughly cooled will not fall.

Put the batter into an ungreased tin or in one from which the grease has been entirely removed. Bake at the correct temperature and for the necessary length of time. Cool properly. Then your cake should be just as you want it. If you have an oven regulator on which you can depend it shouldn't be necessary to look in oven during the baking.

COCOANUT FRUIT SALAD.

1½ cups diced tart apples and celery, mixed.
½ cup shredded cocoanut.
1 cup mayonnaise.
1 tbsp lemon juice.
1 tbsp. orange juice.
Salt and paprika.
Lettuce.
Currant jelly.

Mix the apples, celery, and cocoanut with mayonnaise. Sprinkle with the lemon and orange juice and with salt and paprika. Place in a lettuce lined bowl and dot with jelly.

BRITISH CABINET ESCAPES DEFEAT BY ONLY 5 VOTES

Liberals Come to Rescue in Salary Dispute.

LONDON, March 13.—(AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald's Labor government had a bad fright in the house of commons today, escaping defeat in an important division by only five votes. "A hectic half hour," was the way Mr. MacDonald described it in a speech at Northampton tonight, but he added the majority of five was "good enough to go on with another two years."

The division occurred on a Conservative amendment to reduce by $500 an estimate of about $70,000 for salaries and expenses of the mines department.

Liberals Save Government.

The vote was moved chiefly as a protest against payment of a $35,000 a year salary—$10,000 more than that of the premier—to Sir Ernest Gowers, chairman of the mines reorganization committee. Nine Labor back benchers voted against the government, but the administration was saved by 20 Liberals, giving the government a total of 173 against 168. Soon afterward the estimate itself was carried by 176 to 78.

In his Northampton speech tonight the prime minister attacked the Laborites who voted for the Conservative amendment.

"The melancholy thing is," he said, "that if the government had been turned out, the blame would have rested with one or two of our own members who, apparently, are unable to accept any sort of team responsibility but who, in the exercise of their own wayward wills, are prepared to destroy the labor movement at the same time they give lip service to it."

Three New Labor Choices.

Three new appointments were announced today in the partial reorganization of the MacDonald government necessitated by death or resignation of members.

Lord Ponsonby, parliamentary secretary to the transport ministry, becomes chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster; Henry Snell, Labor M. P., becomes undersecretary of state for India, and J. A. Parkinson becomes parliamentary secretary for the transport ministry. None of the posts carries cabinet rank.

Oliver Baldwin, young son of the former Conservative prime minister, today was asked to resign his Labor seat in parliament as a sequel to his resignation from the party to join Sir Oswald Mosley's "new party." Lady Cynthia Mosley already has been asked by her constituents to resign her labor seat and Sir Oswald has been expelled from the party.

Sir C. P. Trevelyan, who resigned as president of the board of education because of the difficulties his education bill encountered in parliament, today characterized Ramsay MacDonald's government as lacking in vigor and enterprise, but reasserted his loyalty to the Labor party.

Child Dodges Elephant in Bath, Clawed by Lion

Marion, Ill., March 13.—(AP)—Guy Ralph Pierce, 7, was recovering today from severe cuts suffered when clawed by a lion at winter quarters of Sell's Floto circus here.

While watching an elephant take a bath the child jumped back to dodge a spray of water from the elephant's trunk and came within reach of the lion's paws through bars of the cage. The child escaped by peeling off his coat, which was caught in the lion's claws.

The boy received medical attention and did not cry until he jumped into the lap of his grandfather.

"Nearly got myself chewed up, didn't I?" he said as tears began to come.

PACIFIST LOBBY HIT AT RESERVE OFFICER SESSION

Weakens Defense, Say Illinois Men.

Joliet, Ill., March 13.—[Special.]—Resolutions condemning the activities of pacifist lobbyists before congress were adopted today by the reserve officers of Illinois at their eighth annual convention in this city.

Bills are in preparation now for presentation to the Illinois general assembly, as well as to congress, it was announced, to influence abolition of R. O. T. C. training in high schools and colleges.

It was stated that three bills are to be submitted to congress which, if adopted, would cut off war department funds now being employed to pay army officers assigned to R. O. T. C. units as instructors.

Among those in attendance at the convention are Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander 6th corps area; Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling, and Col. W. C. Weeks of Chicago.

"Through the lobbying of organized pacifists, congress has been made reluctant to provide sufficient funds for military and naval defense to protect the wealth and resources of the country," Col. George G. Seaman of Taylorville, president of the Reserve Officer' association, told the convention.

"The Illinois department," he said, "plans to urge increased appropriations for military training, such as the National Guard, the R. O. T. C., the citizens' military training camps."

"Realizing that half he world is at war most of the time, we cannot allow the pacifist doctrine to sweep the country as it is," declared Capt. J. Patterson, editor of the National Defense magazine, one of the convention visitors. "Providing military protection is much the same as providing police protection in civil communities. This protection secures peace for the vast majority, who otherwise would live in a world of universal banditry and piracy."

POPE SOLE HEIR TO MILLION DOLLAR ESTATE OF COUNT

LEGHORN, Italy, March 13.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI. is made executor and sole heir of Count Thomas Sate in the will of the wealthy philanthropist and papal knight, who died recently a few days after the death of his wife. The testament was filed today.

The count was the last descendant of a noted Irish family which settled in Leghorn in the eighteenth century. He left an estate valued at nearly a million dollars.

Estate Tied Up in Charities.

VATICAN CITY, March 13.—(AP)—Marquis Pacelli, Vatican City attorney, named by the pope to represent him in the probation of the will of Count Thomas Sate, reported that the estate was smaller than had been estimated at Leghorn and was tied up largely in benevolent works, which the pope must carry to completion.

SCHROEDER NOT TO APPEAL FROM HIS CONVICTION

Indianapolis, Ind., March 13.—(AP)—Ira M. Holmes, attorney who defended Harold Herbert Schroeder of Mobile, Ala., said today no appeal would be taken from the manslaughter verdict returned against the Mobile man last night. Schroeder was charged with murdering an unidentified hitch hiker last May.

Holmes said Schroeder's relatives had expressed themselves as satisfied with the verdict, which carries a penalty of two to twenty-one years.

Sentence is to be imposed next Monday. Judge Frank P. Baker said today that after sentence is imposed authorities may show Schroeder a photograph of Harold Webb, 23, who is believed by Mrs. Louise Crooks, mother of the youth, to have been the victim of the crime of which Schroeder was convicted.

The body of the man killed was burned beyond recognition in a fire that destroyed Schroeder's car. Schroeder admitted setting the car afire with the body in it, declaring his companion had been killed when the machine ran into a ditch and he feared he would be accused of causing his death.

Schroeder has insisted he did not learn the identity of his companion.

WIDOW GETS $42,000 DAMAGES IN LAND SUIT

Mrs. Gertrude Ingalls, a widow of 1310 Lunt avenue, was awarded $42,800 damages by a jury yesterday in Circuit Judge Pomeroy's court against two real estate operators who are alleged to have sold her worthless lands in Florida. The defendants were Harper S. Hoover and Norman G. Lenington, realty dealers with offices at 180 North Michigan avenue.

Mrs. Ingalls, an invalid for the last 30 years, testified that she invested $39,000 in Florida land in 1925 on the representations of the defendants that the property would increase in value from $8 to $150 an acre. The land was later found to be mostly under water, she said.

The defendants denied that there was any fraud in connection with their promotion of the deal. Mrs. Ingalls had asked for $60,000 to cover the principal and interest on her investment. The jury returned its verdict after five hours' deliberation. Mrs. Ingalls attended the hearings each day in a wheel chair since the case started a month ago.

Reads Bible, but Is Idle; Wife Has Him Arrested

Evansville, Ind., March 13.—[Special.]—Believing that whatever spiritual benefit her husband may have derived from his constant reading of his Bible, Mrs. Will Dillender became convinced that it did not materially benefit herself and the children, so she had him arrested today on a charge of nonsupport. There are twelve children, six of whom are married. Dillender is said to be a missionary preacher and also a coal miner, when he works, but his wife complains he reads the Bible instead of getting out to look for work.

INDIAN WOMAN FIRST INMATE IN NEW PRISON

The recently completed Illinois state reformatory for women, at Dwight, received its first prisoner yesterday, Mary Williams, 22 year old Choctaw Indian. In the presence of the presidents of two women's clubs, Mary asked Judge Joseph A. Graber of the Des Plaines street court to send her to the reformatory for six months so that she could be cured of her addiction to liquor.

Mary had appeared before Judge Graber on three previous occasions charged with drunkenness. "I have seen the light in the aid of Christ, and I want to reform," she told him yesterday.

Recently she had been staying at the Gospel Shelter for Women, 432 South Peoria street, which is headed by Dr. B. M. Brown. Appearing in court yesterday were Mrs. Helen M. Hartough, president of the Women's Protective association of Chicago, and Mrs. August W. Dagner, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, who were among the pioneers in the movement to provide a reformatory for women.

Order Arabs to Continue Boycott of Holy Land Jews

JERUSALEM, March 13.—(AP)—James Husseinin, secretary of the Arab executive body, today issued a proclamation calling upon Arabs to continue their boycott of the Jews in Palestine. A local Arab newspaper today urged leaders to follow Gandhi's example and discard foreign made clothing, "thus showing the true spirit of nationalism which the people will follow."

French Deputies Approve Budget in 30 Hour Session

PARIS, March 13.—(AP)—At the end of a 30 hour session, the longest in history, the chamber of deputies today approved the 1931 budget in full by a vote of 460 to 120. It totals about $2,029,683,240, which is about $462,000 in excess of expenditures. Earlier in the day the deputies gave the Laval government a 340 to 215 vote of confidence.

HOWATT FACTION OF UNITED MINE WORKERS CLOSES ITS OFFICES

Springfield, Ill., March 13.—(AP)—The Alexander Howatt faction of the United Mine Workers of America today obeyed the recent ruling of Judge Harry Edwards of Dixon that "John L. Lewis is president of the lawful mine union," by closing offices here.

Joseph Londrigan, Howatt attorney, said "there was nothing else to do. All we had to do after the ruling was to check the books and turn a report of the membership over to the officers at Indianapolis."

John H. Walker, elected in December to head the Illinois district, will take over the office of Harry Fishwick on April 1.

HARTSHORN, 59, LORD PRIVY SEAL OF BRITAIN, DIES

MAESTOG, Wales, March 13.—(AP)—Vernon Hartshorn, who was a member of the Simon commission to India and had been lord privy seal in the MacDonald government since 1930, died suddenly at his home here today, with Mrs. Hartshorn at his side. He was 59.

Hartshorn was a striking figure, widely known among the miners. He had been president of the South Wales Miners' federation. The miners regarded him as a moderate and his advice was valued both by the federation and by parliament.

As postmaster general in the first MacDonald government and in his other official positions he was frequently praised for his "humanizing" policies.

GIVES UP HOPE OF NEW EVIDENCE TO SAVE KIRKLAND

Barratt O'Hara, the Chicago lawyer who defended Virgil Kirkland at Valparaiso, Ind., in his trial on charges of raping and murdering Arlene Draves, indicated yesterday that he had abandoned hope of uncovering the new evidence through which he had expected to win the Gary youth a new trial. Kirkland was found guilty of murder by assault and sentenced to life imprisonment.

All life prisoners are confined in the penitentiary at Michigan City. John A. Brown, secretary of the state board of charities, said the exact average of time served by life prisoners had never been compiled, but he estimated the period at about 15 years.

The parole board has a rule prohibiting convicted murderers from applying for pardon or parole before they have served at least 11 years. Inquiry at the Michigan City prison revealed that 470 inmates are serving life and 63 sentenced to life terms have been paroled since 1916.

The remainder of the 122 persons aboard were saved. First reports gave the death list at 200 and the number rescued at 180. All who perished were Chinese.

CUBS' HOME RUNS ROUT LOS ANGELES, 16 TO 1

SPEED KINGS TO RUN IN ILLINOIS RELAYS TODAY

Keller Threatens Sentman's Title.

Champaign, Ill., March 13.—[Special.]—Picked athletes of the central states, together with representatives from the east and south, will toe the mark in the fourteenth annual indoor relay carnival of the University of Illinois tomorrow. The main meet will be held in the evening, when the university relays and finals in the special events will be contested.

BARNEY BERLINGER.

Tomorrow afternoon will be given to the college relays, preliminaries in the special events, and the all-round championship in which Barney Berlinger, Pennsylvania's versatile star, champion for two years and holder of the record, will defend his title against a field of thirteen, including Everett Utterback, Pittsburgh colored performer, who was runner-up last year; Douglas of Grinnell, Parker of Lake Forest, and Coffman of Kansas, and possibly McDermott of Illinois.

Notre Dame Favorite.

Notre Dame's 2 mile outfit, headed by Alex Wilson and including Little, Quigley, and Kuhn, is the favorite to retain its 1930 title. These runners appear to be even faster than last year, but Michigan, Ohio State, and Marquette are dangerous contenders.

Another titleholder, Marquette, has a good chance to defend its honors in its university medley, bringing the same squad which won last year, Pete and Jack Walter, the fleet Canadians; Johnny Sisk, and Fred Sweeney. The Milwaukee Hilltoppers, if things break right, might set a new record.

For the first time since the meet was established there will be no mile high school relay, this event having been abandoned on account of the crusade against prep competitions under university auspices. Bert Nelson of Butler, who hoped to establish a new carnival record in the high jump, cannot compete on account of the ban on the Indianapolis institution by the North Central association. Butler, it is said, hopes to be reinstated when the association meets next week.

Sentman to Race Keller.

Les Sentman, Illinois hurdler, who holds the world and carnival record in the 75 yards high hurdles, will have another brush with Jack Keller, Ohio State sophomore, each having a victory to his credit. Hager, Iowa State, Big Six hurdles champion, is another likely contender.

Verne McDermott of Illinois, whose pole vault of 13 feet 9¾ inches is the best ever made from a dirt runway, heads a strong field, including Tom Warne of Northwestern.

Harold Manning, University of Wichita, national two mile college champion, will run in the 1,500 meter individual event, as well as in the medley relay. In the 1,500 meters he will be opposed by Clark Chamberlain of Michigan State college and Ray Swarts of Western State Teachers.

Avery Brundage of Chicago, former Illinois track star and all-around champion of America, will be referee and Dr. W. Monilaw, starter.

The carnival records follow:

SPANISH PLAY IS FAVORED TO WIN LOUISIANA DERBY

New Orleans, March 13.—[Special.]—The duel between Mrs. John May Whitney's Lightning Bolt and Knebelkamp and Morris's Spanish Play, which finished a nose apart in the Florida derby last Saturday, will be renewed tomorrow when they meet in the Louisiana derby at Jefferson Park.

The Florida derby winner will carry the weight of 124 pounds in the field of eleven, while 120 has been assigned to Spanish Play. Largely as a result of the four pound concession, the latter has been installed the favorite at 7 to 5.

THE GUMPS—A FATAL ERROR

Paris Boxers Fight for Trip to Chicago

BY HEROL EGAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 13.—The boxing championships of Paris were decided tonight amid the cheers of the largest crowd ever to witness amateur bouts in this city. High officials of the French army, society folk, and prominent members of the American colony made the auditorium ring with their applause as eight game young men slugged their way to victory.

By their triumphs tonight these boys completed the first phase of their campaign for places on the team which will represent France in the international matches at Chicago in May, when the eight best fighters of this country will battle a team made up of New York and Chicago Golden Glove champions.

All over France tournaments will be held next week and the best boxers in each section will fight here on April 12 and 13 to determine the makeup of the international team.

Practically every one of tonight's bouts was bitterly contested and the climax of the evening came in the heavyweight finals which found Jean Laudrin, a 21 year old youth, pitted against Pierre Germaine, a husky Paris policeman. The spectators had been worked up to a tremendous pitch by the fights which had gone before, but they were lifted out of their seats by the surprise Laudrin had prepared for them. The opening gong sounded, Laudrin advanced upon the policeman and with one terrific smash knocked him unconscious.

The bouts brought out good sportsmanship also, particularly in the middleweight contest between Bernard and Genet. In the first round Genet landed an unintentional low blow which stretched Bernard upon the canvas. He was counted out by the referee, who then turned to consult the judges, as is required by the French rules. The judges had not seen the low blow and Genet was given the fight on a knockout.

"But that's not fair," cried the winner. "I really did hit low, though I didn't mean to."

The judges let their decision stand.

French army officers are doing everything they can to send a winning team to the United States and are entering all of their best boxers in the tournament. The number of soldiers competing was evidenced by the fact that many of the contestants entered the ring wearing blue army overcoats for dressing gowns.

MAROONS OPEN DEFENSE OF GYM LAURELS TODAY

Champaign, Ill., March 13.—[Special.]—With the University of Chicago, present champion, a favorite to retain its title, the annual Big Ten gymnastic meet will be held here tomorrow with Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Michigan, Ohio State, Purdue and Wisconsin as contenders.

The finals in the conference fencing meet which opened tonight will be held tomorrow afternoon.

GOLDEN GLOVES TEAM PREPARES FOR N.Y. INVASION

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Benny Yanger, Johnny Behr and Jabber Young, who directed the Chicago team last year which defeated New York, 10 bouts to 6, at the Stadium, again will be in charge of the Golden Gloves team when it assembles Sunday afternoon at the Illinois Athletic club to commence preparation for the 1931 intercity matches.

Eight champions, eight runners-up and eight alternates, one in each weight division, will train twice daily until March 27 when the squad entrains for New York. After two days drill in New York, the intercity matches, fourth of the series, will be held in Madison Square Garden. Sixteen boys will fight in New York. The alternates are available in case of injury or illness to the others.

Through the courtesy of the I. A. C., the team will use the gymnasium and equipment in preparing for defense of the intercity title. The boys will room at the club. Their meals will be served in a special dining room.

To Train Eleven Days.

The Golden Gloves squad will train here 11 days. Not only will the boys have advantage of expert instruction, but from constant association, team spirit, all important in these intercity contests, will develop. While the eight champions are fighting for the right to face the national champions of France at the Stadium May 12, each of the 16 bouts figures in the intercity scoring. It's just as important that the second place fighters win it Chicago is to whip the eastern team in the Garden.

The excellent coaching last year is proof that these men, who will handle the squad for a second time, are capable. Their records also indicate their experience.

Benny Yanger, since 1917 boxing instructor at the Chicago Athletic association, was born in New York, but he renounced that allegiance in 1893 when 11 years of age, and since then has claimed Chicago as his home. Harry Gilmore, the old time bare knuckle lightweight, gave Benny his first boxing instruction and in 1899 Yanger fought his first professional fight, knocking out Dusty Miller in six rounds. That knockout brought $25 while Miller got $10.

Fourteen Fights First Year.

Yanger had 14 fights the first year, eight of which he won by knockouts. He won two by decision and four were draws.

Benny's first windup match was the following year against Harry Forbes at Tattersall's. A knockout in the fifth round brought him $300 of a $350 purse. Shortly after this Paddy Carroll named Yanger the "Tipton Slasher" after an old English champion, and the name stuck.

On the way up through the ranks Benny met and whipped George Dixon, Joe Bernstein, Tim Callahan, Kid Broad, Abe Attell, Charley Neary, Young Corbett, Hugh McPadden, Kid Herman, Austin Rice, Clarence English, and Johnny Richie. In those days boxers had to fight, for the purse

"To the Land of the Takatu" Is Story for Boys All Ages

This is a story for all boys and also those of their elders who played Indian with homemade feathers and hunted buried treasure down on the corner lot once upon a time. It is likewise an invitation to come "To the Land of the Takatu," with Bob Becker, TRIBUNE outdoors expert, in his thrilling new adventure story which starts in this section Sunday.

"To the Land of the Takatu" is the tale of three American Boy Scouts and their experiences in the Brazilian jungles. They have been chosen to accompany "Grant Dalley," an experienced explorer, on a bird and mammal collecting trip to South America for a museum.

So much of the story sounds very pleasant, but it might be well to serve readers with a warning that "To the Land of the Takatu" is not a mere chase after birds and animals. Long before the museum specimen cases are filled, "Dana Standish," "Skibo Jackson," and "Red Harper," the young heroes of the story, undergo a series of experiences such as would have the folks at home listening for weeks on end.

Here Are High Spots.

Buying machetes in a Manaos, Brazil, supply store.

Falling off a South American river scow.

Shooting alligators.

A jaguar hunt.

The boom of war drums and a meeting with the mysterious Macashe Indians.

And, finally, the discovery of an ancient Indian burial cave and what happened after one of the boys came upon it.

But that is almost too much to be telling boys who will want to follow Dana, Skibo, and Red and their adventures from Sunday to Sunday. A few Chicago boys already have an advantage on their friends. The first few chapters of "To the Land of the Takatu" were tested on the young sons of a number of TRIBUNE employes. They were enthusiastic about it, and all demanded the remaining chapters of the story.

Scout Leaders Praise Tale.

The opening installments of "To the Land of the Takatu" also were submitted to Boy Scout leaders throughout the central states, and several of them replied with letters praising it highly. One of them, from Allan R. Carpenter, educational director of the Chicago council of Boy Scouts, addressed Mr. Becker as follows:

"Your story, 'To the Land of the Takatu,' is so full of adventure and wholesome thrills that I am sure every boy and man will want to read it.

"We are glad to see clean cut stories of this sort, based upon actual experiences, made available to our boys.

"Every Boy Scout and scout leader will want to take this trip with your three Boy Scouts and Mr. Grant Dalley to 'The Mountains of the Moon.'"

"Thank you for sending proof copies of the first five chapters of 'To the Land of the Takatu.'" C. M. Arnold, scout executive of the Oak Park area council, wrote. "I am convinced that this is going to be not only an interesting but a very informative and enlightening story. I am looking forward to reading the various install-

Becker to Speak Tonight on New Story Over W-G-N

In his second broadcast on "The Land of the Takatu," a serial story by Bob Becker, the author will continue his interview with Chicago Boy Scouts tonight from 8:30 to 8:50 over W-G-N.

Mr. Becker will answer more questions concerning the Amazonian jungles, where the story takes place, and prepare listeners for the plot which deals with an expedition up the Rio Negro and Rio Branco to obtain animals and birds for a museum.

The three lads who will be on hand to represent Dana Standish, Skibo Jackson, and Red Harper, the boys of the story, are Phillip Freeman, troop 641, and Jack Wier and Giles Atwood, both of troop 342.

LOUGHRAN FINDS SCHAAF BOUT IS JUST A WORKOUT

Fight Decisions

At Pittsburgh, Pa.—Young Thomas, Pittsburgh, beat Benny Schwartz, Baltimore [10].
At Erie, Pa.—Lou Petrone, Worcester, Mass., stopped Lou Wallace, Cleveland [3].
At Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Billie Blunke, Moline, beat Bobby O'Dowd, Cedar Rapids [8].

New York, March 13.—[Special.]—Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia's veteran, tonight squared accounts with young Ernie Schaaf of Boston. Through ten rounds of interesting boxing seldom excelled in Madison Square Garden, Loughran whipped Schaaf in a battle that was witnessed by 11,075, who paid gross receipts of $33,213.

Every trick of the trade at his fingertips, Loughran won clear title to the decision of Referee Jeb Cahan and Judges Charlie Braycott and George Kelly.

From the first round until the eighth there was nothing to the battle but Loughran. It was as if Loughran was giving an exhibition of boxing finesse and Schaaf was the subject of illustration. When Schaaf did shake off his lethargy, to win the last two rounds in a smashing, reckless offensive, it was too late to upset the margin on points that the veteran enjoyed.

Loughran won eight rounds and Schaaf two—the ninth and tenth.

Sox, Giants Renew Spring Rivalry Today

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., March 13.—From now on daily chores of the White Sox will be something else than dull training routine, and the athletes will welcome the change. Starting tomorrow the Giants will become embroiled in a lengthy series with the Chicagoans and these affairs, along with a few others against various outfits, will keep Comiskey's pale hosed performers busy every day until the regular campaign opens. The only break will be a four day spell on the conditioning field here week after next.

As a final dress-up for the first of 17 meetings with McGraw's men at spots between here and New York City, Manager Donie Bush devoted his attention this afternoon to what he hopes will be his regular layout through the summer. He had his infield go through another spirited practice and the prospective regular outfielders—Jolley, Simons, and Reynolds—were treated to a program arranged to make them feel perfectly natural about picking up ground balls and throwing them to the plate.

Last year the Sox tendered the Giants a sound spanking in the majority of games played on the spring barnstorming jaunt and there is an unconcealed desire to administer similar treatment in the impending series. To this end Bush intends to feed only choice pitching to the National leaguers. Vic Frasier, new fast baller of apparent consequence, will start tomorrow. He will be succeeded by either Caraway or Moore or both. McGraw, being another who regards an exhibition as something worth winning, is expected to trot out two or three of his best bets, of which he hasn't many. His choice may be Walker, Hubbell, and a new collegian named Schumacher.

Mr. McGraw intends to use in his starting lineup the same outfield and infield he expects will prove good enough to keep pace with the four other prospective contenders in the National league race. This lineup is vastly different than the one most popular with the New York pilot last season. Freddy Lindstrom, ex-third sacker is in right field; Ott has been moved from right to center, and Leach is in left. At Lindstrom's former third place post is Verges, from the Coast league. Leslie is playing first, but this is temporary. Terry, recently a holdout, will take the berth as soon as he shows up.

MRS. JONES WINS BELLEAIR GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

Belleair, Fla., March 13.—(AP)—Mrs. Melvin Jones, Chicago, won the Belleair women's golf championship, defeating Mrs. Helen B. Stetson, Philadelphia, 3 and 2. The Chicago woman's victory culminated a week of remarkable golf during which she won the qualifying medal and three subsequent matches by the one-sided margins of 7 and 5.

MALONE TAMES ANGELS; ROOT GETS GENEROUS

21 Hits Rattle Off Bruins' Bats.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 13.—The Cubs this afternoon started their 1931 endeavors on the mainland of the United States with a most impressive performance against the Los Angeles Coast league team. The score was 16 to 1 and the minor leaguers weren't permitted their score until after one out in the ninth, when Charley Root, bored to tears, allowed two of five hits made by the Angels.

ROGERS HORNSBY.

The Cubs could have won on home run efforts alone. Manager Hornsby smacked one in the first inning and Gabby Hartnett got one in the fourth. Hornsby drove in two men with his and Gabby went around alone, he being the leadoff man of the inning.

Pat Malone pitched the first five innings and gave only two hits, a double by Dittmar in the second inning and a single by Jacobs in the fourth.

Cubs Score 9 in 2 Innings.

The only time the Angels had a scoring chance, aside from the generous instance in the ninth, was in Root's first inning, the sixth, when they loaded the bases as a result of a hit batsman, an error by Hornsby and a walk. But Doc Farrell, erstwhile Cub, stopped the uprising with a pop to English.

The manner in which our boys picked on Ballou in the first two innings was most unkind, the net of the span being 11 hits for a total of 19 bases for nine runs. The first five batsmen knocked out wicked hits; Cuyler's was a double, English's a single, Hornsby's a homer, Wilson's a single and Stephenson's a triple. Hartnett then gave the Angels a breathing spell by striking out, but Bell and Grimm stirred up things by getting long singles. The total for the inning was five runs.

Rout Ballou in Second.

In the second inning, the Cubs were again vicious and closed Ballou's employment for the day. Singles by Hornsby and Stephenson, an error by Farrell and doubles by Bell and Grimm added four runs.

Mal Moss, former Cub, went in for four innings and restored some dignity by holding the Cubs to three runs, one of which was an exceedingly powerful homer by Hartnett.

Then the game got sloppy again and the second string Cubs had lots of fun, especially Johnny Moore, who stole two bases, one of them home. All told, the Chicagoans helped themselves to 21 hits. Score:

PELZER, BELTING QUESTIONED BY HAWKEYE BOARD

Des Moines, Ia., March 13.—(AP)—Prof. Louis Pelzer, Iowa's faculty representative, today was questioned by the legislative committee investigating the university's administration in regard to his defense of charges presented to the conference faculty group. Pelzer gave a detailed story of the Big Ten conference meeting at Evanston, May 25, 1929, at which the University of Iowa was suspended. He said that a vote to sever relations with Iowa was taken within 13 minutes after the allegations were read.

"I think they had the goods on us," was Pelzer's reply to questions.

Cross examination of Paul E. Belting, former athletic director at Iowa, was completed today. He denied he had been unpopular, the reason given by President Walter A. Jessup for his dismissal. Belting admitted that Jessup had not told him specifically to use athletic department funds as a loan to athletes, but told him to "get the money for tuition." He said he had no other funds available.

Hall Beats Rainville for East Coast Title

Ormond Beach, Fla., March 13.—(AP)—J. Gilbert Hall won the Florida east coast tennis championship here today when he defeated Marcel Rainville, Canadian ace, in the finals, 6-3, 6-4, 9-11, 6-4.

PROMOTE AN EXCLUSIVE CLUB—THE FISHING'S ALWAYS GOOD

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 13.—This is a nation of joiners, but the lodge joiners of the little towns are no more ready to pay their money for the secret grips, the lapel buttons and the fraternal arcanums of the Knights of the Royal Sleeve Garter than the middling well to do people of the large cities are to become members of synthetic yacht, golf, beach, hunt and breakfast clubs.

The city people who buy memberships in these mock clubs at great aggregate cost seem a little more vain and gullible than the smelly bourgeoisie of the cross roads who paid ten dollars a head, plus the cost of their night shirts, for the privilege of attending bonfires as knights of the Ku Klux Klan in the prosperous days of the Nordic inquisition. Incidentally, has anybody heard of any contribution toward the relief of the hungry in the famine country of Kentucky and Arkansas from the millions paid into the treasury of the Ku Klux Klan?

The club racket, as practiced on city people with delusions of social splendor and exclusiveness, employs the lure of sport as its principal appeal. Well, perhaps it could be shown that the first appeal is addressed to the victim's vanity, but if so, his zest for sport is a bang up second.

As a hypothetical case let us assume that a millionaire has grown tired of paying taxes and maintenance on a disused country estate of his, a rundown property with a fine shore line or a mountain view. Let us say that this property lies on a high bluff on the rock bound, wave lapped shore of South Dakota, close to a large city.

The millionaire sells his place for $100,000 and the man who buys it pays $10,000 down.

A corporation is then formed which buys the property from this man for $300,000. The corporation now organizes a concern which is loosely and inaccurately described as a club, under a very aristocratic name such as the Enoch Arden Yacht and Surf club or the Royal and Ancient Sawgrass Manor Golf and Country club, Inc.

Gentlemanly salesmen will now approach a number of commuters living in the general vicinity of the property, selecting citizens with just enough money to justify some bold social longings, but not enough to qualify them for legitimate clubs of the same luxury and pretension.

The salesmen will tell these citizens that this is to be a very exclusive club and advise them that they have been "looked up" and approved by the committee on membership as desirable life members. This gross flattery is quite familiar to many denizens of the great American suburbs, but it never loses its pull. After all this time it is still being used to sell space at from $100 to $1,000 a page in a variety of Who's Whos which never come off the presses.

There is to be a fleet of commuting seaplanes to carry the members from the yacht club's own landing in town to the yacht club's own basin on the picturesque South Dakota shore on hot summer afternoons. There will be a golf course also, and a swimming pool, a trout stream, a game preserve, bridle paths, stables and, naturally, a very fine bar. The tired business man will appreciate a very fine bar.

The cost of a life membership will be, say, $1,000, and all life members will be non-assessable and immune to dues. But the subsequent members, who will be of slightly less distinguished character, though quite fit for company, you understand, will have to pay plenty for initiation and annual dues. In fact, the subsequent, or common, members will practically carry the financial load of the life members. About 400 life memberships will be created, and let us say that 300 of them are sold for $1,200 each.

At this time the salesmen are running into the less optimistic and class-conscious prospects, and the sales resistance is increasing. So the membership becomes practically stationary at 300. There are no common members to pay the dues to carry on the club.

In the meantime, the salesmen have received 10 per cent of the life membership money as their commission, and the corporation has allowed itself 15 per cent for dividends and expenses. The other 75 per cent has been spent to improve the property. Gardeners have transformed the grounds and builders have installed the luxuries of the Pickford-Fairbankses in the club buildings, so the property has really become a magnificent place.

But now the receipts are gone and the man who bought the property for $10,000 down a couple of years ago is beginning to press the corporation for payments.

So the corporation regretfully informs the life members that owing to unforeseen circumstances due to "present conditions" they will have to put down some more money to protect their original investments of $1,000 each.

The club doesn't run long after this. The members get a lawyer and discover that they aren't actually members of a club at all. There are several meetings and committees are appointed, but in the end, everybody being pretty busy and pretty sheepish about it all, the members drop out, the mortgage is foreclosed, and the property reverts back to the buyer together with all the improvements.

In New York, any fairly solvent resident of the stucco suburbs will receive in the course of a year three or four invitations to join exclusive outdoor clubs, usually accompanied by expensive folders setting forth the promoter's dream of luxury, beauty and social discrimination.

I have heard that this sort of promotion began with the land booms in California and Florida. As to California, I do not know, but in the last few years I have seen several gaudy country clubhouses in Florida, going to ruin and golf courses reverting to jungle again, where a few years ago the salesmen were promising the honored prospects paradise forever.

In solvent communities, however, the property does not go to ruin. It goes back to the promoters, much improved.

ST. MEL BATTLES JOLIET QUINTET FOR HEAVY TITLE

Catholic Section Victors Meet Tonight.

St. Mel High school, champions of the north section, and De La Salle of Joliet, which was forced to play an extra game to capture the south division title, tonight will clash for the heavyweight basketball championship of the Catholic league at Loyola gymnasium.

St. Mel lowered the curtain on its league schedule with a brilliant record. St. Mel went through its 12 game schedule with only one defeat. The setback was administered by De Paul academy, which, despite two early season losses, came back to roll up ten consecutive victories.

Joliet, tied for the south section championship with seven victories and three defeats, triumphed over St. Ignatius in the playoff to qualify for the finals. Joliet and St. Mel also will compete in the eighth annual national Catholic tournament, which begins at Loyola Wednesday.

The lightweight championship of the league will be decided next week. Loyola took the north section title, while St. Ignatius ponies will represent the south division. Tonight's probable lineup:

ST. MEL.		JOLIET.

TULEY WINS, 18 TO 13

The triple tie for the north and west section's lightweight championship is broken. Tuley yesterday defeated Roosevelt, 18 to 13, and will meet Marshall for the right to battle Englewood, victor of the central and south crown, in the City league finals.

Tuley, champions of the west section, and which went through its league schedule undefeated, was tied with Roosevelt and Marshall with two victories and one loss in the semi-finals. Wendell Phillips has won the heavyweight championship of the central and south zones, and three teams still have a chance in the north and west sections.

HAWKS TO MEET MAPLE LEAFS IN NIGHT ENCOUNTER

By virtue of Thursday night's winning rally against the Bruins, the Blackhawks will go up against the Toronto Maple Leafs tomorrow with a firm grasp on second place. The time of the game, which will be played at the Stadium, has been changed from afternoon to evening.

The Hawks had plenty of incentive for their closing dash to victory, because they were only one point ahead of the New York Rangers before Thursday's encounter. Now they have a comfortable margin of three points and can clinch second place by winning any one of their four remaining games. The Rangers have two more to play and will cease to be a menace to the Hawks if they lose either.

The Philadelphia team, which occupies last place, is the only member of the American division which will perform tonight. The Quakers are scheduled to meet the Montreal Maroons, while Les Canadiens are battling Ottawa.

generally was divided so the winner received 75 per cent or more.

A series of injuries ended Yanger's professional career. Until his last few fights John Hertz was his manager. Benny gave private instruction in Chicago from 1914 to 1917 when he was employed by the C. A. A.

Young Starts at 16.

Jabber Young (very few know him as George Young, the appellation of Jabber being acquired from his style of boxing) is a native of Menasha, Wis. Many of his early fights were in Milwaukee. He fought professionally four times while only 16 years old, including a match with Eddie Evers. Jabber then enlisted in the 1st Wisconsin infantry and set out for the border to chase Pancho Villa.

Back from Mexico, Jabber continued boxing until the world war. After several months in charge of recruiting at Neenah, Wis., he went overseas with the 32d division. While in this division he won the lightweight and welterweight service championships. Just before the war ended Jabber came back to the United States and was instructor at Camp Devens. He now holds a commission in the reserves.

While an operative of the United States department of justice, after the war, Jabber fought many bouts around Boston. Some of his opponents were Johnny Sullivan, John Donovan, Frankie Britt, Howard McRae, and Joe Downs. Returning again to the middle west, Jabber fought Sailor Friedman, Mike O'Leary, Tommy Neary, Ray Dempsey, Archie Ammons, and Frankie Welch.

Retires from Ring in 1923.

Shortly after his marriage in 1923, Jabber retired from the ring. Since then he has refereed thousands of amateur fights and instructed hundreds of boys. He has officiated in the last six Central A. A. U. boxing tournaments, the Golden Gloves, junior nationals, and international championships.

Johnny Behr, athletic director of the Illinois Athletic club, like Benny Yanger, was born in the east. However, when six years old, his parents moved from Brooklyn to the south side of Chicago and Johnny has lived here ever since.

After graduation from the Drake grammar school, Johnny went to work. He first received boxing instruction from Billy O'Connell at his Madison street gymnasium. There he boxed with Jack Britton, Packy McFarland, K. O. Brown, and Charley White and soon was in the ring as a preliminary boy. Johnny also became interested in track and for several years practiced at Hamilton park with Doc Darwent, Frank Hill, and others, who since have achieved prominence.

Enters St. John's.

Packy McFarlane first suggested to Behr that he complete his education and Johnny entered St. John's Military academy, receiving tuition for his work as boxing instructor.

A bit later Johnny received an appointment to the United States Military academy and studied for a year at West Point. Returning to St. John's, Behr enlisted when the war broke out and was detailed to the intelligence service, where he served throughout the war.

After release from military service Behr was employed by the I. A. C. as assistant athletic director and boxing instructor. A year later he became athletic director, the position he now holds. I. A. C. teams have gained national prominence under Behr's coaching and for several years won both the indoor and outdoor titles.

Rudy Dusek of Omaha will meet Mike Romano next Wednesday night on the Jim Londos-Kola Kwariani heavyweight wrestling card at the Coliseum. Dusek has been campaigning in the east. Scarcely a heavyweight, he depends on rushing tactics and speed against his heavier opponents.

'TO THE LAND OF THE TAKATU' IS A STORY FOR ALL

Becker's Adventure Tale Starts Tomorrow.

ments as they appear in THE TRIBUNE."

Although "To the Land of the Takatu" is a fiction story, its author did not rely solely on his imagination in writing it.

Becker Knows South America.

After his graduation from Beloit college in 1912, Becker spent one summer in surveying the village and workshop sites of the mound builders, in which work he made his first contact with Indian life. He was a member of the Field museum's department of zoölogy for five years and was in the museum's bird and mammal collecting expedition to Brazil. He spent a year and a half in the Amazon country and later traveled through the Andes in Peru and Bolivia.

During his stay in South America Becker lived with various Indian tribes and visited the famous ancient Indian ruins of Tiahuanca on Lake Titicaca and Chan Chan near Saliverry on the Peruvian coast, so that the Macashe and the Takatu countries are no strangers to him.

He has been identified with Boy Scout activities for a number of years and is now deputy commissioner of the Chicago council. He has conducted TRIBUNE-Boy Scout canoe cruises, and in 1929 Dan Beard, founder of the Boy Scout movement, awarded him the Buckskin medal for service to boys.

Virginia to Send Team to Loyola Meet

Virginia will be represented for the first time Wednesday when the eighth annual national Catholic interscholastic basketball tournament opens at Loyola university.

Officials of the tournament yesterday received a telegram from Benedictine college, Richmond, Va., asking that a place be held open for the winner of the state Catholic prep meet now being held at that institution. Twenty teams are battling for the right to play in the Loyola tourney. The winner will be decided tomorrow night.

Another eastern entry also was received yesterday, that of Neumann High school, Williamsville, N. Y. The New Yorkers were in the tournament last year, losing in the third round, and were invited to compete again on the strength of their record. They have lost only 2 games out of 24, both to Athol Spring, N. Y., which also is entered in the Loyola meet.

A list of the officials who will handle the meet is headed by John Schommer and Nick Kearns, Big Ten officials. Others are W. Clarno and George Boyle.

SATURDAY, MARCH 14, 1931.

THIS MAN DRAWS TWO MILLIONS IN SALARY, 'BONUS'

G. W. Hill Builds Up Amer. Tobacco Co.

New York, March 13.—(AP)—Having carried on a heated debate on whether an executive is worth a million dollars a year, Wall street suddenly finds that apparently it has one in its midst who received twice that amount in 1930.

The American Tobacco company is estimated to have paid its president approximately $2,283,000 last year. His services thus rewarded were extraordinary, as viewed from the annual earnings statement.

In a year that was either lean or unprofitable for many of the nation's leading corporations, the country's largest unit in the tobacco industry piled up a net income of $43,000,000, which was more than 40 per cent greater than the previous year, when the country was prospering.

Nevertheless, the controversy over how a big corporation should reward executives for extraordinary services rages. Starting with litigation over the bonus system adopted by Bethlehem Steel corporation, which netted its president well over a million for 1929, a group of American Tobacco stockholders, headed by Richard Reid Rogers, has obtained permission through the Supreme court of New York to inspect the company's books to learn details of its stock bonus plan.

Pay Check for a Million.

The 1930 pay check of American Tobacco's president, George Washington Hill, amounted to a cool million, and in addition the distribution of stock to employes, approved by the directors last year, put 13,440 shares into his strong box at the low price of $25 a share, or a discount of about $1,283,000 from the current market price.

Mr. Rogers and his group charge that this plan, as applied to all officers and employes who participated, amounted to a bonus of about $30,000,000. He seeks to enjoin this sale of stock to "insiders," as he called them, at such bargain prices.

It was the Duke family who created the tobacco dynasty, but it was a Hill—George Washington Hill—who assumed a heritage left him by his father, and built the company to its present stature.

Not in Who's Who.

He is not in Who's Who, nor will you find an imposing list of companies after his name in the directory of directors, but he is Wall street's two million dollar a year man—for 1930 at least.

Mr. Hill was only 42 years old when his father, Percival S. Hill, died suddenly in 1925. The son succeeded his father as president, to become one of the youngest executives at the head of a large corporation in the country. The new president had known no other business. He had gone into the office of the American Tobacco company in 1904, when Williams college gave him a diploma.

The year he became president the company turned out only one-fifth of the country's cigaret production. In the five years of his administration the company's business has virtually doubled, and in 1930 the company manufactured 38 per cent of all the cigarets made in this country.

Proration and Limitation Are Hoover's Oil Remedies

Washington, D. C., March 13.—(AP)—Proration of domestic oil production and limitation of imports were looked to today by President Hoover to solve the ills of the distressed petroleum industry.

The President made this known after Secretary Wilbur had announced American oil importers, with one exception, had agreed to limit the amount brought into the United States.

In a formal statement, President Hoover said limitation of imports would have little effect unless the recently developed pool in east Texas were prorated on the same basis as other new pools.

"It is believed," he added, "that if these two results could be brought about, the industry would soon readjust itself."

President Hoover said he had been advised the governor of Texas was making an effort to bring about proration for that pool.

Price to Consumer.

The chief executive, who initiated negotiations for limiting imports, added the federal oil conservation board believed a substantial reduction in the amount brought into this country "can be brought about without disturbing the price of oil to the consumer."

Secretary Wilbur, in announcing the agreement to curtail imports in line with proration restrictions here, said it would reduce the amount brought in several million barrels annually. Negotiations with the companies were conducted by Secretary Lamont under instructions from President Hoover.

Wilbur, as chairman of the federal oil conservation board, said all the importers except the Standard Oil Company of Indiana had pledged curtailment. That company, he added, had shown a willingness to help, but had found a reduction agreement might conflict with contracts it had.

"The Mellon interests," Secretary Wilbur said, referring to the Gulf Oil company, "and the Standard of New Jersey are among those which have agreed to harmonize imports with domestic restrictions, as have all other importing companies with the exception of the Standard of Indiana."

May Join in Move.

Wilbur said he had been advised informally the Royal Dutch Shell company and the Pan-American Petroleum company would join in the move.

The voluntary curb affects primarily South American oil produced chiefly in Venezuela and Colombia, the two largest exporters to the United States.

Wilbur said the government had no power to negotiate a formal agreement with the companies nor could they, under existing laws, agree with each other. He added that each had agreed voluntarily to reduce imports.

Criticizes Policy.

Austin, Tex., March 13.—(AP)—Gov. Ross S. Sterling late today voiced a severe criticism of the state railroad commission's "hands off" policy up to today in the new east Texas oil fields.

The governor said that the unrestricted flow in east Texas was the reason crude prices had fallen to such a low level. He made the observation in confirming reports he had drafted a bill to take oil and gas regulation away from the railroad commission.

Under the governor's plan, a conservation commission of three, appointed by the governor at a salary of $7,500 each, would regulate oil and gas conservation.

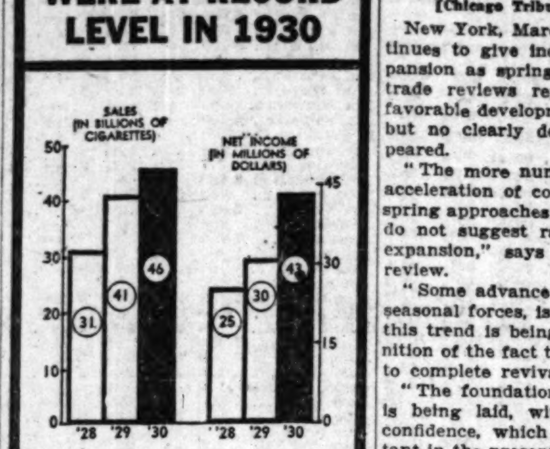

"The existing conservation laws are adequate," Gov. Sterling said. "The railroad commission either cannot enforce them because they have too many other duties, or they will not." He pointed out that the railroad commission had numerous other responsibilities including regulation, of and establishment of rates for railroads, buses, and trucks.

Asks Reconsideration.

New York, March 13.—(AP)—A committee representing the oil industry today asked the federal trade commission to reconsider its contemplated action to withdraw its approval of the petroleum marketing code in a communication presented by W. R. Boyd Jr., executive vice president of the American Petroleum institute, on behalf of the committee.

While the federal trade commission in Washington declined to disclose the nature of the communication, it was made public here today through the institute. The commission was asked to reapprove the 21 rules of the marketing code and give the committee "an opportunity to discuss with it, either at a private conference or in the course of an open meeting as the commission may elect, any specific objections which the federal body may have to any provisions of the code."

AMERICAN TOBACCO SALES AND INCOME WERE AT RECORD LEVEL IN 1930

NORFOLK & WESTERN FIGHTS U. S. EFFORT TO GET $15,849,000

Washington, D. C., March 13.—(AP)—A contest against the government's attempt to collect $15,849,000 from it as excess earnings was instituted today before the interstate commerce commission by the Norfolk and Western railway. That company was ordered by the commission last month to pay over the sum as representing half of its total income for 1924 to 1926 in excess of 6 per cent on the valuation of its property.

In the protest the company said the commission had "arbitrarily" placed its value in 1926 at $379,500,000, and that the figure "was much less than the fair and lawful value of the railroad." By its own calculation, it contended, the railroad was worth in that year "not less than $737,700,000."

In addition, the order to pay the $15,849,000 was asserted by the protest to be "based upon erroneous principles of law" and to "exceed the lawful power of the commission." It asked an opportunity to reopen conference with the commission's valuation staff and for delay in the application of the order.

The demand upon the Norfolk and Western for a recovery of alleged excess income was the first to be made upon an important railroad. A number of similar claims, tentatively estimated to aggregate $270,000,000, are, however, in preparation and will be brought forward if the test proceeding against the Norfolk and Western is successful.

Better Business Signs Are Visible as Spring Nears

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 13.—Business continues to give indications of slow expansion as spring approaches, weekly trade reviews reported today. Some favorable developments have appeared, but no clearly defined trend has appeared.

"The more numerous indications of acceleration of commercial activity as spring approaches are encouraging, but do not suggest rapid and widespread expansion," says R. G. Dun & Co.'s review.

"Some advance now, in response to seasonal forces, is wholly natural. Yet this trend is being viewed with recognition of the fact that various obstacles to complete revival still remain.

"The foundation for better business is being laid, with strengthening of confidence, which is especially important in the present situation, gradually spreading. A further gain in sentiment recently has been promoted by a more favorable turn in agricultural conditions, due to beneficial rains and snowfall over an extended area of the country. The results of the harvests this year will have a vital bearing on the future of business.

Cites Commodity Firmness.

"Another hopeful sign of late occurrence is the movement toward greater firmness in commodity prices, as reflected in the second consecutive weekly excess of advances in Dun's comprehensive list of wholesale quotations. At no previous time since the depression began in the autumn of 1929 has a similar record been made."

Bradstreet's notes a continued slow growth in spring trade and manufacturing.

"There are some features of favorable import," it adds, "such as a further gain in employment in manufacturing lines, a much more marked increase in outdoor activities, a slight further gain in the pace of automobile production, and an even slighter increase in steel capacity based on a gain in specifications."

Steel Plant Operations.

Dow, Jones & Co. says that, based on indication at midweek, steel plant operations in the Mahoning valley in the coming week should advance slightly, rising above the 50 per cent level for the first time this year.

While the advance, if any, will be slight, the report says, sentiment among Youngstown district manufacturers has shown a distinct improvement within the last week. Executives of leading companies continue mildly optimistic of further slow increases in steel production.

PLAN UTILITY BOND OFFERING OF $100,000,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 13.—Plans for marketing the largest issue of public utility bonds offered in nine months, a new issue of $100,000,000 for the Pennsylvania Power and Light company, are nearing completion, it was learned in banking circles today.

The new issue will take the form of first and refunding mortgage 4½ per cent bonds, due 1960. Of the proceeds of this issue part will be used to retire bonds outstanding under this mortgage carrying higher rates of interest, thus providing a considerable saving to the company. The balance of the proceeds will be used in connection with the company's expansion and improvement program. All of the bonds outstanding, consisting of 5s, 6s, and 7s, originally marketed in an aggregate amount of $37,000,000, are callable on thirty day's notice.

The banking group which will market the issue will be headed by the Guaranty company of New York, Harris, Forbes & Co., Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and Brown Brothers, Harrison & Co. The parent company of the Pennsylvania Power and Light company is the National Power and Light company.

INSURANCE FOR FEBRUARY GAINS OVER JANUARY

New York, March 13.—(AP)—Although 9.1 per cent below figures for the like month of 1930, new life insurance production last month was relatively better than in January, when a decrease of 10.7 per cent was shown in comparison with January last year.

The comparisons were shown in a statement forwarded today by the Association of Life Insurance Presidents to the United States department of commerce. The report included figures of 44 member companies having in force 82 per cent of the total insurance outstanding in all United States legal reserve companies.

Total new business of all classes written by the 44 companies in February was $911,937,000, against $1,003,478,000 during February of 1930. New ordinary insurance amounted to $599,462,000, a decrease of 18 per cent from $730,735,000 reported for February of last year.

Newsprint Output During February Shows Decline

Production of newsprint by United States and Canadian mills in February amounted to 253,340 tons, or 58.5 per cent of daily capacity, against 289,866 tons, or 61.1 per cent, in January, and 301,548 tons, or 74.5 per cent, in February of 1930, the Newsprint Service bureau reports.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 13.—Maybe it was because Friday the thirteenth was happening, but neither bull nor bear seemed anxious to start anything of a serious nature on the stock exchange today. As a consequence the market drifted through one of the dullest sessions of the year. Sales sunk to a bare 2,400,000 shares and price movements were sluggish in the extreme.

Bear forces continued to pound away at the more vulnerable spots of the list—though with somewhat more caution than they have been showing of late—and succeeded in breaking the averages of the ninety stocks figuring in the Standard Statistics index through the resistance levels of a fortnight ago.

Among the old guard units to "break through" were United States Steel which had been pegged—supposedly—at 143. It went down to 142½ today, but friends came to its rescue there and the finish found it back to 143⅞, which represented a net gain of more than a half point on the day.

Bulls Are Alert.

It was noticeable, in fact, that the bull interests while not showing any pronounced disposition to reckless expenditure in an effort to start a rally nevertheless were alert to furnish some measure of support when the occasion required. This attitude no doubt gave the reactionary crowd something to think about and served as a brake on the selling movement, at all times.

Probably the most discouraging feature of the day in the absence of any drastic price changes was the tendency of operations to speed up when the market was in a reactionary mood. At other times—notably when the swing was temporarily in the other direction—trading would literally dry up, the ticker coming to a complete stop at intervals.

News of a stock market character was scarce. As one brokerage house authority expressed it, corporations that had favorable developments to report no doubt felt that it would be a waste of ammunition to release it at this time and fortunately there was a halt in the disheartening run of bad dividend news with which the market has been deluged these past few days. Even the rumor market gave itself a holiday.

Rails Again Sickly.

Rails again looked sickly, but declines in the high grade issues were less pronounced than they have been from day to day since the decline gained such headway. Wabash preferred dropped to the lowest level since 1924 and Boston & Maine tumbled 5 points on a single transaction, Frisco also sank to the poorest price in seven years and Baltimore & Ohio on dividend doubts yielded nearly 3 points but later received about half its loss.

Erie and Southern Pacific were off a point or so each and Atchison gave up 2 points of the gain it recorded yesterday. New York Central for a change finished on the upside today and so did a scattering of others including Illinois Central which gained 3 points.

Coppers Are Lower.

Steel shares were weak as a group, Bethlehem and Crucible dropping about 3 points each, but both recovering part of their losses as the leader turned up in the later dealings. The coppers were again lower and the oils had a poor market.

Except for Chrysler the motors held fairly firm. Most of the public utilities were 1 to 2 points lower when the final gong put an end to their misery.

In the volatile group Auburn Auto dropped about 4 points, then rebounded to close at 186¼, off a point; Case dropped more than 3 but likewise snapped back, and Eastman Kodak recorded a net decline of 4 points after being much lower.

BONDS FOLLOW STOCK MARKET TO SELL LOWER

New York, March 13.—(AP)—The bond market followed stocks downward today and for the same reasons in many instances. Railroad issues reflected the uncertain outlook for earnings and dividends for many of the carriers. Obligations with stock purchase or conversion options followed the corresponding stocks to lower levels. Foreign bonds, especially some of them which strengthened earlier in the week, were affected by the reaction in the other groups.

Bonds of the Van Sweringen railroads and companies played an important part in the decline of the rail obligations. A few Van Sweringen obligations, however, were higher and the decline in rail liens was far from being confined to this group.

Swift Given Refund of $498,961 on 1917 Taxes

Washington, D. C., March 13.—(AP)—The bureau of internal revenue announced today a refund of $498,961 in favor of Swift & Co. of Chicago for overassessment of taxes in 1917. The Aluminum Company of America of Pittsburgh received a credit of $246,918, covering an overassessment for 1918.

February Figures Show Gain in Rubber Industry

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 13.—Improvement in the rubber industry is indicated by February figures on consumption. The total amount of that commodity consumed by domestic manufacturers last month was 28,797 long tons. That was an increase of slightly less than 1 per cent over consumption during January, when manufacturers took 28,557 tons. The mere fact that consumption registered an increase last month, compared with January, was unusual, however, as ordinarily a seasonal decrease of about 4 per cent takes place in February, according to statistics compiled by the Rubber Manufacturers' association.

International Shoe Wins U. S. Quartermaster Award

Philadelphia, Pa., March 13.—(AP)—The International Shoe company, St. Louis, today was awarded the contract for the manufacture of 22,992 pairs of service shoes and 18,000 pairs of garrison shoes by the Philadelphia quartermaster's depot of the United States army. The company's bid of $2.58½ per pair for service shoes and $3.37 per pair for garrison shoes were the lowest among six bidders.

COPPER SALES ON BASIS OF 10¼ CTS. ARE MODERATE

New York, March 13.—(AP)—Moderate buying of copper on the basis of 10¼ cents a pound, both in the domestic and foreign markets, was reported today.

All producers and custom smelters were quoting 10¼ cents, delivered, in the domestic market, and wire companies had raised their prices to the basis of 10¼ cents for copper. Some brass companies, however, still held their products at prices based on 10 cent copper.

Export buying was on the basis of 10.55 cents, c. i. f. European base ports. The price marked a rise of ¼ cent from the 10.30 cents a pound announced yesterday and resulted from a new policy of Copper Exporters, Inc., which brought about an automatic increase of ¼ of a cent in the export price after 1,000 tons were sold at the 10.30 cent level.

LOOKING AHEAD WITH BUSINESS

Proposed heavy construction and engineering operations announced throughout the country in the last 7 day period reached a new high weekly total for the current year, Construction Daily reports. By virtue of a $68,000,000 school building program just approved by the New York board of education for 1931, all types of work, exclusive of residential and highways, were valued at $108,325,000 for the week, against $90,136,000 in the preceding week and $73,801,000 in the like week last year.

Recent improvement in sentiment throughout the business world, initiated largely as a psychological reaction to strength in the stock market, has likewise been reflected in moderate degree in consumer buying, Standard Statistics company says. A survey of leading organizations in various retail trade divisions indicates that demand, although still spotty, is somewhat brisker than during the initial month of 1931, the company says.

Severn P. Kerr, chairman of the board of Sharon Steel Hoop company, said the experience of his company in the current steel market indicates "very definitely that business is on the upturn." He said that while no unusually large orders are being placed, each day's business shows some improvement.

Elisha Walker, president of Trans-America corporation, in his annual letter to stockholders, said that "directors feel that a part of the large surplus resulting from more prosperous periods but heretofore not paid to stockholders, may be used to a reasonable extent if necessary for the continuance of the present regular cash dividend in cast current earnings should temporarily not prove wholly sufficient for the purpose."

National Steel corporation has started to roll steel in the new 14 inch merchant mill at its Great Lakes plant at Detroit. This mill, which has a production capacity of 15,000 tons a month, marks completion of the $25,000,000 construction program of the company in the Detroit district, except for a 10 inch merchant mill which is scheduled to be placed in operation about July 1.

New Grain Elevator Is Planned for Irondale

A new concrete elevator, with 1,500,000 bu capacity, is to be built as an addition to the Irondale elevator in the Calumet district by the Rosenbaum Grain corporation. It is expected that the contract will be let within a few days. It is to be ready for storing grain by July 1. This will give the Irondale elevator a capacity of 2,400,000 bu. Storage conditions of Chicago elevators have been eased materially of late by chartering of boats for 1,413,000 bu, part of which has been already loaded. The charters include 500,000 bu of wheat, 570,000 bu of corn for Buffalo, and 193,000 bu corn and 150,000 bu of oats to Georgian bay.

A. & P. Chain's Sales for Month Total $86,121,818

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 13.—Notwithstanding an increase of 10.72 per cent in the quantity of food sold by the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea chain during February, dollar sales showed a decline of $3,737,012, or 4.34 per cent, compared with the corresponding month of last year. The company, in its monthly report issued today, pointed out that the decline in dollar sales reflects lower retail food prices. Sales for the month amounted to $82,384,806, compared with $86,121,818 for the same 1930 month.

Insolvency Record for U. S. Shows Improvement

Further improvement appeared in the insolvency record for the United States this week as reported by R. G. Dun & Co. Defaults totaled 563 against 614 last week and 560 for the corresponding week of 1930. Insolvencies with liabilities of $5,000 or more each totaled 354, against 362 for the like week last year.

EXTRA DIVIDENDS ARE DECLARED BY SEVERAL FIRMS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 13.—The Loose-Wiles Biscuit company has declared the usual extra dividend of 10 cents a share on the common in addition to the regular quarterly of 65 cents. Selected Industries has resumed dividends with payments of $2.75 a share on the $5.50 preferred, $1.37½ on the $6.50 preferred stamped, and $1.87½ on the convertible stock. Twentieth Century Fixed Trust shares declared an extra distribution of 39.45 cents a share. New Hampshire Fire Insurance company voted 10 cents a share extra.

Metropolitan Ice company declared 25 cents a share extra on its preferred. Southern Union Gas company declared an initial dividend of 43¾ cents a share quarterly on its 7 per cent preferred. Jenkins Brothers reduced the quarterly dividend from 50 to 37½ cents a share on the common. Retail Properties omitted the quarterly 75 cents due on its $3 preferred. Republic Investing company deferred the quarterly 35 cents due on its preferred. Directors of the United Porto Rican Sugar company have deferred action on the preferred dividend until the May meeting, when they can estimate more accurately the results of the current year's operations. Action was due to the lateness of grinding this year and the small amount of sugar which has been already made and sold.

Report N. Y. Central to Pay $1,550 Share for M.C.Stock

New York, March 13.—(AP)—A board of arbitration, the New York Sun said today, has fixed $1,550 per share as the price the New York Central railroad should pay to acquire approximately 200 shares of Michigan Central common stock. Officials of the New York Central declined to comment on the Sun report. Wall street had heard earlier in the week the price agreed upon was $1,000 a share.

Loft, Inc.

Will you please give me some information about Loft, Inc., with particular reference to the company's common stock which is traded on the New York stock exchange?—D. R. B.

Loft, Inc., candy manufacturer, has been in business since 1919. It operates stores in the larger cities along the Atlantic coast, in which it sells at wholesale and retail the candy that it manufactures, together with ice cream, soda water, etc. Many of these stores have lunch departments.

The trend of earnings from 1920 through 1929 was almost steadily downward.

Results last year were complicated by the change in management and the struggle between the two dissenting factions for control of the company. After George W. Loft, the company's founder, lost control early in 1928 a group headed by A. R. Miller had been in charge. In March, 1930 a new faction took charge and elected Charles G. Guth president.

The income account for 1929 showed net sales amounting to $7,001,325 against $7,266,382 in 1928, $7,873,223 in 1927, and $8,397,521 in 1926. Net loss of $151,174 was reported for the year. The report for the first half of 1930 indicated net sales of $3,853,827 and net loss for the period of $260,971.

The new management recently issued an income account for the six months ended Dec. 31, 1930, showing net sales of $5,804,529 and net income of $176,828, equal to 17 cents per share earned on the 1,023,189 no par shares.

The balance sheet at the close of 1930 indicated current assets of $1,632,114, including about $800,000 cash, $613,000 inventories, and $216,000 receivables. Current liabilities were $1,112,222. This left a working capital of $519,892. Surplus was $1,232,630 against $2,351,512 at the close of 1929.

The new president recently informed stockholders that factory production had been stepped up 50 per cent as a result of new outlets obtained in September, 1930, when the company purchased 71 per cent of the outstanding stock of Happiness Candy stores. He stated that sales were increasing and operating costs were being steadily reduced.

No dividends have been reported since December, 1922. The stock is purely speculative.

CHICAGO STOCK TRADING DROPS TO LOW POINT

Price Changes in List Are Narrow.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Intervals between ticker clicks stretched into minutes as time dragged in the brokerage offices of the financial district yesterday. When 2 o'clock finally rolled around one of the dullest trading days of the year has been recorded.

It was one of the quietest sessions, both from the point of price changes and volume of business done, that La Salle street has encountered in several weeks. Transactions in the Chicago market fell to around 95,000 shares.

U. S. Radio Volume.

Price changes among all classes of stocks were narrow. United States Radio, which has been one of the trading favorites of the professionals in recent weeks, turned over in moderate volume but the final quotation on the issue represented only a fractional change from its previous price. Middle West was also in the doldrums. After backing and filling in a narrow circle it closed at the same price that it brought in Thursday's final transaction.

A promise of relief from the dullness was shown by the traction bonds, but the comparatively active trading in these issues created only passing interest. The heaviest traded in of these securities was Chicago Railway first mortgage 5's, which was bid up a point on a volume of sales representing bonds of a par value of $56,000. The activity in the traction issues developed in the expectation that the proposed plan for consolidation of the local transportation companies will be declared operative in a few weeks.

Cuts Dividend Rate.

Maintenance of the dividend rate which carried through 1930 has been found inadvisable by the directors of the Sangamon Electric company. President R. C Lanphier stated yesterday that a quarterly dividend of 25 cents has been declared on the common stock which places the issue on a $1 annual basis as compared with $2 formerly.

In announcing the reduction President Lanphier said that the business of the company during the first quarter held up well. Earnings for January and February ran below last year but were in excess of 1929, he stated. The dividend action was taken as a matter of conservative policy, he explained, with the idea that if present prospects materialize the old rate will be restored.

Top yesterday, $9.15; average, $8.35.
Estimated receipts at Chicago today: catle, 200; hogs, 10,000; sheep, 5,000.

Cattle, hog and sheep sold to better advantage on yesterday's market, hogs scoring the sharpest gains. Top hogs at $8.50 were highest of the year and $1.25 above the low spot two weeks ago. The general average price of hogs moved up 25c at $7.90.

Half of yesterday's hog receipts were billed direct to packers from other points, leaving only 10,000 of the fresh supply of hogs on the market. Outsiders bought 7,500 and, with smaller houses eager for stock because of the short droves put up earlier in the week, only 1,000 pen holders remained at the close.

Receipts continue to decrease. The year to date movement at 11 leading markets at 6,468,000 is 280,000 behind a year ago. A month ago the year total was running less than 75,000 behind the 1930 movement.

September Hogs Bring $8.80.

Hogs averaging 260@310 lbs sold at $8.80 for next September delivery, while lighter weights for the same month were offered at $9.25. April and May light were offered at $9.25 and bid $8.25. May mediums were also bid $8.25, but the lowest offer at the close was $8.60. May heavy were bid $8.00. On the "to arrive" market, light weights for next Monday's delivery were bid $8.20, mediums were bid $7.75, and heavy $7.25.

Yesterday's meager supply of cattle consisted mostly of medium and commoner grades that have scored most of the advance this week. Buyers were eager to take on more of the lighter weights at the week's 25@75c advance, but neglected the few shipments of weighty beeves included in yesterday's receipts. The latter kinds are barely steady with a week ago.
Butcher stock is closing 25@50c above a week ago, while some classes of yearling heifers are 75c to $1.00 higher for the week. Calves have recovered
$1.00 of the recent sharp loss.

Lambs in Demand.

Demand for lambs broadened yesterday and prices were stronger, with spots slightly above the low point of the previous day's session. Outsiders are buying a greater proportion than usual at Chicago lately. During the first five days of the week shippers bought 47 per cent of the receipts, against 33 per cent a year ago and 38 per cent two years ago. Most handy weight lambs sold to packers around $9.00, with one lot at $9.15, while 100 lb averages went at $8.65.
Aged sheep and yearlings were unchanged.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for Monday are estimated from 40,000 to 45,000. W. F. Russell marked

WORLD'S WHEAT SUPPLY EXPANDS AND PRICES SLIP

Crop Reports from Winter Belt Favorable.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A sharp reversal in the trend of foreign wheat markets, due largely to prospects of large world's shipments for the week as indicated by liberal clearances from the southern hemisphere, led to increased pressure yesterday and there was a drop of 1@1¼c in prices at Chicago, with the July touching 63⅛c on the break, a new low for the week. The finish was at the bottom, while September was 63¼c to 63⅜c. Old crop months were unchanged with March, 79½c, and May, 81⅝c.

An overbought condition was disclosed in Liverpool and, with a slow demand for cash wheat, futures there were off 1d for the day. Shipments of 5,034,000 bu from Australia compared with 1,480,000 bu last year had some effect as did clearances of 3,171,000 bu from Argentina against 2,258,000 bu in 1930. European operators also paid some attention to the independent weakness which developed in Buenos Aires at the finish on Thursday, and the latter closed ¼@⅞c lower yesterday, with the May showing the most decline.

Less Support at Winnipeg.

Buying of wheat futures at Winnipeg was less aggressive than of late and with local operators and commission houses on the selling side the close there was 1¼@1⅜c lower, with July at 61⅜c which compared with a close of 64⅜c at Liverpool.

The trade is rather anxious to test the recent expressed belief by Winnipeg operators that any marked decline in the price of wheat would result in a material enlargement in the export demand. While the latter was reported as slow early, it was finally estimated that 500,000 bu had been taken by importers as the result of the break, but nothing was heard regarding business in domestic hard winters.

It is understood that around 900,000 bu cash wheat have been ordered moved out from Chicago by the stabilization corporation in order to help relieve the storage situation.

Part of the selling of wheat at Chicago during the day was credited by the trade to local professionals who were said to be expressing bearish sentiment. Crop reports from the winter wheat belt remain favorable, and returns to the Modern Miller suggest that there has been little loss in acreage in the leading states.

Longs Sell Corn Futures.

Efforts on the part of local operators to advance corn prices of late appeared to have resulted in an overbought condition developing in the pit and while the market was dull early there was fairly general selling later which carried prices off rather sharply and the finish was ⅝@⅞c lower, with March, 61½c; May, 63⅝c to 63¾c; July, 66⅛c to 66½c, and September, 66¼c to 66⅜c.

Buying against bids was a factor in checking the decline in corn futures, but the general run of the news attracted little attention. The basis in the sample market was ½c higher to ½c lower with the low grades showing the decline. Shipping demand remains decidedly slow, while country offerings were limited. There were 530,000 bu No. 2 and No. 3 yellow corn loaded out of public elevators, presumably representing grain that will clear via the lakes as soon as navigation opens. Buenos Aires March corn was 2⅝c lower at the close, while the May was off ⅝c.

Russia Offers Rye.

An estimate on the acreage farmers anticipate seeding to spring grains will be given out by the government on March 26, which the trade anticipates may have some effect on the oats market as well as corn and spring wheat. Trade in oats futures was slow, with the close ¼@⅜c lower in sympathy with other grains. March finished at 30c; May, 32c, and July, 32¼c.

Russia was reported as offering rye to European countries at a price lower than asked for Canadian grain and the prospect of a liberal business in the latter is regarded as remote under existing conditions. Futures here closed ¼c lower, with May, 40⅛c, and July, 40⅛c.

CASH GRAIN NEWS

With the exception of 500,000 bu Manitoba wheat disposed of abroad the foreign demand for North American grain was dull, and even the call for Canadian barley let up, the latter being the result of increased offerings from the Danube at lower prices. Russia rye was offered below a parity with Canadian.

Local handlers sold 2,000 bu wheat, 34,000 bu corn, 45,000 bu oats, 2,000 bu rye, and 2,000 bu barley to the domestic trade with 125,000 bu wheat and 5,000 bu corn sold to go to store. Deliveries on March contracts were 346,000 bu wheat, 60,000 bu corn, and 49,000 bu oats.

No. 1 and No. 2 grades of contract wheat in the local sample market continue to sell at the price of old March to ¼c under. Only a few scattered cars were offered for sale.

Choice cash corn continues in fair demand with some sales ½c better as compared with the future, while some of the poor sold at ½c wider basis. Discounts as compared with May follow: No. 2 mixed, 2½@3c; yellow, 2@2½c; white, 1¼@1½c; No. 3 mixed, 4½@4¾c; yellow, 2⅝@4¼c; white, 2½@3½c; No. 4 mixed, 5@6c; yellow, 4⅝@6¼c; white, 4@5½c; No. 5 mixed, 7@7½c; yellow, 6@8c; white, 5½@6c; No. 6 mixed, 9@10c; yellow, 8@9c; white, 7@8c.

Cash oats basis was ¼c higher to ¼c lower with No. 2 white ¼@½c under and No. 3 white, 1@1¼c under May. No. 2 rye was May price to 7c over.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Pressure from several of the largest local bears who sold September wheat yesterday was regarded by most traders as a forerunner for a further break. It was said that prices held within narrow limits for four days this week and that a break was due. The same sentiments also prevailed in corn. A pit trader who bought on previous days unloaded a big line and started a general movement in the market in which the buying power was limited.

"Sentiment in wheat is undoubtedly bearish, encouraged by the statistical picture which indicates large reserves in all positions excepting in continental buying countries," says S. C. Harris. "Pressure, however, comes mainly from short sellers and with concentrated ownership of the old cash wheat the big discount for the new crop may act as a technical handicap on shorts."

"Buffalo sent a report that within a few days the farm board had sold No. 2 hard winter wheat at Buffalo at equal to 5c under Chicago May. Within the last five days good sales of wheat have been made by the farm board for export, but the quantity and prices are not announced. It is expected that the elevator people will reach a satisfactory agreement with the government next Tuesday.

COTTON IRREGULAR

Cotton prices advanced early yesterday and held fairly until around midday, when prices receded and closed around the lowest, with net losses of 12@17 points in Chicago and 7@15 points in other markets, New Orleans leading. Spots were off 15 points in New Orleans to 10.35c, with New York dropping 5 points to 10.75c, Galveston 10.60c, and Houston 10.55c. Liverpool was strong and 12@13 points higher at the finish. Spot sales were 5,000 bales, of which 3,000 were American.

Spinners' takings for the week were 236,000 bales, against 264,000 bales the previous week and 255,000 bales last year, as given by Hester. Prices follow:

LARD AND MEATS HIGHER

Scattered commission house buying, combined with higher prices for hogs and no particular selling pressure, despite the weakness in grains, brought an advance of 5@7½c on lard futures yesterday and 22½c on bellies. It was said that liquidation in the latter apparently had run its course, and light offerings made it easy to advance prices. Cash bellies were said to be stronger. Liverpool lard was up 3@6d. Export clearances were 1,937,300 lbs, and of bacon 15,000 lbs. Hog supplies were larger than a week ago, but smaller than last year.

Lard stocks in cold storage at leading points in the country on March 1 were 75,450,000 lbs, compared with 62,624,000 lbs Feb. 1 and 111,914,000 lbs March 1 last year. The five year average was 111,022,000 lbs. Prices follow:
